U. S. KEEPS MUM AT HAVANA ON AIR, NAVY BASES

Takes No Steps for Defense of Canal.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, July 28.—No official action leading toward acquisition of sea and air bases in Latin America by the United States for defense of the Panama canal will be taken at the conference of foreign ministers here, it was learned today.

When the delegation headed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull came here it expected general permission would be sought from the 21 sister republics to establish such bases on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of Central and South America.

It was one of the few material benefits, and one considered vital to national defense, which the United States sought at the parley.

America's Biggest Need.

All the remainder of the program found Uncle Sam in the position of a generous giver, offering wealth and military strength to protect the Americas from political and economic penetration by Nazi Germany. In this one instance only the old gentleman was saying "gimme."

The issue was soft pedaled from the beginning. In his opening address to the conference, Hull did not mention the subject and it is reported authoritatively that it was never brought up for more than a passing mention at subsequent meetings.

The state department's position was said to be that the question could be disposed of later by negotiation with the specific countries involved. It was too delicate a subject to bring up at the general conference and might serve to revive the fears, which Hull has been fairly successful in lulling, of American designs upon her small neighbors.

Matter for Military Experts.

In any event the permission sought did not involve the purchase or lease of any territory nor infringement on the sovereignty of any Latin American island or territory.

The matter is one to be worked out by military and naval experts, officials said, and the United States delegation includes no military or naval advisers. Confidence was expressed that permission can be obtained later.

The "Act of Havana" was reported out tonight by committee for adoption by the full convention. This is the measure providing for administration of colonial possessions of European nations which might fall into the hands of aggressor nations.

This and other resolutions will come before the plenary session tomorrow and undoubtedly will be approved in the final sessions of the full convention Tuesday.

CONVENTION TEXT.

HAVANA, Cuba, July 29, Monday (AP).—The text of the convention covering the legal phase of the plan to be acted upon today by the Pan American conference of foreign ministers regarding foreign possessions in the new world [omitting the preamble which sets forth the perils which might eventuate should the possessions of some belligerent nations held in America become headless] follows:

"FIRST—If a non-American state attempts directly or indirectly to substitute for another non-American state in the sovereignty or control which that [other state] exerted over any territory situated in America, thereby threatening the peace of the continent, said territory automatically will be considered to be within the stipulations of this convention, and will be submitted to a regimé of provisional administration.

"SECOND—That administration shall be executed—as it is considered advisable in each case—by one or more American states by virtue of previous consent.

"THIRD—When administration is established over a region it shall be executed in the interest of the security of America and to the benefit of the administered region looking toward its well being and development, until the region is found to be in condition to administer itself or to return to its former status, so long as this is compatible with the security of the American republics.

Shall Apply Local Laws.

"FOURTH—Administration of the territory shall operate under conditions which guarantee freedom of conscience and faith with the restrictions demanded by the maintenance of public order and good habits.

"FIFTH—The administration shall

ENGLISH DOWN 5 NAZI CRAFT IN CEILING OF SKY

Wales Undergoes 3 Hours of Bombing.

LONDON, July 29 [Monday] (AP).—Bomb carrying fighter planes—Germany's latest innovation—and regular bombers scattered their explosives across the face of Britain again today.

This renewed onslaught followed all day combats yesterday, the greatest of which was an hour long 60 plane battle six miles above the English channel. That conflict, reaching to the "floor" of the stratosphere or the ceiling of the sky, accounted for five of the nine German planes which the air ministry said were shot down yesterday. Two British planes were reported lost.

Dive in Blinding Sun.

The combatants flashed and wheeled so high in the cloud flecked skies that ground watchers could scarcely see them. The German planes took advantage of a blinding sun, darting down from their great altitude, but British Spitfires quickly rose to intercept and give them battle, the air ministry said.

The air ministry reported the use of bombs by German fighter planes was a new stunt, tried first during the week-end. It contended this employment of single seaters was unsuccessful but indicated that the Germans were trying to avoid the heavy toll taken of the slower, ponderous bombing planes.

Fitted to Carry Bomb.

The Messerschmitt 109 fighters, "fitted to carry a high explosive bomb, fly in high and dive out of the clouds to drop their bombs and then try to make for home before British fighters can catch them," the ministry said.

Of the five raiders downed in this battle, two fell into the sea and the other three several miles inland. Of the four other German planes shot down yesterday, two were downed over the channel and two in battles inland.

[Reports reaching Susak, Jugo-Slavia, from across the Italian frontier said British planes had bombed Trieste, Pola, and Udine, in Italy, early yesterday morning. Pola is an Italian naval base.]

Wales this morning had its longest siege of the war, a three hour battle in which bombs, pursuit ships, anti-aircraft guns and searchlights all played their parts. The raids extended also over southwest and northeast England and the thud of heavy explosions was heard repeatedly. Driven off by antiaircraft fire, the Germans kept returning.

Claim Slight Damage.

Authorities said little damage was done, mentioning the bombardment of a Welsh golf course and a farm's outbuildings.

Striking back with steady, punishing air blows at the reich, the air ministry announced that objectives of raids carried out Saturday had included the Nord See canal in North Holland, barges at Stavoren in Friesland, which possibly were being collected to ferry Nazi troops across the channel to England, eight airfields in Holland and Germany, two supply ships off the Norwegian and Dutch coasts, and oil depots and docks at Hamburg, Amsterdam, Wilhelmshaven, and Bremen in Germany.

[German sources said five British planes and two German aircraft were shot down over the English channel. The Germans credited a U-boat with sinking armed ships totaling 48,000 tons in a British convoy. German bombers were reported to have sunk two destroyers, an auxiliary cruiser, a 5,000 ton merchantman, and damaged a destroyer and two other merchantmen.]

Pilot Tells of Fight.

American built Lockheed Hudson planes were credited with having damaged the German supply ships and shot down a Messerschmitt fighter which attempted to stop them.

"As we turned away after our dive [on a supply ship near Stavanger] three Messerschmitt 109's came for us," the pilot of one of the Lockheeds said. "A few of their shots went into our tail and damaged the starboard rudder.

"I turned to allow my rear gunner to get one of the Messerschmitts into his sights. He let fly a good burst and we saw tracer bullets striking home. The Messerschmitt fell away out of control and crashed into the sea. We were in the clouds before the other two had time to open their attack."

In River Nearly 90 Hours, Sets 292 Mile Mark

Caruthersville, Mo., July 28 [Special].—John V. Sigmund, a St. Louis butcher, amateur swimmer and former football player, tonight laid claim to the world record for distance swimming after he swam 292 miles down the Mississippi river from St. Louis in 89 hours and 48 minutes.

Sigmund's mark exceeds by four miles the record established in July, 1939, by Clarence Giles of Glendive, Mont., who swam 288 miles from Billings to Glendive in 77½ hours. Giles' faster time is accounted for by the fast current of the Yellowstone river.

Carried to Hotel Room.

Sigmund was unable to walk or talk when he was lifted from the river here tonight. Carried to a boathouse, he was examined by Dr. Philip Aquino. Sigmund complained of a pain in his side.

A stretcher was improvised and Sigmund, who is 30 years old, was carried to a hotel to rest. Dr. Aquino planned to make a more thoro examination of Sigmund after he had rested for several hours.

Sigmund is married and the father of two children. Mrs. Sigmund was aboard the launch which accompanied him and looked after his diet. Marvin Plake, a representative of the Amateur Athletic union, also was aboard the launch and checked the swimmer's performance.

Month in Training.

Sigmund trained more than a month for the swim. Before he entered the water in St. Louis at 7:22 p. m. last Wednesday, he said he had put on a large amount of weight because he expected to lose nearly 50 pounds. It was impossible tonight to check his physical condition closely.

Sigmund made his swim for the announced purpose of exceeding the mark made last year by Giles, who beat a 281-mile mark set in 1933 by Pedro Candiotti of Argentina, in the Parana river.

Practicing for a swimming race of 28 miles from Alton, Ill., to St. Louis last summer, Sigmund swam the route with his hands tied behind his back. A short time later he won the race in five hours.

Plane Shipped to England After Diving 500 M. P. H.

New York, July 28 (AP).—The first of 80 speedy new Grumman fighters, built to compete with Europe's fastest, was tested today at nearby Roosevelt field and crated immediately for shipment to Great Britain. Field observers said the plane, heavily camouflaged, cruised at well over 330 miles an hour and dived at more than 500 miles per hour.

ENGLISH BUY SEAPLANE IN U. S.; PLAN TO FLY ALUMINUM TO BRITAIN

New York, July 28 [Special].—The British ministry of aircraft production, headed by Lord Beaverbrook, has bought a large seaplane from Richard Archbold, New York financier and Standard Oil stockholder, for the purpose of transporting aluminum from this country to England, it was disclosed today.

The purchase was made by Harold James, member of the ministry who has been here for a month seeking ways to send aluminum to England.

The plans call for semiweekly trips with each shipment weighing three and a half tons. Clyde Pangborn will head the crew of four that will fly the seaplane. The craft will take off from Long Island sound on its Atlantic flights.

STRANGE LIGHTS IN SKY MYSTIFY SOUTH SIDERS

More than a thousand mystified residents of the south side telephoned THE TRIBUNE within half an hour last night to report strange lights in the sky and to ask what they were. Some said they were round. Others said rectangular. They were red. They were yellow. There was one. There were two. They were stationary. They pulsed. They were directly overhead. They were in the southeast corner of the heavens.

Neither the airport nor local astronomers could aid in determining what they might be, altho the astronomers suggested that is was the steel mills again. One south sider said he thought they might be the reflection in the sky of a pair of lake beacons.

Another resident, asked to determine the position of the lights, reported that all he could see from his back yard was a couple of clouds.

WINDSOR TO SAIL FOR BAHAMAS ON AMERICAN VESSEL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—The duke of Windsor, recently appointed governor and commander in chief of the Bahamas, will leave Lisbon, Portugal, with his wife early in August to take up his new duties. This was disclosed in reports today from Lisbon which announced that the duke and duchess would travel to the islands on an American Export liner by way of the United States.

Pepper Learns He's Tops with British Press

New York, July 28 [Special].—Listeners who tuned in this afternoon on a two way trans-Atlantic NBC broadcast between Joseph Kennedy, United States ambassador to Great Britain, and guests aboard the new liner America, en route from Newport News to New York on its maiden voyage, heard the ambassador and Senator Claude Pepper of Florida felicitate each other.

Senator Pepper who has won the title in Washington of "the senate's foremost advocate of American intervention in the European war," was rebuked recently in the senate by three of his Democratic colleagues after he had denounced senators who want to keep us out of war as "appeasers of Hitler."

Jos Kennedy. Claude Pepper.

Transcript of Talk.

The conversation follows:

Pepper—Hello, Joe.

Kennedy—Hello, Claude. How are you?

Pepper—Fine. How are you? I wish you were over here on this great ship with us this afternoon.

Kennedy—Well, I would like to be, Claude, but I am afraid there are a few things still to be done over here.

Pepper—I wish it were possible for you to tell us over here that the land from which you are speaking was as free and as safe from the marauders and the bloody dictator threats as our land is over here. And I pray to God that it may soon be that way, Joe. We all appreciate the good work you are doing.

Name Rivals President's.

Kennedy—Thank you, Claude. You may be interested to know, Claude, your name appears in these papers over here almost as much as the President of the United States.

Pepper—Well, that is very good. If you and me had our desires, I don't think Hitler would last long, would he? All right, I'll give these other fellows a chance, Joe. Good luck to you.

Kennedy—Good luck, Claude.

Announcer George Hicks—That was Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, aboard the new S. S. America, speaking to the United States ambassador to Great Britain, Joseph P. Kennedy.

WILLKIE'S WIFE FINDS VACATION IS MOSTLY WORK

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 28.—Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie came here, she thought, for a vacation. She is learning, to her surprise, that a Presidential candidate's wife can have no vacation.

The telephone never ceases. The mail pours in. The sorrowful seek her ear for their troubles, and the ambitious seek her aid for their ladder-climbing. As a result, she says, "the days just tumble over one another."

"It's a day full of inconsequential things," she says, a little sadly. "But somehow I'm busy every second. I just get to bed when it's time to get up."

An Early Riser.

She arises, incidentally, before 6 o'clock every morning, long before the secretarial force is at work, and serves as amateur secretary for her husband. She places long distance calls for him, opens mail, and tries to wedge in a few conversational scraps.

"We're not very interested in breakfast, for some reason," she said." "Wendell always wants food, but then he doesn't eat it. I think it satisfies him to know it is ordered. Then, too, that is the only time of the day, early morning, when we get any conversation."

After that the procession of callers begins. Persons who think she can get her husband's ear if they cannot. Persons who think she will indorse a "Win with Willkie" handkerchief, a dress bespattered with elephants, a new Republican soap, or a special Willkie emblem. She indorses nothing, and disregards the chronic protesters.

"I just let it go in one ear and out the other," she says. "I think that wives can cause MORE trouble."

Lots of Letters.

Then come the letters. She deals only with those addressed to her. These are legion, again on the assumption that a letter to her will work miracles.

A man wrote her asking that Mr. Willkie pay for his wife's operation. "She is so irritable," he wrote, "and keeps the household upset, and I can't afford to pay for the operation she needs without giving up my amusements."

"He didn't want to give up his amusements," Mrs. Willkie repeated in solemn mirth. "That's one of the strangest letters I've had, and we've had plenty of strange ones."

She dictates replies to many letters, but she is troubled by the personal letters with which she is swamped, letters that demand a handwritten reply. These now fill a drawer. She manages to plow thru a few of them every day.

"If I don't answer them," she says, "my friends write again and complain. Even my mother. She can't understand why just because my husband is the Presidential nominee I can't write as often as ever.

"I keep wondering," she added breathlessly, "will I ever be free again?"

Another Set of Worries.

In between there are a multitude of small domestic duties. She watches Mr. Willkie, when she can find him, like a mother hen. She worries about the rest he doesn't get, the food he forgets to eat, the battered condition of his straw hat, his rumpled hair, and his ties.

This is only a small portion of Mrs. Willkie's day as a candidate's wife. She receives great droves of women. An occasional party also is given for her, such as one given by the Denver and Colorado Springs chapters of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, of which she is a member, here the other day.

WILLKIE HOPES SOAR; MAY WIN BY A LANDSLIDE

Roosevelt by Slight Margin, if at All.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 28.—Either President Roosevelt will be reelected by a narrow margin or Wendell Willkie will win by anything from a handful of electoral votes to a landslide.

This is the prospect as the great quadrennial political contest gets under way.

The Roosevelt landslides of 1932 and 1936 are not expected this time by the Democratic leaders. Their appraisal of the defection of Democrats, chiefly because of opposition to the third term, indicates that they will consider the President extremely fortunate to pull through at all.

Republican confidence, tremendously enhanced by the nomination of so formidable a contender as Willkie, has reached a new high since the Democratic convention and succeeding events have disclosed the dissatisfaction and disorganization in the Democratic party. They now regard Republican victory a certainty, possibly by a landslide.

Poll Shows Willkie Far Ahead.

A landslide for Willkie is indicated by the first straw vote of the campaign, conducted by Fortune magazine, which has a unique record for accuracy. This poll indicates that Mr. Roosevelt is assured of only 165 electoral votes—all in the south.

The Rocky mountain states, with 30 votes, are divided 50-50 between Roosevelt and Willkie. If the President won them all he would have only 195 electoral votes compared with 336 in the remaining states in which the poll shows Willkie leading by a substantial margin.

The Chicago convention provided a heavy handicap for the Democrats at the beginning of the race. The radio brought to the ears of millions of listeners the party demoralization that the Democratic leaders strove in vain to conceal.

Fear Third Term Issue.

The apathy of the delegates toward the renomination of the President for a third term was apparent the opening day of the convention.

Their state of mind, as many of them testified, was that they did not want to violate the anti-third term tradition; that the election of Mr. Roosevelt in defiance of the unwritten law is extremely dubious, but that Mr. Roosevelt is the only Democrat standing any chance of election.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago, in welcoming the delegates, made two ineffectual attempts to set off a "spontaneous" demonstration of enthusiasm for the President. Thereafter the Roosevelt demonstrations were worked up by the Kelly-Nash ward heelers, who were herded by the thousands into the convention hall without tickets.

Wallace Booed from Hall.

The convention ended in the extraordinary spectacle of the party's nominee for Vice President, Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, being booed out of the hall. Upon being nominated, Wallace, who had sat for three hours thru the storms of booing of his name, started forward to deliver the acceptance speech he had composed. Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, fearing Wallace would be booed off the platform, plucked him by the arm.

"Don't go out there," cried Byrnes. "If you do, you'll ruin the party."

The Vice Presidential nominee stopped, turned back, and slipped out of the convention hall as unobtrusively as he could.

The transparency of the President's pretense of not wanting a third term, while dictating his renomination, and his dictation of the Wallace nomination produced an adverse reaction among the delegates. They were departing by the hundreds before the last session began.

Byrnes Spurns Chairmanship.

After the Wallace episode, Senator Byrnes asserted that he would not take the chairmanship of the Democratic National committee under any circumstances. Chairman James A. Farley, whose antagonism to the third term was well known, refused to lead the President's third campaign. He ill concealed his opinion that the third term cause is doomed to defeat.

For campaign manager the President is reported to be considering not only Frank Walker of New York, but former Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, now federal security administrator.

Another possibility is that McNutt will succeed Farley as postmaster general. At any rate, McNutt merits handsome reward by the President. There is not the slightest doubt that McNutt, who stood forth as the darling of the convention, could have had the Vice Presidential nomination. He could have beaten Wallace and his nomination would have constituted the convention's repudiation of dictation by the President.

Stopped by Honeyed Words.

When the last day of the convention dawned, McNutt intended to go after second place on the ticket. It was arranged that Oklahoma should place him in nomination. It was even reported that McNutt was on the point of resigning his administration job, in order to be free to seek the Vice Presidential nomination against the President's choice.

Mr. Roosevelt learned of the intentions of his security administrator and recognized the jeopardy of Wallace. He got McNutt on the long distance phone and honeyed him, telling him how essential he is to the success of the administration, how the President needs him, etc. The upshot was that McNutt forsook his ambition and promised the President he would second the nomination of Wallace.

In another telephone conversation the President induced Representative Sam Rayburn [D., Tex.] to abandon his Vice Presidential candidacy and second Wallace.

TRUE CITIZENSHIP IS C. M. T. C. AIM, GEN. FORD AVERS

Battle Creek, Mich., July 28 [Special].—"There is a greater purpose behind the training received in the Citizens' Military Training camp than the use of weapons alone," Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford of Chicago, commander of the 6th corps area and of the 2d army, told 1,700 Michigan and Illinois C. M. T. C. trainees today at Camp Custer. "That purpose is the teaching of true citizenship."

Gen. Ford's address was a feature of visitors' day, which brought thousands of relatives of the C. M. T. C. enrollees to Camp Custer as guests.

He commended the patriotism of the parents who sent their sons to the camp. "Far too little is heard of responsibility to our government," Gen. Ford said. "I give you assurance this period of training will bring rich rewards in the future."

Gen. Ford, who arrived by airplane a short time before the address, reviewed the C. M. T. C. regiment together with Col. Frederick M. Armstrong, 2d infantry, who is camp commander.

Auto Strikes Transmission Pole; Husband, Wife Killed

Quincy, Ill., July 28 (AP).—A husband and wife were dead today and three other persons were in a hospital with serious injuries resulting from an automobile accident south of here last night. E. A. Jackson, Quincy truck driver, was killed when the car crashed into a transmission line pole, and his wife, Gertrude, died two hours after the accident. The injured are: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Simons of Quincy and Miss Irene Manley of Baylis, Ill.

CITIZENS' DRIVE OPENED TO CURB ELECTION FRAUD

Polls Experts to Train Volunteer Workers.

A campaign was launched yesterday to enlist citizens in a movement to prevent vote stealing at the Nov. 5 election. Leaders said there must be no delay in training volunteers to detect and stop vote frauds.

George F. Barrett.

George F. Barrett, Republican candidate for attorney general, said he will open special offices at 39 South La Salle street this week for the antifraud drive. He will employ experts to enroll citizens in the movement and to instruct them how to make the election an honest one.

A pamphlet aiming at the same ends will be issued soon by the Women's Civic council, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Harriet M. Robertson, president. Coöperating are many women's organizations, including the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, and the women's department of the Chicago Church federation.

Barrett Accuses Machines.

"Thruout the country this year the corrupt political machines are all fighting Wendell L. Willkie," Barrett said. "They must keep Roosevelt in power to get more federal money to be used in regimenting and subsidizing the electorate.

"Hague of New Jersey, Tammany hall of New York, Pendergast in Kansas City, Crump in Tennessee, and the Kelly-Nash-Nudelman machine in Chicago will use every dishonest political method to defeat Willkie.

"Everybody knows that in recent Illinois elections the majority has been bossed at the polls by a thieving minority. Vote thieves have stolen so many votes in Cook county that the actual losers are holding public office. This is not democracy—it is Hitlerism."

Urges Trained Watchers.

The answer, and it must come swiftly and surely, Barrett said, is for honest citizens to rebel against vote frauds by enlisting for service on election day. But these watchers must be trained in their work to outwit the hoodlum element, he declared.

Barrett said class instruction will begin as soon as enough citizens have enrolled. The schools will be conducted in theaters, halls, and other places having adequate accommodations. Barrett will personally instruct as many classes as possible.

Leading off the women's campaign is a new pamphlet opening with the following quotation from Plato [350 B. C.]:

"The punishment suffered by the wise who refuse to take part in the government is to live under the government of bad men."

Precinct "Adoptions" Sought.

Every women's club will be asked to "adopt" at least one precinct, which covers a small area and contains approximately 400 voters.

Free schools to instruct watchers in their rights and duties will be conducted by the Women's Civic council.

Women's organizations will demand that County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, head of the election machinery for most of Cook county, make an equal and impartial distribution of credentials for polls watchers.

Urge Qualified Judges.

Also to be demanded of the county judge are the following:

1. Appointment of judges and clerks of election who are properly qualified as to character and ability.

2. Thoro training of election judges and clerks in neighborhood schools by the board of election commissioners.

3. An honest and intensive house to house canvass of every precinct before election to remove from the registration lists the names of deceased persons, aliens, those who have moved out of the precinct, and those who never have lived there.

4. Immediate prosecution by the County court of persons accused of election frauds in the past, with emphasis directed at punishing political bosses responsible for the misdeeds of petty election officials.

STUDENT KILLED IN CRASH.

Iowa Falls, Ia., July 28 [Special].—Howard E. Wilson Jr., 21, Louisville, O., student at Iowa State college at Ames, was killed last night when two cars sideswiped on U. S. highway 65 near here. He was a hitch-hiking homeward bound passenger in on of the cars.

MADAME PERKINS IS LASHED AS A SHIELD OF ALIENS

Business Group Charges Curb on Deportations.

Charges were made in Chicago yesterday that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins has saved nearly 700 aliens from deportation during the last five years.

Donald Despain.

The accusations were made by the National Small Business Men's association, an organization opposed to the strangling of business by federal legislation. Its headquarters is at 100 West Monroe street. Thru Donald Despain, executive vice president, the association made public the names of hundreds of aliens who it said have been the beneficiaries of Secretary Perkins' official indulgence.

Madame Perkins has long been under fire over the case of Harry Bridges, west coast director of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. Efforts to deport him as an alien and alleged communist were balked when, after a special trial, Madame Perkins quashed a deportation warrant against him. He now is the subject of a special deportation bill in congress.

675 Listed as Aliens.

The list issued by the business men's association cited 675 men and women described as "aliens guilty of deportable offenses against the laws of the United States" but who have been granted exemption from deportation by Secretary Perkins. The list was described as having been taken from official records.

The general offense charged against 475 of the group was perjury, presumably growing out of illegal entry into the United States. Forty-seven were accused of theft, larceny, receiving stolen property, attempted burglary, and kindred offenses. Fifty-five were identified as "possible public charges." Other classifications included fraud, 11; forgery, 10; carrying concealed weapons, 2; prostitution, 1; pandering, 1; criminal assault, 1; smuggling, 3; rape, 2; bigamy, 10, and incest and sodomy, 2.

Report Assails Protection.

"It is amazing and shocking," the business men's association said, "that over the last five years an executive department of the government has been exerting unusual efforts to protect and keep within our borders hundreds of deportable foreigners branded as criminals. Instead of deporting these aliens, Secretary Perkins devised elaborate methods to keep them permanently in the United States."

According to the business men's association, the aliens were advised to move temporarily to Mexico or to Canada and obtain new incoming visas. These, it was charged, then were approved by the labor department under special discretionary provisions of the immigration act of 1917. Those provisions, the association contended, never contemplated special privilege to aliens violating the criminal laws of the land.

Abuse of Authority Charged.

"By the gross abuse of this old and forgotten authority, the department of labor has contrived to prevent the deportation of criminal aliens, as specifically required by other sections of the immigration statutes," the association declared.

The section under which Secretary Perkins allegedly operated in the cited cases is known as the "seventh proviso" of the 1917 immigration act. Its use was described as a "perversion of our immigration laws" by Senator Robert R. Reynolds, [D., N. C.], according to the association.

Three of those named in the association's lists are Engelbert Preis, W. Robert Montgomery, and Isidor Katzenellenbogen. The association said Katzenellenbogen, charged with perjury and forgery, was admitted thru a special act of congress. Records show Preis was held for deportation in Chicago as a communist in 1920 in connection with war activities against the communist party. Montgomery, according to old files, was a bank president in New York who was sentenced to prison in 1911 for larceny.

WILLKIE DEVOTES AN AFTERNOON TO WORK ON ELWOOD ADDRESS

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 28 (AP).—Wendell Willkie spent this afternoon dictating a portion of his acceptance address. He expects to devote all of this week to its completion. The speech will be made in the nominee's home town of Elwood, Ind., August 17.

Lem Jones, Willkie's press secretary, said the candidate will talk with a few persons this week regarding the acceptance address and that he will not make any trips until he leaves here next Sunday for a farm conference in Des Moines, Iowa.

During the day, the nominee received a message of support from Claude Chandler, who said he had led a 1932 campaign for President Roosevelt in San Diego, Calif., and had worked for Mr. Roosevelt's renomination in 1936.

GENERAL ORDERS SWISS TO FIGHT OFF ANY ATTACK

BERNE, Switzerland, July 28 (AP).—Swiss Gen. Henri Guisan announced today that Switzerland will "resist any attack from the outside" and ordered his citizen soldiery to man their battlements as long as millions stand at arms in Europe.

A general staff communique disclosed that all high Swiss officers down to battalion commanders were told at a conference on July 25 at historic Rutli Prairie, where in 1307 the Swiss pledged themselves to fight to death for independence, that Switzerland guards her freedom with arms.

PRIME MINISTER TO GIVE CANADA FULL WAR REPORT

OTTAWA, Ont., July 28 [Canadian Press].—Facts and figures about Canada's war effort will be presented to parliament tomorrow by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King and his cabinet, who decided to speak at an open session. The dominion is expected to receive the most comprehensive outline yet given of its program.

Parliament arranged to hold night sessions in the hope of ending its business before next Sunday.

An unemployment insurance bill, one of the most important domestic measures, is slated for third reading in the house tomorrow and will be sent on to the senate tomorrow night.

Rob Barbecue Stand of $20 and Shoot Owner in Hip

Arthur Alluri, 55 years old, was shot in the hip early today by one of three robbers who held up his barbecue stand at 5501 Madison street. The men ordered beers and drank them before one of them ordered Alluri to put up his hands. At the same instant another of the gang fired his gun. They got $20 from the cash register. Alluri was taken to West Suburban hospital.

O'DANIEL LEADS IN TEXAS VOTE BY CLEAR MAJORITY

Dallas, Tex., July 28 (AP).—The reëlection of Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, who charms voters with hillbilly music and radio oratory, appeared certain tonight as his majority over five other candidates in yesterday's primary election rose steadily.

With more than two-thirds of an estimated million votes counted, O'Daniel's lead had increased to 53.4 per cent. Only an unlikely shift in the trend could throw the former flour salesman into a runoff with the second place candidate, Col. Ernest O. Thompson.

The Texas election bureau reported the following totals when it discontinued tabulation for the night:

O'Daniel, 467,503; Thompson, 185,423; Highway Commissioner Harry Hines, 95,285; Mrs. Miriam [Ma] Ferguson, 72,392; Railroad Commissioner Jerry Sadler, 48,546; Cyclone Davis, who campaigned in an Uncle Sam suit, 3,853.

Texas' veteran Tom Connally, who didn't have time to come home to make a campaign speech, clinched his senate seat for six more years with a vote of 589,233 over a combined total of 113,747 for two opponents.

Runoffs were indicated in only two of 20 congressional districts.

Incumbents who held insurmountable leads included: Representatives Martin Dies, Wright Patman, Richard Kelberg, and Sam Rayburn.

MODERN ARMY'S NEEDS CITED BY COL. M'CORMICK

3 New Principal Service Branches Urged.

Suggestions for the reorganization of the structure of the army, in the light of developments in mechanized warfare, were made last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE. Col. McCormick's address was broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour.

Col. McCormick asserted our organization of infantry, cavalry, and artillery is as obsolete as the sailing ships and fire boats of Decatur's day. He said the army's three principal branches today should be mechanics, pilots, and gunners.

Mechanics Put in One Class.

Mechanics—whether aviation, tractor, or truck—belong in one class, said Col. McCormick. With the pilots, he grouped the chauffeurs.

-And shooting is shooting, he declared, whether from an airplane, tank or shell hole; gunners belong in one category whether they are transported in tanks, trucks, planes, parachutes, or move on foot for short distances.

"Until these changes from the dead past are made," he concluded, "congress is wasting all its billions of money and its millions of men."

TEXT OF ADDRESS

Following is the text of Col. McCormick's address:

"From the earliest of times we read of armies in the terms of infantry and cavalry; men marching on foot; men mounted on horses, and the ancient equivalents of artillery, instruments drawn by horses.

"These are called the three principal arms, and are considered as unchangeable as the principles of war are said to be. All military thought from the beginning of time has revolved around the speed at which these components could be moved. So it was that Napoleon could say:

"'Read and reread the campaigns of Alexander, Cæsar, and Frederick; model yourself upon them; this is the only way to become a great captain and to discover the secrets of the art of war.'

War Instruments Change.

"But Napoleon was about the last man who could say so accurately. After his day the inventor and the manufacturer began to so change the instruments of war that the old lessons no longer held.

"The industrial revolution which drove admirals crazy, first with steam, then with armor, then with torpedoes, dealt gently with the generals. Nothing new came into the army for a hundred years. Infantry goose stepped up Unter den Linden; artillery fired in the Place de la Bastille; cavalry drilled in the horse guards.

Railroads Used in Civil War.

"In the American civil war, however, great strategic movements were made by railroad. The genius of Grant used speedy river boats and the railroad for the tactical movement of troops on the battlefield, but no one paid any attention to this example.

"Said Von Moltke of the civil war:

"'This colossal conflict was but a matter of two armed mobs chasing each other around the country, from which nothing could be learned.'

"Generals blundered thru the wars of '64, '66, and '70 without perceiving the results of the slight changes in material that they had allowed to be adopted. The lessons of the war in South Africa from smokeless powder and high powered rifles were but dimly perceived by the brass hats, who only saw in automobiles more comfortable conveyances for themselves.

Automatic Weapons Utilized.

"Came automatic weapons: The Gatling gun, the Maxim, and the Colt. Rapid fire and long range multiplied the battlefield in width and depth.

"By 1914 the equipment adopted by European armies had passed far beyond the comprehension of the generals. Their maneuvers at a foot pace were nowhere able to pass thru the fire of the weapons.

"Inventors having outsmarted the soldiers, other inventors were called upon to break the deadlock. The classic conception of the infantry, that it must consist of men walking with individual weapons in their hands, could not be thrust aside, so mortars, machine guns, infantry cannon, flame throwers, and heavy artillery were added to the infantry equipment, while buses were taken from the streets, first to bring men leisurely up to trenches, then frantically to reform broken lines; finally, to set up a surprise attack. Tractors were introduced to draw heavy guns and to become tanks.

Cavalry Gets Into Tanks.

"Men fighting on horseback were shown to be utterly futile in that war. In consequence, except for a few animals retained to carry scouts and weapons in certain terrains, the cavalry arm agreed to get into tanks.

"But three miles an hour remained the common denominator of the war colleges, except in Germany, where Von Brauchitsch, using flying boats and gasoline trains, as Grant had used river boats and railroad trains, scored another Vicksburg and another Appomattox.

"Now we have infantry in tanks and cavalry in tanks.

"Shall the infantry have the slow tanks and the cavalry the fast tanks? How slow and how fast? The infantry the big tanks, and the cavalry the little tanks? How big and how little? Isn't this nonsense?

"The terms 'infantry' and 'cavalry' have become anachronisms. When a tank carries a gun is it artillery? No? Is the demarcation, then, between a gun mounted on a tractor and one fastened behind it? And are we to have artillery guns, infantry guns, cavalry guns, tank guns, antitank guns, aviation guns, and antiaviation guns? Confusion worse confounded. Furthermore, aerial bombardment does not use cannon at all. The artillery arm has ceased to exist. It has burst into fragments.

Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery!

"Infantry, cavalry, artillery! Alexander, Caesar, and Napoleon! All equally dead. We cannot cramp the creations of inventive genius into the coffins of the past.

"I subscribe to Gen. Miles' statement, that:

"'Fundamentally our concepts of basic military facts are proved to be largely in error.'

"We no longer have an army composed of three arms: men walking, men riding on horses, and guns drawn by horses. Our organization of infantry, cavalry, and artillery is as obsolete as the organization of the fleet of sailing ships and fire boats in Decatur's day. We have an infinite complexity of machines bearing men, and still more intricate machines.

How Shall Army Be Divided?

"As I showed last week, an air force that holds aloof from the other defenses is of little use. An air arm is as wrong a conception as the older arms. There are many forms of aviation tactics, and most of them are in direct connection with some element of the ground forces.

"How, then, shall this new army be divided? Patently, all mechanics belong in one class, whether it be aviation, tractor, or truck. Aviators cannot deny that pilots and chauffeurs are one and the same, since the greatest of them was once a racing driver before he was a flyer.

"Shooting is shooting, whether from an airplane, a tank, or a shell hole; whether the shooter is transported in a tank, a truck, an airplane, a parachute, or moves for short distances on foot.

Three Principal Branches.

"The new three principal branches of the army should be, therefore: mechanics, pilots, and gunners.

"Of our old services, only the engineers remain, or appear to remain.

"The field fortifications of yesterday varied as little from Julius Caesar's as did yesterday's tactics. Now they belong in the museum.

"To resist the charge of giant tanks and of heavy bombers, fortifications must be on a scale as undreamed of as warfare at 40 miles an hour was 30 years ago. These can only be erected by machines that can dig veritable canals and pile up great embankments in short order.

"And so while engineer officers must be versatile architects, the engineer soldiers again will be mechanics.

"Until these changes from the dead past are made, congress is wasting all its billions of money and its millions of men."

MISS GLADYS SPOTTS.

Lansing, Mich., July 28 [Special].—Miss Gladys Spotts, described by Gov. Luren D. Dickinson of Michigan as his favorite niece, will become the bride of Douglas Lake of Midland on Aug. 8. The ceremony will be performed in the farm home near Charlotte in which Gov. and Mrs. Dickinson were married 52 years ago. Miss Spotts is a teacher of music and language.

A MUSICAL VIGNETTE

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, conducted by Henry Weber, and the singers and actors in the cast of a musical vignette "After the Ball" vied for first honors on the remainder of the Symphonic hour program.

The orchestra and the W-G-N chorus presented an arrangement of Tschaikowsy's "Andante Cantabile" that ranked well toward the top of Symphonic hour hits in recent weeks.

"After the Ball" was the story of the result of an obsession for musical triumphs on three generations of women. Marion Claire, operatic soprano, and Patti Clayton, a new W-G-N discovery, handled the singing roles. Kay Campbell, Mary Patton, and Donna Reade played the principal dramatic parts. The vignette was written by Miss Tanyah Corday and William A. Bacher, producer-director of the Symphonic hour.

RELIEF CLIENTS ARE USING CASH TO AVOID CARRY

Milwaukee, Wis., July 28 [Special].—Milwaukee county is supporting 58,298 relief clients, and most of them can afford to have their free groceries delivered. They pay an average fee of 25 cents per family per delivery.

This was disclosed when Anthony Lacky and Cornice Duke Grace were granted contract motor carrier licenses by the state public service commission. They told the commission their prospective business was the delivery of relief supplies to reliefers. In granting the licenses, the commission recognized the service as a public convenience warranting the licensing of special carriers.

Most of their customers live in closely populated neighborhoods, so Lacky and Grace have full loads, no great mileage expense, and concentrated deliveries.

Benjamin Glassberg, director of county relief, said he did not know how his clients were able to afford the service, but admitted that most of them seemed to prefer the task of raising a quarter to that of hauling home their own potatoes, bread, rice, and other free supplies.

RECOGNIZE 560 WILLKIE CLUBS; MORE FORMING

New York, July 28 [Special].—Five hundred and sixty Willkie for President clubs have been recognized by the Associated Willkie Clubs of America, it was announced today by Oren Root Jr., head of that organization, at the Associated Willkie clubs' headquarters. Several hundred more clubs are in the process of organization.

Four state organizations have been set up. The chairmen are: William H. Harman in Pennsylvania, Phillips Ketchum in Massachusetts, Donald J. Smith in New Jersey, Lucius Robinson Jr. in Connecticut. Haven B. Page is chairman in the District of Columbia.

The Republican national headquarters, for the national committee, is expected to open tomorrow in Terminal building.

A warning against contributions to the Willkie campaign to unauthorized collectors was issued today by F. Trubee Davison, chairman of the united Republican finance committee.

ILLINOIS GUARD HEADS INSPECT TEXAS CAMP SITE

Fly Home in Six Planes; Study Training Problems.

Six planes, flying in formation from Texas, brought back word last night that the Fort Clarke area near the Mexican border will make a fine camp for 20,000 young men from Illinois "if a lot of hard work is done." The young men would include the 10,000 now in this state's national guard, and 10,000 who would be drafted should pending legislation be passed by congress.

At three minute intervals, the six silver planes swooped down and landed in front of the Illinois National Guard hangar at Chicago airport. Out of the last one nimbly climbed Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, commander of the 33d division and attached troops comprising the Illinois guard.

Trip Without Counterpart.

So far as these officers knew, their trip to Texas was without a counterpart in the nation's secondary defense service. Without instruction from Washington, D. C., they had decided to find out without delay what would be ahead of them if congress authorizes the President to mobilize the national guard, and the conscription machinery is started.

At the Texas camp to which the Illinois unit would be assigned, they carefully surveyed the possibilities with regard to the requirements which might suddenly be thrust upon them. Land would be needed—35,000 to 40,000 acres for maneuvers alone, and 35,000 more for other purposes. They talked with local ranchers, who were reported to be ready to lease whatever amount is required.

Artillery practice, rifle practice, trucking facilities, drinking water, sanitary facilities, electricity, recreation—these were a few of the problems looked into.

Meet Army Officers.

The Illinois officers flew to Fort Clarke Friday, devoted Saturday to inspection, and then met with regular army officers under Brig. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright.

"The Fort Clarke area has the makings of a fine camp, but a lot of hard work would have to be done," Gen. Lawton said. "We want to be as ready as possible for whatever comes."

Gen. Lawton attached significance to the manner in which regular army officers received the Illinois staff.

Arriving at Defense Goal.

"It proved that we have only one army in the United States," he said. "The regular army's attitude and respect for the National Guard show that changes have been accomplished in the last 20 years and that we are arriving at a goal of national defense—just one army."

The civilian soldiers—Lawton is an attorney in civil life—were in uniform thruout the week-end they contributed to the inspection trip. Regardless of the future, they said, all gained valuable experience by becoming accustomed to flight in army planes. These were North American 0-47's of the 108th observation squadron of the Illinois National Guard, headed by Maj. C. A. McElvain.

BRITISH AIRPLANE REPORTED NEAR; N. Y. ON LOOKOUT

New York, July 28 (AP).—A police guard and federal agents, responding to reports that a British trans-Atlantic plane was en route here from Foynes, Ireland, maintained an all-day vigil today at the New York seaplane base.

Customs inspectors and 32 policemen and detectives left the base at dusk, convinced that the plane, expected to stop over at Montreal, would not arrive before tomorrow.

Police said they had been told by Pan-American Airways that the ship, believed a flying boat, would arrive during the day. It was understood to be a mail and express carrier inaugurating trans-Atlantic service for the British Overseas Airway corporation.

Wind Blows Parked Auto Into Quarry; Girl Drowns

J.S. Embargo on Scrap Iron 'Will Not Hurt Us,' Japs Say

TOKIO, July 29, Monday (AP).—Yakichiro Suma, foreign office spokesman, said today the Japanese government was satisfied that President Roosevelt's oil order of last week was not an embargo against Japan. "Official reports," he said, "confirm the belief the order won't affect us much."

[President Roosevelt on July 25 halted all exports of American oil and scrap metal except under special license. Japan is a heavy user of both.]

GERMAN AIRMEN CLAIM 3 BRITISH WARSHIPS SUNK

Hitler Sees Slovakians About 'New Europe.'

BERLIN, July 28 (AP).—In his lofty retreat in the Bavarian Alps Fuehrer Hitler today laid down rules for his "new order" in southeastern Europe to a fourth set of statesmen from that troubled area, while his military aids brought him reports of new German successes in the battle for England.

Josef Tiso. [dive bombers] had added an auxiliary cruiser, two destroyers, and a 5,000 ton merchantman to the list of ships they have sent to the bottom; that Nazi planes also had bombed Swansea harbor and various airports in Cornwall, and that a German submarine attacking a convoy sank five armed ships totaling 48,000 tons. Among the U-boat's victims was an auxiliary cruiser of 18,000 tons, the Germans said.

But foreign conjectures that Hitler was about to launch his long heralded invasion of England in the next day or two were discouraged by authorized sources here. They said they were "unaware" of the reported stoppage of railway traffic between occupied and unoccupied France, which had aroused widespread interest as a possible tipoff to mobilization of trains and troops for the grand assault.

Sees Three Slovakians.

Ushered into the spacious hall of the Fuehrer's mountain home this time were three Slovak political leaders: President Josef Tiso, Prime Minister Vojtech Tuka, and Propaganda Minister Sano Mach.

They followed in successive days the statesmen of Rumania and Bulgaria in the series of pilgrimages to the now dominating figure of Europe. Previously the representatives of Hungary had participated in political conferences with the German leaders.

What rôle Slovakia is to play in the grand reshuffle of the Balkans still is uncertain, but there have been near violent arguments between Slovakia and Hungary over border troubles since the disintegration of Czecho-Slovakia more than a year ago.

Germany has acted as a guardian of Slovak independence since then, and Reichs Marshal Hermann Goering's National Zeitung today carried a hint that Hungary might have to take such factors into account in pressing for return of territories she lost in the world war.

Bulgaria's Claim Approved.

The National Zeitung said satisfaction of Bulgaria's claim on Rumania's southern Dobruja was a necessity of the "new order," but added that Hungary [which demands the return of Transylvania from Rumania] will have to "undertake certain reductions" in her ambitions.

It was not clear whether this referred to Transylvania, or to Slovakia, which was under Hungarian rule before the world war and is often shown on maps published in Budapest as "rightfully belonging" to Hungary. The Slovak statesmen spent an hour and a half with Hitler—the shortest visit of any group in the series.

Whatever Hungary does or does not get out of the new deal in southeastern Europe, the National Zeitung made clear Rumania must prepare herself for sacrifice.

Sees "Obvious Injustices."

"The obvious injustices done to Hungary in the founding of [postwar] Rumania," the paper said, "constitute a continual cause of dangerous tensions and must be eliminated."

In addition to the sinking of three British war vessels and a merchantman, German planes also were credited with damaging another destroyer and two merchant ships so seriously that they could be regarded as lost.

Five British planes were reported shot down over the channel. Two German planes were acknowledged to be missing. The Germans charged that an unarmed rescue plane marked with the Red Cross was shot down by an English plane during an attempt to save the crew of a plane which had fallen into the sea.

Italian Towns Bombed

Map locates three Italian cities which were targets of British bombers.

3 ITALIAN TOWNS REPORTED HIT BY BRITISH BOMBERS

Raiders Attack Udine, Pola, and Trieste.

SUSAK, Jugo-Slavia, July 28 (AP).—Heavy cannonading rattled windows in this border town opposite Italian Fiume early today.

Reforts from across the frontier said British planes had bombed Trieste, Pola, and Udine. Pola is a principal naval base.

It also was reported that two British submarines which had entered the upper Adriatic were sunk by an Italian warship.

Bombard Fleet Units.

ROME, July 28 (AP).—The Italian high command reported today successful land forays against the British in East Africa, "effective bombardment" of British fleet units in the eastern Mediterranean, and new attacks on Alexandria, Egypt, and Malta.

The daily communique said some prisoners, including a group commander, were captured along with four armored cars in an attack on a British armored caravan beyond the Libyan-Egyptian border.

"Serious losses" were reported inflicted on a strong British detachment at Bumbade, on the border of Ethiopia and Anglo-Egyptian Sudan where the Blue Nile curves northward.

The communique made no mention of the capture of Kurmuk, British frontier customs station 50 miles below this point, as reported yesterday by the military correspondent of the newspaper Il Giornale d'Italia.

Destroy 4 Italian Planes.

VALETTA, Malta, July 28 (AP).—Four Italian planes were destroyed without British losses during various engagements off Malta today, it was announced officially.

Port of Aden Raided

ADEN, July 28 (AP).—An Italian air raid on Aden in the Red Sea area today slightly damaged one merchant ship and killed one crewman.

1,000 Attend Memorial Rites for Italo Balbo

More than 1,000 members of Italian societies attended memorial services in Holy Name cathedral yesterday for Marshal Italo Balbo, who was killed on aerial war duty on the Libyan front on June 28. Ceremonies were held later at the Balbo shaft, near 15th street and the lake front in Grant park. Balbo commanded the historic massed flight of 24 Italian planes to A Century of Progress in Chicago in 1933.

apply local laws, coördinating them with the objectives of this convention, but it may adopt in addition those decisions necessary to solve situations concerning which no local laws exist.

"SIXTH—In all that concerns commerce and industry the American nations shall enjoy equal conditions and the same benefits, and the administrator never shall create a situation of privilege for himself or his compatriots or for any particular nations. Liberty of economic relations with all countries on a basis of reciprocity shall be maintained.

"SEVENTH—The natives of the region shall participate as citizens in the public administration and tribunals of justice with no other consideration than that of competence.

Protect Acquired Rights.

"EIGHTH — Insofar as possible rights of any kind shall be governed by local laws and customs, acquired rights to be protected in conformity with such laws.

"NINTH—Forced labor shall be abolished in regions where it exists.

"TENTH—The administration will provide means to diffuse public education in all grades with the double aim of promoting the wealth of the region and better living conditions of the people, especially in regard to public and individual hygiene, and preparation of the exercise of political autonomy in the shortest time.

"ELEVENTH—The natives of the region under administration shall have their own organic charter, which the administration shall establish, consulting the people in whatever way possible.

Submit Annual Report.

"TWELFTH — The administration shall submit an annual report to the inter-American organization charged with control of the administered regions, on the manner in which it carried out its mission, attaching accounts and measures adopted during the year in said region.

"THIRTEENTH—The organization to which the preceding article refers shall be authorized to take cognizance of petitions which inhabitants of the region transmit through the intermediary of the administration with reference to the operation of the provisional administration. The administration shall remit, along with these petitions, such observations as it considers convenient.

"FOURTEENTH—First the administration shall be authorized for a period of three years at the termination of which, and in case of necessity, it shall be renewed for successive periods of not longer than a decade.

"FIFTEENTH—Expenses incurred in the exercise of the administration shall be covered by revenues from the administered region, but in case these are insufficient the deficit shall be covered by the administering nation or nations.

Establish a Commission.

"SIXTEENTH—There shall be established a commission which shall be called the 'Inter-American Commission of Territorial Administration' and shall be composed of one representative for each of the states which ratify this convention, and it shall be the international organization to which the convention refers.

"Any country which ratifies it [the convention] may call the first meeting indicating the most convenient city. The commission shall elect a president, complete its organization and fix a definite headquarters. Two-thirds of its members shall constitute a quorum and two-thirds of the members present may adopt agreements.

A Provisional Administration.

"SEVENTEENTH — The commission is authorized to establish a provisional administration over regions to which the present convention applies; it also is authorized to install the said administration so that it will be operated by the number of states which will be determined according to the cases and to legalize its execution in terms of the preceding articles.

"EIGHTEENTH—The present convention will be opened for signatures of the American republics in Havana and shall be ratified by the high contracting parties in accordance with their constitutional procedures. The secretary of state of the Republic of Cuba shall transmit, as soon as possible, authentic copies certified to the various governments to obtain ratifications. Instruments of ratification shall be deposited in the archives of the Pan American union in Washington, which shall notify the signatory governments of said deposit; such notification shall be considered as exchange of ratifications.

"NINETEENTH—The present convention shall be effective when two-thirds of the American states shall have deposited their respective instruments of ratification."

"ACT OF HAVANA" TEXT

The text of the "Act of Havana" on the provisional administration of European colonies and possessions in America, to be acted upon today by the Pan American conference of foreign ministers [omitting the preamble which recites that the status of territories on the continent belonging to European powers is a cause of deep concern for all governments of the American republics and that as a result of the European war the conquest of said territories may be attempted, thus imperiling the essence and form of American institutions], follows:

Recites the Reservations.

"When American islands or areas at present held by non-American nations are in danger of becoming the subject matter of exchange of territories or sovereignty, the American republics, having in mind the security of the continent and the opinion of the inhabitants of such islands or areas, may establish regions of provisional administration, under the following reservations:

"A—That as soon as the reasons making such measures necessary shall cease, and provided it is not detrimental to the safety of the American republics, and under the principles which the present declaration reaffirmed, that the peoples of this continent have a right to self-determination, such territories shall either be organized into autonomous territories, should they appear capable of constituting or maintaining themselves in such a state, or be reinstated to the former situation;

Dual Purpose of Plan.

"B—That the areas alluded to shall temporarily be placed under the provisional administration of the American republics and that this administration shall be exercised with the dual purpose of contributing to the safety and defense of the continent and for the economic, political, and social benefit of the said areas and it hereby resolves:

"To create an emergency committee made up of one representative each of the American republics, said committee to be considered constituted from the date of the appointment of two-thirds of its members who shall be appointed by the governments of the said republics within the shortest time possible.

"That said committee shall meet at the request of any of the signers of the resolution.

Provides for Emergency.

"That if prior to the date on which the agreement entered into at the present consultative meeting goes into effect it should become necessary, as a measure of imperious emergency, to apply its provisions to the end of safeguarding the peace of the continent, taking into account, in addition, the opinion of the inhabitants of any of the regions herein above alluded to, this committee shall assume the administration of the attacked or menaced region, acting under the provisions of the aforesaid convention or agreement. As soon as this agreement goes into effect the authority and functions exercised by the committee shall be transferred to the inter-American territorial administration.

"If the necessity for emergency action be deemed so urgent as to make it impossible to await action of the committee, any of the American republics, individually or jointly with others, shall have the right to act in a manner required for its defense or the defense of the continent.

"Should such a situation arise, the acting republic or republics shall immediately submit the matter to the committee, in order that the latter may consider the actions taken, and adopt adequate measures."

HOLIDAYS PERIL EVACUATION IN BRITAIN AGAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—With the summer holidays again threatening to break down the evacuation scheme, Malcolm MacDonald, minister of health, tonight urged parents to leave children in safety zones during the vacation period. He warned that August might be the most dangerous month of the war and emphasized that London particularly, tho not yet bombed, was not immune. Ignoring the government's pleas, however, hundreds of evacuees were reported heading homeward from reception areas to spend the school holidays with their parents.

German Envoy in Havana Gets Dynamite Threat

HAVANA, Cuba, July 28 [Special].—The German legation reported to the Cuban police tonight that Stephan Tauchnitz, German chargé d'affaires, had received an anonymous letter threatening to dynamite the legation unless he left with his staff before Aug. 1. The letter, said to have been signed "Rema De Cuba," was turned over to the Cuban state department by Tauchnitz without comment. The German legation has a one man guard, which Tauchnitz was reported to wish increased.

British Public Contributes $8,194,084 to Buy Planes

LONDON, July 29, Monday (AP).—Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, announced today that the public has contributed £2,048,521 [approximately $8,194,084] to buy warplanes for Britain.

SPAIN HINTS IT COVETS A SLICE OF SOUTHERN U. S.

Propaganda Poster Puts Philippines In, Too.

BY MAURICE ENGLISH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, July 28.—Portions of southern and southwestern United States as well as the Philippine Islands were added today to the unofficial list of Spain's imperial ambitions in a series of posters which were plastered on the walls along Madrid's main streets.

The most striking feature of the propaganda placards was a small map of the world showing red lines radiating out from Spain to Gibraltar, Africa and the Philippine Islands. The United States was represented in the map in black and the region bordering Mexico, including Texas, New Mexico, Arizona as well as Louisiana and Mississippi were marked with red bars.

"An Unfinished Enterprise."

The map was not accompanied by any explicit commentary but above it in red letters was the following extract from Generalissimo Francisco Franco's speech of July 18:

"We have made one step forward in the battle but only one step forward. We have an unfinished enterprise. We have not completed the revolution."

In the lower left of the poster appeared a cartoon depicting King George VI. of Great Britain and President Roosevelt riding in a carriage—with Mr. Roosevelt holding the reins, the carriage drawn by Neville Chamberlain, Lord Halifax and Prime Minister Winston Churchill. The road over which the carriage was passing was paved with skulls labeled Poles, Norwegians, Dutch, French, and Belgians.

Gesture to South America.

Under the cartoon was the following statement, headed "America:"

"Spanish America, which always has frustrated in Pan-American conferences the stupid Yankee lie about democratic solidarity, has really fought against the rapacity of North American capital.

"Once again in the Havana conference the Spanish American peoples have placed the United States, with its ambitious doctrine, in ridiculous posture. They have delivered another victorious battle against dollar tyranny and proclaimed a desire to remain faithful to the destiny which they received from Spain and which Spain will come again to indicate to them."

Fourth of a Series.

The propaganda posters, the fourth of a series called the "voice of the people" to appear on the capital's walls, attacked the democracies and demanded a rôle for Spain in the creation of a new Europe by the axis powers.

Apart from attacks against the United States, the posters contained standard demands for Gibraltar and a slice of Africa.

BROADCASTS ON W-G-N FROM GERMANY BACK AFTER BEING HALTED

Broadcasts from Germany over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system, which were halted July 19 after the Don Lee network of 31 west coast stations cut off a speech by Adolf Hitler, were resumed last night.

An announcement in New York by Fred Weber, general manager of the Mutual network, said: "The arrangement was effected with the German broadcasting authorities to maintain Mutual's policy of making available all world-wide news and program material for acceptance or rejection by members and affiliated stations comprising the Mutual network of radio stations."

It was explained that the Don Lee network can take the broadcasts if it wishes to present them or can refuse them if it so desires. No concessions were asked from Mutual by the German authorities and none were given. The first program on the resumed broadcasts from Germany was a commentary last night by Sigrid Schultz, correspondent for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in Berlin.

WAR SHOWS BEST WEAPON AGAINST PLANE IS PLANE

Ground Fire Improves, but Bags Few Raiders.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, July 28.—Ten months of warfare have shown that antiaircraft fire has been greatly perfected since the last war but still is incapable alone of keeping off hostile warplanes.

No official figures are available yet on the comparative losses of aircraft from antiaircraft guns and fighter planes, but during several phases of the fighting since May 10 communiques of the Germans, French and English usually have left the impression that most planes were brought down by fighter planes rather than antiaircraft fire. A competent authority has estimated the losses roughly at eight shot down by fighters to one by cannon fire.

Circumstances of fighting with the new diving technique in bombing have, of course, made planes more vulnerable to ground fire. During the fighting on the western front communiques often stated that soldiers with rifles and machine guns were able to bring down low flying planes.

Bombing Accuracy Improves.

On the other hand, bombing accuracy has improved. In many raids bombing planes hit objectives with comparative ease from heights almost out of range of the best antiaircraft guns.

That was the case in a raid on Paris at 2 o'clock the afternoon of June 3 by planes flying at an altitude of at least 20,000 feet. This is probably beyond the range of the best antiaircraft guns so that all the gunners could do was to keep up a barrage which prevented the planes from descending.

Two hundred planes, roughly, attacked Paris. The French claimed 25 were brought down, 16 by fighters and the others possibly by antiaircraft fire when the attackers were trying to escape.

During the last war antiaircraft guns were of 75 mm. caliber. Guns of 90 mm., capable of shooting 10,000 to 15,000 feet, now are employed.

Technique Improved.

The technique of firing and of target finding also have been perfected and at the same time the range has been increased. The Germans were credited with having antiaircraft guns which needed no sighting but which automatically were directed at the attacker by the noise of its motor.

The fact that no large scale attacks have yet been made on London probably also attests to the increased efficiency of antiaircraft defenses, especially the employment of longer range guns capable of shooting higher into the air.

This correspondent has witnessed many raids and has seen antiaircraft guns in action many times but does not recall any direct hits from the ground.

Artillery Only Auxiliary Arm.

In the famous Bordeaux raid on June 19 antiaircraft fire was effective only as a barrage, as the raid took place at night. No figures are yet available on the number of enemy planes brought down.

Paris was defended by three antiaircraft batteries. They were sent to Bordeaux after June 14 and later to Toulon.

The conclusion seems to be that artillery still is only an auxiliary arm against bombers and that the time has not yet arrived when an antiaircraft gunner can register direct hits on his quarry in any great numbers. But he can lay a curtain of fire across the skies which prevents attacking bombers from attaining their objectives.

Out of the Past

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Alexander Lips, Arlington Heights fire chief, as the well dressed fire chief of a former era at yesterday's field day.

The volunteer fire departments of 20 north suburban towns had a miniature thrill show of their own yesterday afternoon at the first annual field day of the Cook County Firemen's Suburban association in Linnewoods, Morton Grove,

Rescues and fire fighting techniques were demonstrated on a three story drill tower. Rekindled flames which poured smoke from the paneless windows were extinguished again and again by various methods and equipment. Old time hand pumps and antique fire engines were on display in a parade thru the village which preceded the exhibition. Herbert A. Dilg, president of Morton Grove, and Harry K. Rodgers, chief, were the principal speakers. Water fights between the various town forces concluded the outing in the evening.

FRANCE BEGINS SHAKEUP OF ITS SCHOOL SYSTEM

Will Place Emphasis on Practical Subjects.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, July 28.—In the long reconstruction struggle which this country is commencing, a heavy rôle has been assigned to Emile Mireaux, minister of public instruction, who has begun the task of reshaping educational values, reforming methods of teaching and changing personnel and instructors in French schools of all categories.

Emile Mireaux, Education Minister.

Mireaux was former director of the famous French newspaper Le Temps. Marshal Henri Philippe Petain took him into his cabinet after the national assembly voted revision of the constitution.

The basic idea in the educational reforms will be the "de-intellectualizing" of the French, teaching and making instruction more practical and developing character rather than scholars. Sport and a taste for the open air will be inculcated rather than the principles of rationalism.

"Country, Family, and Work."

"We must put into the schools the ideas we wish to emphasize in the new life of the nation, namely, country, family, and work," Mireaux said.

Mireaux already has made one sweeping reform in abolishing the central consultative committee which allegedly had an undue influence in influencing the personnel of the teaching staffs in primary schools politically. The opinion is held that radicalism and anti-national tendencies were spread thru such influence.

Under the new educational reforms, in secondary courses, the students will be equipped for practical tasks and professional work in craftsmanship and agriculture.

Plans to Move Many Schools.

Mireaux plans to move many schools to the country. At the base of the system will be obligatory primary education for all children from 6 to 13.

Those who pass to the secondary schools will choose between professional preparation in the sciences, aiming at a vocation, or courses aiming at a university degree and training for law, medicine or civil administration.

The most radical reform envisaged is the probable abolishment of courses in philosophy in the French Lycees, or secondary schools. In general, the aim of the ministry of public instruction is to create the framework of a new élite or ruling class which, it is thought, will face entirely new problems.

ARGENTINE CHIEF AT HAVANA WILL SEE ROOSEVELT

HAVANA, Cuba, July 28 (AP).—Leopoldo Melo, Argentine delegate to the conference of American foreign ministers, indicated today he plans to go to Washington to see President Roosevelt after his duties here are ended.

Melo, chief Argentine representative in arranging a compromise on the Pan-American attitude toward European possessions in the Western hemisphere, told reporters:

"I have a letter from President Ortiz [of Argentina] to deliver to President Roosevelt, and I certainly will do everything possible to arrange a trip to Washington after the close of this conference."

POLICE BATTLE I. R. A. SUSPECTS IN ULSTER, SEIZE 18

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 28 (AP).—Eighteen men rounded up in midnight to dawn raids today in county Armagh were booked as members of the outlawed Irish Republican army. Some of those detained were suspects in attacks last Thursday on the Armagh city bank. Several of the men trapped at Cullymanna, south of Armagh, fought a running gun battle with police. Three Thompson machine guns, 11 revolvers, and two army rifles with 2,000 pounds of ammunition were seized.

BISHOP TO OFFER ANTI-WAR RALLY OPENING PRAYER

The Rev. William Emery Hammaker, Methodist bishop of Denver, will offer the opening prayer at the antiwar mass meeting in Soldiers' field next Sunday, it was announced last night. The meeting, sponsored by the Citizens' Keep America Out of War committee, will begin at 2:30 p. m. Admission will be free.

A statement of Bishop Hammaker was made public by the committee last night. In it he said: "I am utterly convinced that involvement in war would in all probability lead us to complete dictatorship and totalitarianism, from which emergence would not be easy."

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.] will be principal speakers at the meeting.

JAPANESE SEIZE ELEVEN BRITISH BUSINESS MEN

Reasons a Mystery; Reporter Held.

SHANGHAI, July 29 [Monday], (AP).—It was learned from private advices today that 11 prominent British business men in Japan have been arrested by Japanese authorities in five cities. Previous reports had listed nine men.

All were said to have been arrested Saturday in raids made without warning. The Japanese censorship suppressed all news on the subject. Reasons for the arrests were not disclosed, but British circles believed that pressure from Germany on Japan was at least partly responsible.

In addition to the business men, it also was disclosed that Melville James Cox, Rueters [British news agency] correspondent, had been taken into custody in Tokio for "military reasons."

Nine Are Identified.

Only 9 of the 11 business men were identified. They were:

C. H. N. James, retired naval officer and chief representative in Japan of the British Federation of Industries; J. R. Drummond, F. M. Jonas, E. W. James, J. F. James, two brothers named Ringer, a Mr. Holder, president of the British association, and H. C. MacNaughton, honorary Greek consular representative.

C. H. N. James was said to have been arrested at Tokio, Drummond, Jonas, Holder and E. W. James at Kobe, J. F. James and one of the Ringer brothers at Simonoseki, MacNaughton at Osaka, and the other Ringer brother at Nagasaki. E. W. James returned from Canada only last Friday.

British Plan Protest.

LONDON, July 28 (AP).—Authoritative British quarters tonight confirmed Shanghai reports that eleven British business men have been arrested in Japan. It is expected that Britain will make diplomatic representations to the Tokio government.

FRENCH PROTEST BRITISH FLYERS' LEAFLET 'RAIDS'

Driven Off from Morocco by Antiaircraft Fire.

VICHY, France, July 28 (AP).—The French government sent an "energetic" protest to Britain today against the dropping of propaganda leaflets by British aircraft over France and French possessions in North Africa.

Both here and at Rabat, French Morocco, the British craft were driven off by antiaircraft batteries.

The British were said to have dropped millions of leaflets here and at Rabat on Friday night, and over North Africa again this morning. The leaflets were declared injurious to the régime of Marshal Hanri Philippe Petain.

[British Minister of Information Alfred Duff Cooper told the house of commons last Wednesday that Britain would continue her leaflet raids over French territory, "to convey to the French people the real facts of the situation"—particularly facts concerning seizure of the French fleet.]

Charge "Foreign Intrusion."

The French press, without calling Britain by name, joined almost unanimously in charging that "foreign intrusion" into French national politics brought on the war with Germany and its "disastrous outcome."

"Foreign influence in France began with the sanctions affair of 1935 and the sabotage of Anglo-Italian relations the same year," declared an inspired article in Le Journal, referring to British championed economic penalties clamped on Italy during her Ethiopian conquest.

This influence, Le Journal added, continued with opposition to "any serious coördination" of French-German relations.

"It becomes more and more clear that the decision to declare war was not of French origin, since any one could see the total weight of the struggle would fall on France."

Commenting on this article, Le Journal said in an editorial "The moment has come to explain to the country that the intrusion of foreign influences in its policies was incontestably the origin of defeat."

Tried to Halt Decision.

After defeat of France made the armistice obligatory, the newspaper said "certain personages tried to halt the decision dictated by circumstances."

"We didn't know how to guard ourselves from foreign influences," the newspaper confessed. "Legions of termites undermined the foundations of our national home."

The government moved to conserve its meager supplies of gasoline and coal today. Electricity will be used as a substitute wherever possible to run factories, heat homes, and operate small mechanical contrivances.

BRITAIN SEVERELY SHAKEN BY WAR'S ECONOMIC BLOWS

Loses Much of Former Outside Income.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—As the eleventh month of the war nears an end, it is apparent the economic structure on which the well being if not the existence of 45 million persons in the United Kingdom depends has been shaken even more than in the last war.

Even in peacetime this island depended upon imported food supplies and war materials which were paid for by exports of manufactured goods and outside sources of wealth—shipping, dividends on foreign investments, services such as insurance and other socalled invisible income. This outside income more than compensated for the unfavorable trade balance which since the last war has become chronic.

Blow after blow has hit this economic structure and tho each was not catastrophic in itself the accumulation of them is having the effect of a bastinado.

One Third of Every Dollar.

Before this war, it was estimated that one third of every dollar spent in transporting cargoes and passengers over the world's seas rolled into British coffers. This immense income was reduced to a negligible figure when the British government took over all British shipping to concentrate on the war.

At least 20 per cent of the total British trade was killed by Adolf Hitler's conquests in Europe. Besides robbing the British of sources of vital products, such as iron, bauxite, pulpwood, timber and food, they have deprived Britain of markets for goods from which foreign exchange is obtainable to pay for necessary imports.

Income from foreign investments also was reduced enormously at a time when this was more important than at any time in history.

Continued harassing by Japan as well as the war there has cut enormously the returns on the British $2,000,000,000 investment in China.

Suffer Blow in Mexico.

The Mexican expropriation of British oil properties there also has hurt. Now British investments in Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France, Italy and the Balkans are contributing nothing whatever to British wealth. In all these countries Britain yearly collected tens of millions in insurance premiums. That business has stopped.

The valuation of British oil holdings in Rumania is particularly large but the seizure of the Astra-Romana oil company properties by the Rumanian government last week alone would have created an international scandal a year ago. The British, thru the Royal Dutch company, are said to have controled 40 per cent of the output as well as having considerable investment in other rich properties not yet fully exploited.

The announcement that the Petain government now is considering confiscation of all British property in France on top of all other worries hardly created a ripple in the press here.

All Contribute to Difficulties.

But every one of these measures contributes towards the general economic difficulties. They signify not only a great direct loss—and this possibly is going to enrich the enemy—but deprive thousands of Britishers, heretofore wealthy, of a means of livelihood. Thus they add to the growing national problem of providing not only for food and equipment for a great army, navy, and air force but the means of existence of tens of thousands of civilians ruined, temporarily at least, by the war.

Missing Girl Returns

ELSIE LAMBERT.

Miss Elsie Lambert, 18 years old, 748 North Latrobe avenue, who was reported missing Saturday night, walked into the Warren avenue police station last evening. She laid down a .38 caliber revolver from which two shots had been fired.

She said the gun went off accidentally once, and that she fired it again to see how it sounded. She refused to tell Desk Sergeant George Parker where she had been. Police learned the gun belongs to her father, Albert a watchman. Elsie tackled and brought down a photographer who took her picture. The photographer was unhurt, but the girl received a cut on her head and was taken to County hospital.

Miss Lambert refused to comment on the whereabouts of her friend, Miss Virginia Cafcules, 17, of 3012 Fulton street, who disappeared at the same time. Later, however, Virginia's mother, Mrs. Maude Cafcules, informed police her daughter had been found at the home of an uncle, Harry Cafcules, in the Indiana dunes.

A NONALARMING BURGLAR ALARM TRAPS BURGLAR

Stanley Novak.

Spiteri's drug store at 638 West 26th street had been looted five times when he set to work to catch the next burglar. That was a year ago.

Every night the druggist stretched a thin wire across his store, 18 inches above the floor. The wire was connected with a buzzer in the druggist's bedroom over the store—a buzzer just loud enough to awaken him and not frighten the burglar away.

Early yesterday Spiteri was awakened by a faint buzzing. He tiptoed down the stairs, and in one of the telephone booths he saw a pair of knees sticking out. They were the knees of Stanley Novak, 22 years old, 2812 Bonfield street, a parolee from Joliet penitentiary, where he was sent for burglary.

The druggist slammed the telephone booth's door shut, threw his weight against it, and called his wife. She brought down a gun, and a few minutes later Spiteri turned Novak over to the police.

Wilhelmina Tells Dutch Their War Will Continue

LONDON, July 28 (AP).—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, inaugurating a daily Dutch language broadcast by the British Broadcasting corporation, declared today "the Netherlands will carry on the war until the morrow of a free and happy future dawns for us. The Dutch empire is more closely attached to us in its thinking and feeling than ever before."

LOOT HOME OF JEWELRY.

Mrs. Jeanette Quan reported to police last night that sometime over the week-end burglars took a quantity of jewelry and a shotgun from her apartment at 503 South Central Park avenue. She valued the missing articles at $132.

DIPLOMACY WAR OF WEEK FAVORS ENGLAND'S FOES

Moves in Balkans, Turkey, Far East Aid Hitler.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—While British diplomacy scored minor successes last week getting Spain and Portugal to agree on British control over imports of food and colonial products, concern is felt over diplomatic reverses in the Balkans and the potentialities of the situation in the far east.

Indeed, signs that Japan is swinging further over in foreign policy toward the axis powers, it is reported here today, have impelled the British ambassador to Tokio, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, to demand a clarification of Nippon's intentions.

A frank statement was sought regarding whether it is worth while to continue negotiations for better relations between the two countries and a peaceful solution of the Chinese war.

Britain Told to Wait.

The British request was evaded by the explanation that the new government is reviewing its policy and Britain therefore must wait for an answer.

Disturbing were reports that Japan was maintaining its partial blockade of Hongkong, and Tokio was "taking a grave view" of an incident in the Dutch East Indies when a Japanese merchant supposedly was assaulted by Dutch soldiers. The Hongkong action is designed by Japan to halt arms imports to China and compel British agreement on definite stoppage of war materials over the Burma road. Japanese sensitivity over the Dutch East Indies incident is feared to be creating another grievance that may lead to further trouble.

Rumania Under Hitler Thumb.

Since King Carol of Rumania tore up the British guarantee of territorial integrity when Russia marched into Bessarabia, British relations with Rumania have steadily gone from bad to worse, with Rumania now entirely under tutelage of the axis powers.

Negotiations now going on with Balkan government representatives in Germany and Rome are interpreted as an effort of the axis powers to stabilize the Balkans and prevent a blowup at a time when war efforts are concentrated on England.

Russia is now believed to have been informed of the Hitler-Mussolini recommended solution of Hungarian and Bulgarian territorial claims against Rumania, especially since Adolf Hitler in his recent speech declared that Germany and Russia have reached an understanding as to their spheres of influence.

Hit by Oil Seizures.

Rumania's confiscation of British owned oil properties, which now will be at the disposal of Germany and Italy, is a hard blow, especially since this has been followed up with the further seizure of British oil barges on the Danube.

The British today protested to Bucharest concerning the oil confiscations after seizing three Rumanian ships at Port Said by way of reprisal.

Signing of a Turko-German commercial treaty was at first discounted as unimportant and even unfavorable to Germany. But reports that the Turkish wheat crop is better than normal, as against an anticipated 70 per cent harvest in Europe, puts a new light on the pact. It may prove another small loophole in the hoped for airtight economic blockade against Germany. Little wheat can be expected by Germany from the Balkans.

News from Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, and France lend some strength to the original British predictions that famine will strike at her foes this winter.

DESIGN CONTEST PRAISED ANEW IN GARMENT FIELD

Retail, Wholesale Leaders Laud Fashion Drive.

New praise for THE TRIBUNE'S nation-wide contest to develop and encourage American style for American women came during the week-end from two leaders in Chicago's retail and wholesale centers.

David Mayer Jr. of Maurice L. Rothschild's and president of the State Street council, and Irving Parsons, managing director of the Chicago Wholesale Marketing council, declared the project is worthy of national coöperation and congratulated THE TRIBUNE for launching it at this time.

The contest, which is open to every resident of the United States, grew out of the capture of Paris, where since the days of Marie Antoinette the world's fashions have been created. During the last war, style designing got its first real start in this country.

An Opportunity for America.

Now, with Paris vanquished, many believe that her position as fashion arbiter may be lost forever. They believe also that American designers should seize their opportunity. Designers of the winning models in the contest will receive $7,500 in prizes: First, $3,000; second, $2,000, and third, fourth, and fifth, $500 each. In addition, there will be 20 awards of $50 each.

Winners of the contest—which closes Aug. 15—will be lifted from possible obscurity and made famous thru exploitation by the press and radio. The winning creations will become the property of THE TRIBUNE and will be sold, the profits going to The Chicago Tribune Charities Inc., for charitable distribution.

Commenting upon the competition, Mr. Mayer said:

"THE TRIBUNE always has been civic minded; the All-Star football games, the Music Festivals, the Golden Gloves, the Tribune Swim, the Silver Skates, and now, on top of all these and many others comes a new one—The Tribune contest to Encourage the designing of American styles for American women.

Offers Full Coöperation.

"It's a great idea and deserves the support of every one. You can certainly count on our coöperation."

Mr. Parsons, after offering full cooperation of the wholesale council, continued:

"Not only is this project feasible and timely, but it is certainly in the best interests of all America to develop all latent talents, especially creative talents which are here in this vast country.

"There is certainly enough ingenuity, talent, creative ability, and initiative here, waiting for expression, to offset any lack this country may temporarily find by not being able to draw from European countries in these fields for the present and probably for some time to come.

"THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE should be congratulated upon the initiative it has shown in this project which, we hope, will prove to be the first of many in this direction."

Style Shows to Open

Quilted costume suit for fall which will be shown at 10th anniversary Apparel Markets opening today in Merchandise Mart.

What the ladies will wear when autumn rolls around will be on display at the 10th anniversary apparel markets opening today at the Merchandise Mart, and in the fashion displays opening at the Morrison hotel under the sponsorship of Style Exhibitors, Inc. The shows, providing retailers with an opportunity to choose their fall wares, will continue to Aug. 10 and 9, respectively.

The patriotic note is apparent in the new modes. Many costumes and dresses will be shown in red, white and blue. American made clothes will be featured by exhibitors. New wrinkles in fall coat designs include a quilted coat with matching dress, and coats with zippers running from neck to calf.

Style shows will be held tomorrow night, Aug. 5, and Aug. 7, with 75 mannequins modeling the latest clothes.

SIX YOUTHS DIE, SIX INJURED IN HEAD-ON CRASH

One Speedometer Jams at 75 Miles Per Hour.

Richland Center, Wis., July 28 [Special].—Six young persons were killed and six were injured, two so seriously they are not expected to live, when two cars crashed head-on early today near Muscoda, 12 miles south of Richland Center. The speedometer of one car was jammed at 75 miles an hour.

Map locates scene of accident.

The dead were Harvey Martin Jr., 20 years old, Lone Rock, driver of one car; Gerand Knoble, 20, Boscobel, driver of the other car; Donald Barry, 21, Richland Center; Fred McGinley, 20, Richland Center; Ruby Edgerley, 20, Gotham, and Eileen Hooks, 20, Boscobel.

The injured are Ardith and Audrey Knoble, 16 and 18, sisters of the dead driver; Elaine Stenner, 17, Mt. Hope; Charlotte Hardy, 16, Lone Rock; Milton Hooks, 21, Boscobel, brother of Eileen; and Kenneth Kolman, 20, Boscobel.

Two Critically Injured.

The injured are in the Richland Center hospital. Officials of the hospital doubted that Ardith Knoble and Elaine Stenner could live thru the night. The four others were reported to have good chances for recovery.

According to stories told by the survivors, Martin had driven Ruby Edgerley, Charlotte Hardy, Barry, and McGinley to Muscoda for the evening. They were driving east on highway 60 toward Gotham to take Miss Edgerley home when the two cars collided.

Of the five in Martin's car, only Charlotte Hardy survived. Her injuries are not serious.

Front Seat Occupants Killed.

Knoble, with a party of six in his car, was driving west, having been in Spring Green to meet a train. His party included his sisters, Miss Stenner, Miss Hooks, her brother, and Kolman.

Knoble and Miss Hooks, who lost their lives, were in the front seat. The others, who were in the rear seat, included Ardith Knoble and Miss Stenner.

TEST YOUR HORSE SENSE

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answer which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 21.

1. If you slipped and broke your patella, it would mean you fell on your Knee Head Hip Shoulder.
2. If you received a circular letter, would you expect it to be Square Round Rectangular Oval.
3. When an auto manufacturer goes out of business, the cars bearing his name which are still on the roads are usually called Trampe Vagabonds Jaloppies Orphans.
4. When a certain operatic star told her audience she was going to sing her Swan Song that night, she meant she was going to Honor the Newlyweds Imitate Waterfowl Quit the Stage Divorce Her Husband.
5. The ratio of registered motor vehicles in the U. S. A. per person, expressed in round numbers, is 1:2 1:4 1:6 1:8.
6. Experienced motorists know that in going down a mountain, they should leave their cars in gear so that the compression will help brake or retard their speed. But a certain greenhorn driver, with his wife and three children in the car with him, decided to coast down the mountain. Soon his auto had reached 40 miles per hour and its momentum was increasing. He applied the brakes in desperation, but they wouldn't hold. And he couldn't put the car back in gear. On his right was a rocky wall. On the left the road dropped into a precipice 500 feet deep. A few hundred yards ahead was a horseshoe turn. What should the driver do, besides pray?

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

FATHER KILLED IN AUTO CRASH; TWO SONS HURT

William L. Gorman, 55 years old, was killed yesterday when the car in which he was riding was wrecked in a collision at Pulaski road and 122d street, west of Blue Island. He lived at 12600 Greenwood avenue, Blue Island.

Seven other persons were injured in the accident, among them Gorman's sons, Kennth, 25, who was driving, and Robert, 13. The driver of the other car was Jack Rosen of 1200 South Kedvale avenue. All the injured were taken to St. Francis hospital in Blue Island.

Isadore Hirsch, 54, of 1808 North Sedgwick avenue, a WPA watchman, died in St. Luke's hospital of injuries incurred May 26 when he was hit by an auto at Clark street and Belden avenue. The driver was William Calamori, 2839 Burling street.

Father Joseph Carton, 37 years old, of St. Matthew's church, 3040 Walnut street, was injured seriously last night when his automobile crashed into a safety island in front of 5906 North Clark street. He suffered a possible skull fracture and his left hand was severed. He was taken to Edgewater hospital.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 478 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 361 were killed in Chicago, where 12,962 were injured in the same period.

RAIDERS VAINLY HUNT ELUSIVE SLOT MACHINES

Police of three county and two state highway stations reported yesterday they had observed no slot machines in Cook county and therefore, of course, none had been confiscated.

The machines go up or down in response to telephonic advice, tavern owners said. They presume but say they couldn't prove that the "word" emanates from William R. Skidmore, the reputed fixer for city gamblers. Skidmore is awaiting trial on a charge of income tax evasion.

State's Attorney Courtney's office was reported to have sent investigators thruout the county yesterday. Attorney General John E. Cassidy was known to have sent another detail to look for the illegal devices in Chicago's suburbs.

Courtney served notice he would hold Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien responsible for any future slot machine operations.

Two South Side Relief Districts to Be Merged

Two districts of the Chicago Relief administration will be merged today into a new district serving the area south of 63d street and east of State street and south of 65th street and west of State street. The new district, No. 9, replaces the old districts 9 and 10. Its offices will be at 6455 State street. Relief cases in the area bounded by 61st and 63d streets, and State street and Lake Michigan will be transferred to district No. 5.

HANDCUFFED, HE KILLS 1 OFFICER, SHOOTS ANOTHER

Chief of Police Is Slain, Sheriff Wounded.

Olney, Ill., July 28 [Special].—A handcuffed prisoner seized a shotgun and opened fire on Chief William H. Armsey of the Olney police today. Armsey tried to flee, but the prisoner killed him with a second blast. Sheriff Harvey Moore was critically wounded when he ran to Armsey's assistance.

Location of Olney, Ill.

The killer, Wesley Scranton, surrendered without resistance a few minutes later when State Policeman Jesse Shipley went to the Scranton home and ordered him to come out. Feeling ran so high in this Richland county seat that Shipley hurried his prisoner to jail at Newton, in Jasper county.

Released from Asylum.

Scranton, who is 37 years old, is a former factory fireman. He was released about five months ago from the state hospital for the insane at Anna, where he had been confined for about six months. His estranged wife, Erma, recently hired Ezra George as a guard at her home, in fear that Scranton might harm her. Last night Scranton appeared at Mrs. Scranton's home and beat George so severely that the guard had to be taken to a hospital.

Chief Armsey and Sheriff Moore went to the home of Scranton's mother, where Scranton had fled, and arrested him this morning.

The sheriff started out of the house. Chief Armsey followed with his handcuffed prisoner. Suddenly Scranton lunged for his repeating shotgun and killed Armsey despite the handcuffs.

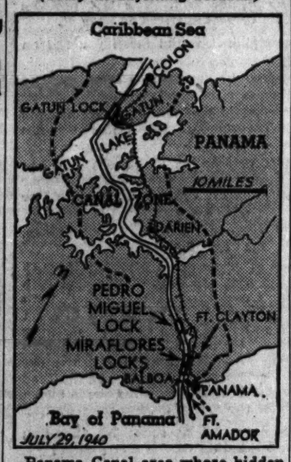
Shot at Close Range.

When Sheriff Moore came to the rescue he was knocked down by a charge of 12 gauge slugs fired at close range. He made his escape and was taken to the Olney sanitarium.

Scranton's mother, Anna, and his son, John, 12 years old, were arrested for questioning. Scranton had escaped from his handcuffs when he was arrested after the shooting, and police said he could not have freed himself unaided.

Test Canal Defenses

(Story in adjoining column.)



Panama Canal area whose hidden antiaircraft batteries gave efficient defense demonstration.

CHIEF OF TRIBUNE GUARDS GAINS AGAINST WOUNDS

Harry P. Walsh, chief of THE TRIBUNE guards, who was shot by three bandits in a gun battle on July 19, continued to improve in the Henrotin hospital yesterday. Walsh was wounded six times by the bandits, who took $9,179 from a Tribune messenger whom he was escorting.

Police are searching for the gunmen. Capt. Thomas Harrison of the Chicago avenue station and Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan believe the bandits were ex-convicts.

THE TRIBUNE has offered a reward of $10,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the men involved. The information will be held confidential and may be turned over either to the police or to THE TRIBUNE. If two or more persons supply information leading to the arrest and conviction of the bandits, the reward will be divided in accordance with the worth of the information. THE TRIBUNE in such a case will be the sole judge.

ARMY IN JUNGLE SPEEDILY SPOTS CANAL ZONE FOES

U. S. Displays Its Defense Against Air Invaders.

WITH AN AIR DEFENSE BATTERY IN THE PANAMA CANAL ZONE, July 28 (AP).—The clanging of a large iron disc set up an unearthly din over the steaming, rain drenched jungle today.

Brig. Gen. Jarman.

Soldiers sprang to their gun posts, hidden in the leafy foliage from prying eyes overhead. Telephones buzzed.

A nimble footed first sergeant scurried on the steep, muddy trail to the range finder station, some distance from the sleek, long snouted guns.

Within five minutes batteries the length and breadth of the Canal Zone knew a plane was approaching.

It turned out to be an innocent army plane out on a solitary reconnaissance spin, but the bustling activity below emphasized the 24 hour watch being maintained over the Panama canal, key to United States naval defenses.

"A Gratifying Test."

This little drama, unfolded before visiting newspapermen at one of the many jungle batteries lining both sides of the canal, was a sample of the full dress rehearsal staged Friday night when "enemy" planes raided the canal.

"A gratifying test of the alertness and efficiency of the antiaircraft defenses of the Canal Zone," was the way Brig. Gen. Sanderford Jarman, commander of the separate coast artillery brigade, summed up this test.

Defense forces up and down the canal played their part with an orderliness and thoroughness born of long practice. Searchlights stabbed the skies the entire length of the 50 odd mile wide isthmus. Within minutes after the first alarm the invaders were spotted, big guns had their range and, theoretically, were firing away.

Surprise to All But Few.

The simulated raid was a surprise to the defense forces except for a few high officials.

Almost daily these batteries go thru the whole process of fending off practice attacks and they are proud of their ability to swing into action in five to eight minutes without advance warning.

The battery went thru every step of defense against an actual raid—following reports of the planes' progress that came in from other gun, searchlight and observation posts; spotting it with complicated range computing apparatus; training its guns by the data thus obtained; and feeding and firing practice ammunition.

Repeated at Each Post.

For this particular battery the maneuver was over in less than half an hour. But across the gun bristling jungle it was repeated over and over at scores of other posts.

It's a lonely existence for these guardians of the canal and a none too easy one. But there were no complaints about the daily dose of quinine, jungle post routine against malaria, or the heavily chlorinated drinking water. The soldiers mentioned only in passing that a boa constrictor was killed last night near the battery headquarters.

This post, like many others, is miles off a hard surfaced highway. To reach it you have to labor over a route slashed, blasted and dug from jungle hillsides, impenetrable without a machete. All are heavily guarded.

How the big guns were brought to their emplacements is a mystery, after you have puffed and perspired over the trails.

A TWO OCEAN WAR FOR A ONE OCEAN FLEET.

Mr. Roosevelt placed oil and scrap metal under export license by an order of July 25. Immediately it was announced that the shipment to Spain had been stopped and that the maritime commission had refused charter to American ships to carry oil to Japan. License was granted for the shipment of scrap to Russia. Stalin is still in good standing.

The British have decided that this is not the time to have trouble in the far east. Mr. Churchill's government has yielded to Japan on the Burma road. For three months it will be closed to supplies for the Chinese. The ministry in London used necessity as a defense of its act against criticism. The injury to the Chinese was not what the British chose to inflict. It was dictated to them by their own national emergencies. They have war enough on their hands.

Secretary Hull rebuked the British for closing the road. He said it was a violation of rights. It stopped lawful trade and aided an aggressor. Presumably the next move in Washington will be to embargo the shipment of scrap and oil to Japan by refusing to issue licenses. Japan is the biggest buyer of American scrap.

Altho representatives of the American nations have been consulting in Havana because they are concerned with new problems of national security, the American fleet, the only available guarantee of that security, is in the Pacific. We are told that the danger is in the Atlantic. We are told it is so great that congress must draft Americans of military age and qualifications. By October the draft boards may be drawing the names of conscripts out of a bowl.

The fleet is in the Pacific when the danger is said to be in the Atlantic. It is in the Pacific because our relations with Japan are bad. They are bad and they are to be made worse. The United States, just when it is affirming that the Atlantic coast line of the western hemisphere is in danger, keeps its fleet in another sea because it does not like what the Japanese are doing to the Chinese. We don't like it and, for more material reasons than ours, the British do not like it. Part of their empire is involved. But the British will act rationally. They will reduce the area of conflict. The Washington government seems determined to spread it wherever possible.

The Japanese foreign office spokesman remarks that the embargo of scrap and oil will be a very serious thing for Japan to consider. Morally America is justified in stopping supplies. Physically is it justified in taking on another enemy at this time? What Japan would not do if Great Britain were not in a fight to the finish at home, if France were not subjugated, if the Netherlands were not overrun, and if the United States were not preparing for the defense of a whole hemisphere and a war with Hitler—what Japan would not do if all these nations were free to act. Japan very likely will do, conditions being what they are.

Somewhere, sometime, the fact might penetrate our foreign policy that half our two ocean fleet is "on order" and that it will not, even if we get it, have a gun on it within five years.

"MOST WILLING TO VOLUNTEER."

Owen D. Young gave the nouse committee on military affairs the views of the American Youth commission on the compulsory military training bill. Mr. Young in his statement said that the men called up faced the "unpleasant but real possibility" that they might see service before their period of training had been completed.

"One of the major reasons for resorting to the selective service draft," he said, "is to avoid concentrating military service among the unemployed boys of 18, 19, 20, 21, and 22 who are most willing to volunteer."

Men at those ages "most willing to volunteer" saved the Union in the first years of the civil war. To conscript only these young men would be unfair, but if there are patriotic youth who would willingly supply all the men who can be trained in the first period why register all male citizens from 21 to 64?

NOTES TO KETCHEMYOUNG.

The letters written by the lady member of the I Am cult to her 10 year old son at boarding school were not, we confess, precisely like those which we have addressed these last few Saturdays to Camp Ketchemyoung. It never occurred to us, for example, to suggest rejoicing now that the prophet "is wielding full ascended power in the octave of light." But then, it must also be confessed, a great many things to write to a small boy have not occurred to us. With considerable regret we have been forced to the conclusion that a wealth of experience in taking the Democrats apart is something less than adequate preparation for this summer's correspondence.

It is possible that the lady cultist's young son may have been somewhat confused by the instruction to rejoice, but then again it may have been just what he wanted to hear from home. We have frequently been astonished at the things small boys rejoice over and almost equally astonished at the things they don't rejoice over. Perhaps a few words about the octave of light would be received with pleasure. At any rate, there is a good deal to be said for an instruction by letter to rejoice. We have thought of a good many instructions and have even incorporated a few but we doubt if any of them was any more welcome than this one.

The letter to the boy, urging him to rejoice, was submitted to a master in chancery to evidence the mother's unfitness for continued custody of her child. It is staggering to think that a parent's fitness may be judged by his letters to his offspring aged 9 or 10. What's more, we don't think it's fair to decide these questions on the basis of one parent's letters. We admit ours have their deficiencies in content and tone, but are Mrs. We's any better?

STATE TRIAL IN FRANCE.

The tragic confusion of France in defeat does not seem to be bettered by the bitterness of factions. It is not improved by the temper which will put Daladier and his associates in government on trial for war guilt. That has the Franco-Spanish touch, as if France had been engaged in civil war and the winners were now to take vengeance on the losers.

The French disaster had its responsible agents. Revelations may disclose not only stupidity but corruption. It also had its causes lying deep in the masses and in their tendencies. But the politicians charged with war guilt were at least acting in line with a policy which had been traditional for more than this generation. France had constructed a protective system of alliances which, when tested, were too frail. It was called upon to honor an obligation. It did so, in association with Great Britain, when it could do Poland no good and itself much harm.

The French did not know the truth; but who tried to tell them? Only a few Frenchmen who were accused of disloyalty and of Hitlerism in consequence. The public man without guilt in France and without guile would be hard to find. The people were fed stories of German weakness, of the rundown German railways, of the untrained army, of the lack of essential supplies. The French were fed everything the Germans could wish them to believe.

Guilt is all over the political map of France. A popular tribunal of justice might give the world a spectacle of governmental incompetency and selfishness which would be exemplary and admonitory to all peoples, but the French trial will present the guilty trying the guilty.

Petain even now resembles Hindenburg in the dotage and selfishness which hastened the ruin of the German republic. And when was Laval ever in the top flight of pure French devotion to selfless patriotism? The French people did not want the war. They did not want to fight it. They didn't know why they should and they didn't.

There is one thing, however, which interests America. Did the French politicians go to war because they had been promised immediate American aid? That's a mystery we'd like to have cleared up for our better understanding of our own secret diplomacy. A war guilt trial may do France no good when it is fragmented and torn by dissensions, but it may have something in it for the United States.

DOVES OF PEACE IN THE CAPITAL.

Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, has resigned to be succeeded by Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson. Johnson said in tendering his resignation that he had no alternative, and Stephen T. Early, White House secretary, explained the appointment of Judge Patterson as following the custom, "since time immemorial," of allowing a cabinet officer to select his assistant.

Early might better have confined himself to the statement that Johnson was out and Patterson in. His mention of custom since time immemorial could hardly fail to direct public memory to the loving kindness that has existed between several of President Roosevelt's cabinet members and their principal assistants.

There was, for example, that rare cordiality that existed between Assistant Secretary Johnson and his recent superior, Secretary Woodring—so rare that they were reputed not to have spoken for the last couple of years.

In the earlier days of the New Deal there was the sympathetic entente between Secretary of State Hull and his all-wise assistant secretary, Raymond Moley. Moley's little volume of true confessions indicates that even the gentle secretary became a trifle irked when he found that the President was carrying on negotiations with Great Britain thru Moley without bothering to inform his secretary of state of them.

Then, at a later date, there were those two apostles of peace and goodwill, Harold Ickes and Charley West, the President's congressional hatchet man. Honest Harold held his undersecretary in such high esteem that he had Charley's desk set out on the sidewalk in front of the Interior building. Maybe that was only a hint that he wanted Charley to come in and sit on his knee, but Charley didn't take it that way.

ARMOR AGAIN?

[Reno Evening Gazette.]

Now it is said that despite what has been described as "progress" in the technique of making war there is possibility that modern military leaders may go back to the practice of providing armor for their fighters. British military authorities are reported to be considering adopting an "armor" devised by a New York man. United States officials are also studying the outfit, which is said to resemble an elaborate baseball chest protector.

An improvement on the bulletproof vest, the "armor" protects the back and sides as well as the front. In tests it is said to have stopped bullets from a Thompson submachine gun, and from a German Mauser pistol at a distance of 25 yards. It is composed of thin layers of secret formula steel separated by narrow strips of thin rubber, and the whole covered with khaki canvas.

Major nations have been experimenting with armor for years. They have been balked, however, by the fact that no outfits resistant to high power rifle bullets could be devised weighing less than an impractical 35 or 40 pounds. This new jacket is said to weigh 15 pounds.

The ne plus ultra of light yet serviceable armor was considered to have been reached about the time the English were driven out of France in 1453. It was forged of thin steel to fit the body and limbs, but it weighed 60 to 70 pounds.

MUCH ADO ABOUT MALTA.

Since the island of Malta is much in the war news, because of its importance as a British stronghold in the Mediterranean and Mussolini's desire to blast it off the map, a few items of Maltese lore may be of interest. Therefore give ear:

Maltese cat: A bluish gray variety of the common domestic cat, probably so-called because of its origin in Malta. Kipling wrote a story called "The Maltese Cat" but it was about a polo pony.

Maltese cross: This was originally the badge of the religious military order of the Knights of Malta, and was formed of a design of four barbed arrowheads, point to point. In adapted and elaborated forms this cross became the badge of many other orders of honor. It may be found, for example, in the Victoria Cross and Order of Merit, of England, and in the Iron Cross of Germany.

Knights of Malta: Their first and formal title was the Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem. They were organized shortly after the First Crusade to protect and manage a hospital for Christian pilgrims and a church in Jerusalem. They developed into a fighting order. In 1310 they captured the island of Rhodes, and made it their headquarters. When expelled by the Turks in 1522 they moved to Malta, which they ruled until 1798, when the island was taken by the French. The organization existed in a shadowy form in Europe and on the island of Malta into the modern era.

Malta fever: A disease which has been traced to microörganisms in the milk of Maltese goats. It was common in the Mediterranean until its origin was clearly proved by Col. David Bruce in 1907. A severe bout of Malta fever is no joke; it may last from four months to two years. If you have an obscure fever and are in the hands of an energetic physician, he will, when everything else has failed, test you for Malta fever even if you never tasted goat's milk.

SCULPTOR OF CHILDHOOD.

(For Mabel Torrey, Chicago artist.)

Obedient to the sculptor's magic call,
Blithe, lovely children come from out the mold
To dwell in lustrous bronze; they greet the fall
Of summer rain, and mark bright spears of gold
Hurled by the sunlight breaking thru; bird-songs
Evoke their echo: nor shall time erase
This captured beauty. Pathos yet belongs
To evanescent childhood's every grace.
Time's weary caravan rolls on, and we,
Thru art's translated beauty, look upon
New wonderment, with eyes unveiled to see
A tender, fleeting chronicle respun.
The Nazarene held those regenerate
Who came as children to His Kingdom's gate.

A florist at Howard and Clark streets painted a sign on the outside of his window: "Glads, 50c." Some wag wiped out one letter, which left only: "Lads, 50c."

This reminds me of the professor who chalked on the blackboard: "The professor will meet his classes at 11 o'clock." When he arrived, the letter "C" had been wiped out, whereupon he himself eliminated the letter "L." C. O. R.

The Shorn Lamb's Start in Life.

May I add a final word about the proverb, "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" [July 13 and 24]?

Wilbur L. Cross, in his magnificent biography of Laurence Sterne, gives the French original as "A brebis tondue Dieu mesure le vent," and cites a volume published in London in 1640 in which George Herbert tried his hand at translating it. Herbert's version was:

"To a close shorn sheep God gives wind by mesure."

First Call for Bachelors' Rebellion.

Dictatorship! That's what we've got! Congress is made up principally of married men, isn't it? All married men are bossed by their wives, aren't they? So look what they've done to the poor bachelors, will you? Conscription! More income tax! And why? Look at the calendar and you'll see why! Because this is leap year, that's why! Injustice! Persecution! Discrimination! Concentration! . . . All right, sergeant, where do I sign?

Uncle Louie.

IN A CROWDED STREET CAR.

She found a scrap of seat up front
And smilingly surveyed the crowded car,
"Thank you," she said and nodded her white head,
"Its been a longish day, I've been quite far—
Out west to see a friend. We had such fun,"
The old eyes laughed, "But now it's good to sit."
She chatted of her day to others near,
Then reached and tapped a woman's bag, "You knit?"
And eagerly discussed the newest stitch:
A thin girl moved up closer, lost her frown,
Worn ragged nerves relaxed and people smiled,
Forgetting for a space the wear of town,
The air was full of simple friendliness,
It swept away the drabness, brought a wave
Of warmth, of quietness and peace,
She was so gay, so old, somehow so brave.
The car became her home and they her guests,
She welcomed them with easy, kindly ways,
Touched light with healing hands their tired eyes
And gave them strength to face the crowded days.

Putting George Washington in His Place.

The debunking of our historic idols goes on space. Now we discover that for years the country has lavished admiration on an unworthy object, the late George Washington. After pretended sacrifices at Valley Forge and Trenton and as President what, upon the expiration of his second term, did this slothful fellow do? Without a single sleepless night of conscientious struggle, callously he abandoned the new nation to its fate, and deserted it for the lazy ease of Mount Vernon.

WHEN "OLD FOLKS" BECOME QUEER.

As we grow older we understand that muscles are likely to weaken, joints to become less flexible, and wrinkles to announce themselves [due to the absorption of fat beneath the skin]. But we may fail to realize that the nervous system is subject to decay. Nevertheless, we seem to expect that its power will be retained in smooth working order. Unfortunately, as a part of the ageing process, every function of the body becomes less alert. Even opinions become more fixed, ambition is less keen, and memory suffers, altho childhood events may be recalled vividly.

All of us can call to mind an elderly acquaintance or two who has become more "difficult"—with a domineering attitude, replacing that of kindness and tolerance. Then, too, every incident and happening is taken to heart. Instead of passing off unpleasant episodes or giving them their proper values among the things of the day, they will be grieved over, talked about, and "rehashed" for weeks.

What is the cause? Why should these altered characteristics present themselves? The answer lies in deficient nutrition. While many endeavor to make up for poor absorption by eating more, the objective is ofttimes defeated by the accumulation of waste products that are but partially disposed of.

Then comes the circulation. Blood vessels narrow gradually and hence cannot carry the requisite amount of vital fluid. In consequence, the brain and the nerve tissues are less well provided with food. While the kidneys and the heart may not be actively diseased, these organs are inadequately nourished because of the increasing sclerosis of the arteries. Is it any wonder then that structures such as the brain will begin to show signs of fatigue or actual changes? As a result our patient may complain of sleeplessness, inability to concentrate, vertigo, or minor symptoms involving sensation.

Most depressing of all is senile dementia, which may be ascribed to a poorer blood supply to the brain. Perhaps there is actual atrophy [wasting] of the organ itself. At any rate, we know that judgment is upset, temper frayed to a ragged edge, and the victim may exhibit vicious thoughts toward those who are doing the most for him. He may become suspicious and indulge in accusations of the most flagrant kind against those who love him most. It is in this stage that unfair wills are written, peculiar sex attachments formed, and—depending upon the degree of the disorder—pronounced delusions may be encountered.

For treatment we must go back to our fundamental concept that nutrition and circulation are basically at fault. A strictly hygienic régime—with the employment of such food adjuncts as may be required [chiefly vitamins] must be outlined. Small, frequent meals are digested better, and if hydrochloric acid is absent from the gastric juice this substance may be taken by mouth.

Most physicians use stimulants guardedly, but—in many of these patients—a favorable response to digitalis or some drug such as caffeine will be observed. Sleep may be aided by a mild sedative, such as occasional doses of bromides; and outdoor activity should be encouraged short of fatigue. Fortunate is the oldster who has a hobby. The study of local history, golf, or even collecting stamps or other inconsequential trifles will keep the thoughts occupied. To consign one of these worthwhile persons to doing nothing is tantamount to sending him to prison.

Maintaining the circulation by avoiding overstrain in the early and middle periods of life will aid in preserving our faculties well into the eighties.

WASHING DOWN FOOD.

V. K. writes: Is it harmful to sip a beverage with food in the mouth?

REPLY.

On the contrary, a sign of unusual dexterity. If you keep on sipping, the mass will probably disappear. It may enter the gastric pouch without sufficient mastication.

PATERNITY TEST.

A. L. writes: Is there any test that can prove the fatherhood of a child?

REPLY.

Not definitely. The test is of value only in a negative sense. If the blood of the suspected father falls into a different group the responsibility is not his.

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

E. C. T. writes: Many people say that a small amount of salts taken daily helps to purify the blood and clear a bad complexion. Is there any truth in this statement?

REPLY.

O. K. if you need a laxative—otherwise not. I know of no special complexion cleaning power of this drug. There is no better way to purify the blood than to provide good food in the presence of a well behaved digestive tract. Mild exercise out of doors will tone up the skin.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

AND WALLACE IS A CANDIDATE.

Elmhurst, Ill., July 25.—A current wheat loan letter to farmers—approved by the New Deal department of agriculture—includes these sentences: "Are you going to market your crop the old way; take whatever price you are offered and let the speculator have the profit? A few years ago you had no choice. Now you can determine how and where you will market your wheat and how much you will get for it."

All of which constitutes a choice pack of misstatements designed to further inflame the growers against every one excepting the Washington vote racketeers.

Actually, the wheat sold to private owners, such as elevators and mills, is not subject to speculation because the buyers "hedge" their purchases. Thereafter they do not gain nor lose by price fluctuations. The mentioned speculation—ironically enough—only enters in when the grower responds to the New Deal wheat loan invitations. He deposits his wheat as collateral on such terms that he is bound to win and the government is bound to be stuck financially. Only the amount of federal loss [our money] is undetermined. That is the speculation.

In the heartless process, endless portable grain storage bins are set up to ruin the business of privately owned country and terminal elevators.

All of which is another example of how the pious New Deal vote racketeers plunder the public treasury for voting blocs, and then ask for another term in which to more deeply bankrupt the nation.

BILL MAYOR.

DEFENDS THIS THIRD TERM.

Chicago, July 24.—There is a big campaign against the third term for President Roosevelt. Reading some of the newspapers, THE TRIBUNE included, it would seem a crime to do so. There is no law in this country against it, so why not leave it to the voters, who alone can decide, whether a man can be elected for a third time?

Theodore Roosevelt, who served practically two full terms as President, ran for President on the Bull Moose party ticket, when many of those now against the third term were the stanchest supporters of Theodore for the third term; among those was your CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

If it is almost a crime for the present Roosevelt, who was drafted by his party, to run for a third term, why was it not a crime for the earlier Roosevelt to do so?

A. J. D.

WHEN THE GUARD IS ORDERED OUT.

Chicago, July 25.—If and when the National Guard is ordered to extended training for eight to fifteen months, what provisions will congress make to take care of the dependents of the enlisted men? Discharging of married men of the guard would place the strength far below the present. Some of us are entitled to quarters, but unde. a mobilization there would be insufficient quarters, therefore we would receive an allowance which would be far below the rent one pays now. Also under present regulations we would not be eligible for reënlistment or longevity pay for our prior service. Such regulations should be changed if congress gives the President the power to "order" the guard out. This is not a case of war or invasion of the country but merely extended field training.

How about those concerns who sponsor companies in the guard and encourage the enlistment of their employés? Will they hold jobs for the men? I thank the Dixon Crucible company and the Standard Oil company for the stand they have taken. They are 100 per cent Americans; how about the others? J. L.

ABOUT JOB AGENCIES.

Chicago, July 24.—"A workingman" complains of a $25 payment of initiation fee for the union. He makes me laugh. I and several thousands more of untrained and unorganized workers contribute more to the so-called employment agencies.

For any job they guarantee for only 30 days you must pay in that 30 days fees ranging from one week's pay to 60 per cent of a month's wages. Try that on your piano

Most of them demand payment even before they send you out on an interview. JUST ANOTHER WORKINGMAN.

THRILL SHOW A SUCCESS.

City Hall, Chicago, July 23.—I desire to convey to the members of your staff the appreciation of the membership of the Chicago fire department for your splendid support of the Third Annual Police and Fire Thrill Show.

According to best calculations, more than 80,000 people were present at the show and I am sure the publicity given the event in THE TRIBUNE is responsible for the constantly increasing interest in this annual exposition.

M. J. CORRIGAN,
Fire Commissioner.

THEY JUST HAD A BABY.

Chicago, July 24.—Recently my wife had a baby. The event was of great moment to us and of interest to our circle of friends.

News of our baby's arrival became common knowledge, thanks to the custom of one of our newspapers of printing birth lists.

Our mail became "heavy"—special offers for the "wee one"—and the telephone began ringing after the wife's return from the hospital, disturbing her rest—door bell rings—solicitors for patent foods and devices to make mother and baby happier—bah!

Why should a metropolitan paper condone a thing like this? As an advertising man, I have occasion to study papers from New York, Boston, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and other large cities. None of them publishes birth lists. We would rather buy our needs from advertised offerings in newspapers and magazines and be free from these unasked callers—in person and by phone or mail.

ROYAL B. MARTIN.

ACQUIRING A NEW READER.

Morgan, Minn., July 20.—After having attended in person the "staged show" of the Democratic convention last Wednesday and Thursday nights and having listened to Francis Durbin extoling the virtues of Chicago and blasting your editorials, I am more than anxious to read your comments on the convention. I herewith place my order for the outstanding issues of your worthy paper on the convention of the previous week and ask you to bill me for the same.

REV. H. A. SCHERF.

THANKS ALL AROUND.

Chicago, July 24.—The employés of Harris Brothers cabinet shop wish to thank the Chicago fire department and the insurance patrol for good work in saving this department. We also thank Mr. Berno and Mr. Brenen for their untiring efforts to protect this building. We thank you.

B. JOHNSON,
Shop Steward.

THE WILLKIE BUTTONS.

Chicago, July 25.—Will you kindly publish the fact that Willkie buttons can be obtained on the 20th floor at 120 South La Salle street, as I am getting weary going up there, filling my pockets with these buttons, and having every one I meet, with whom I am acquainted, say "Gimme a button, will yuh?"

GUARDIANSHIP.

Chicago, July 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]:

1. What is a guardian ad litem? While administering an estate in which my son is heir [2] the lawyer charged a fee of $15 for this guardianship.

Now that the real estate is being sold [3] I find that I had never been appointed guardian,

4. Shouldn't the lawyer have opened an estate for my son at that time?

5. What else could the $15 have been paid for?

6. What will it cost to establish myself as guardian?

7. The property is in a suburban town and is being sold for $1,000 cash. My son's share would be one-third of a fourth share, or approximately $75.

8. Would he realize anything from the sale after all expenses are paid?

9. Could I refuse to have anything to do with it? There seems to be nothing in it but worry, and I would like to have nothing to do with it.

I have never fully agreed because [10] the lawyer would not tell me what my boy would get out of it after expenses are paid. I have signed no papers.

E. C.

1. A guardian ad litem is in substance a legal representative appointed to look out for a minor's interests in the course of litigation.
2. We see nothing irregular about this.
3. The mere fact that you have not been appointed guardian of his estate would not disprove some other person's appointment as guardian ad litem.
4. Depends on facts that are not before us.
5. See preceding answers.
6. Depends largely on whether you have the experience and capacity to handle the matter for yourself.
7. Where the share is as small as this it ought to be possible to get the parties to waive the opening of a guardianship estate. One alternative is to arrange to deposit the money in a savings account to be held until the minor is of legal age.
8. Depends on facts that are not before us.
9. Yes.
10. We do not see how you could expect him to make a definite prediction. Apparently you have been somewhat unreasonable with him. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

Chicago, July 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If war should come before the Presidential election would they have an election or not, or does the President that is in now remain in office? J. L.

The precedent of the civil war says that the election would be held as usual, but there is little use trying to predict what may be done in an unprecedented emergency.

TODAY IN HISTORY

July 29, 1778

The French fleet, under Admiral D'Estaing, sent to aid the American revolutionists, arrived at Narragansett bay for joint attack with land forces on British garrison at Newport. Before operations could be begun, however, a reënforced English fleet appeared and engaged the French. While the battle was progressing a gale came up and damaged the French fleet so severely that it had to put into Boston for repairs.

100,000 Hear County Forest Choral Series

The final three programs of the third annual summer series of forest preserve concerts were heard yesterday in Thatcher, Caldwell, and Dan Ryan woods.

Philip Goldstein, 8, singing at concert.

An estimated 100,000 persons have enjoyed the 21 concerts given the last seven Sunday afternoons, and about 1,000 singers have taken part as members of choral groups. Unusual features of this year's concerts have been the sharp increase in the appeal of community singing and the fact that patriotic songs have been offered far more often than in the past.

The Embury Mixed choir, under direction of J. W. Johnstone, sang yesterday in Dan Ryan woods. The Royal League Women's chorus, led by Miss Sylvia Brydine, appeared in Caldwell woods, and the Chicago Concert chorus, whose director is Miss Lucy Atkinson, was in Thatcher woods.

The Royal League group and their audience found each other so mutually pleasing that the concert ran half an hour past its scheduled time as the woods echoed to the community singing.

Louis Palermo, 1102 North 21st avenue, Melrose Park, an accordionist; Philip Goldstein, 4833 North Sawyer avenue, who is 8 years old, and Shiah Director, 6, of 4953 North Sawyer, both singers, gave volunteer solos which were well received.

Most of the choral groups in the city, many of which have appeared during the summer concert series, are now devoting most of their spare time to practicing for the Chicagoland Music Festival, to be held Aug. 17 in Soldiers' field.

The summer concert series has been sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the Cook County forest preserve district, and was made possible thru the coöperation of Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board.

Paul Robeson Wins Ovations from Throng in Grant Park

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Paul Robeson, the great Negro bass-baritone, made his first Chicago appearance in nearly five years last night. He sang from the stage of the Grant park band shell to an audience that packed the tens of thousands of available seats and overflowed onto the spacious lawns all about. Mr. Robeson's co-attraction was the orchestra of Rico Marcelli, altho for virtually all of his accompaniments he used the pianist Lawrence Brown.

Mr. Robeson first won the enthusiastic friendship of his audience by the charm of his personality. He is a great giant of a man, with an infectious smile; bright, humorous eyes, and that dignity of bearing that springs from an honest sense of worth. The moment that he walked upon the stage the crowd that faced him from every corner of the big breezy auditorium put on a big demonstration in his honor.

And these ovations grew greater as the evening wore on. In his very first song—the spiritual, "Go Down, Moses"—Mr. Robeson dispelled all doubts as to the extraordinary quality of his art. The voice itself was tremendous—sonorous as summer thunder yet innocent of any suggestion of roughness.

The singer produced his tones as effortlessly as if he had a pair of bellows within his chest. And the rhythmic strength of his singing gave the song a pounding, inexorable quality which accorded well with its character.

To constantly mounting applause Mr. Robeson sang the sad, haunting song, "O No, John, No," and several melancholy Negro, Russian, and Jewish songs. Sometimes the audience was reminded of the fact that this man standing before them is an actor as well as a singer. He dramatized the music effectively, always becoming the "I" of the song and—in the case of "O No, John, No"—entering wholeheartedly into the dialog form and becoming the two "I's." Also, he made use occasionally of arch looks and expressive gestures.

The climax of the evening came when popular demand—in the shape of numerous shouted requests from the audience—compelled Mr. Robeson to do "Ol' Man River." He sang it with an awesome virility. There were cheers and screams at its end. After another Negro number—the mock-serious "Scandalize My Name"—the singer offered "Ballad for Americans," a folksy and warming piece that has become one of the best liked bits of Americana of our day.

Mr. Brown not only played good idiomatic accompaniments, but also added his voice to that of Mr. Robeson in such songs as "Little David" and "Joshua Fit de Battle ob Jericho."

The Grant park concert at 8 o'clock this evening will be given by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, with Hans Lange conducting. The program:

Suite No. 2, B minor, for strings and flute ..... Bach
Excerpts from "Children's Corner" ..... Debussy
Ballad, "Tam O'Shanter" ..... Chadwick
Academic Festival Overture ..... Brahms
Symphony No. 1, C minor, Opus 68 ..... Brahms

The concert will be given at the band shell opposite 11th street. All seats will be free.

Barbirolli Gives Chicago a New Mozart Number

BY CECIL SMITH.

John Barbirolli continued his offices as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Ravinia over the week-end. A distinctive feature of the Saturday evening concert was the first performance in this region of Mozart's C major symphony, numbered 338 in the Köchel catalog.

This symphony, written in three movements without the customary eighteenth century minuet, perhaps does not attain to the perfect symmetry of the later G minor symphony or to the spaciousness of musical thought to be found in the "Jupiter." Nevertheless, it is one of the most charming works of Mozart's early maturity, with thematic material deserving of more sparkling treatment than Mr. Barbirolli and the orchestra seemed willing to bring to them. The finale, in the form of a gigue, is especially infectious in rhythm and neat in orchestration.

Earlier in the program Mr. Barbirolli presented the first symphony by Sibelius. In general he conceived the work rather episodically, treating the climaxes like isolated masses of tone, and not always discovering or maintaining the lines of musical thought which led up to them. At times Mr. Barbirolli could be depended upon to bring the music into a cogent emotional unity, but his ability to do this was sporadic.

The Saturday program opened with Smetana's Overture to "The Bartered Bride," and also contained a trifle by Grieg known as "The Cow Keeper's Tune," and Berlioz's "Roman Carnival" overture. The Sunday afternoon concert listed the Overture to Weber's "Der Freischütz," Delius' "On Hearing the First Cuckoo in Spring," excerpts from the third act of Wagner's "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," the Haydn symphony in D major, No. 104, Griffes' "The White Peacock," and the dances from de Falla's "The Three Cornered Hat."

Double Features.

Samuel Goldwyn, whose article on "Hollywood is Sick" appeared in a recent national publication, was discussing the piece with Sol Lesser, one of his associates, shortly before it appeared. He told how he had outlined what was wrong with the movies, and expressed particular denunciation of the double feature as one of the evils of the movie industry. Finishing his discourse on the article, he added:

"If you're not doing anything this evening, Sol, come over to the house and we'll run off a couple of pictures."

Botanical Note.

A woman who likes to patronize the neighborhood sidewalk flower marts, in spite of the fact that her husband insists she would do better to get more expensive flowers from the florist's shop, came home recently with a bunch of dark red peonies. The florist, probably because the peonies were of questionable freshness, had thrown in some baby's breath.

"I wonder who put the gyp in Gypsophila," murmured her husband (Herbert Hoagland), observing the flowers and the interspersed baby's breath and giving it its botanical name.

By Way of Report.

A letter from the Gill Glass and Fixture company, which says on its letterhead Illuminating Glassware, was signed by a Mr. Aglow. Initials H. A.

Black and White.

Miss Dorothy Gish, walking the West Highland terrier of her sister, Lillian, on Michigan avenue the other day, was reminded of an afternoon on Fifth avenue when she had her own Aberdeen terrier, as well as Lillian's Malcolm, out for an airing. The black and white combination caught the eye of a policeman.

"Are ye by any chance advertising whisky?" he asked her.

Juvenile Spelling.

Parents sometimes complain that children are no longer taught to spell in school. A Chicago father who received a letter from a young son at camp is sure this is so. The lad wrote that he had been "fising," but that he hadn't caught "n e fis."

Stay at Homes Prove Faith in 'Best Resort'

BY JUDITH CASS.

THOSE who take their vacations in the winter, claiming that Chicago's the best summer resort of all, may have wavered a bit in their loyalty to this idea last week, but when the first cool breeze ended the recent heat wave, the stay-at-homes beamed with pride and assumed that "I told you so" look. Tho thousands are traveling, there do seem to be more who are staying at home this summer than in previous years.

The T. Philip Swifts, for instance, are staying right in Lake Forest this summer instead of going west as they usually do. A tennis court and swimming pool on their grounds help to make the summer an active one for the young Swifts. The Valentine Bartletts and their children, who were to have gone to Jasper Park, Canada, with the Swifts, canceled their plans, too, and are in Carolina.

Many who formerly lived in Chicago and loved the summertime here plan especially to come "home" during the hot weather months. Mrs. Robert Burns, the former Sarane Otis, and her young son and daughter arrived yesterday from Los Angeles, Cal., for their usual summer visit with Mrs. Burns' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Otis.

Junior Kinney Smiths to Have Housewarming.

Mrs. Burns' cousin, Mrs. Kinney Smith Jr., and her husband are enjoying this summer especially, for they have become country dwellers and are virtually settled in their new Barrington home. The house is situated on a hilltop where the Smiths took advantage of all stray breezes during the hot spell. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will give a housewarming next month with Mrs. Burns as the especial guest.

Mrs. Thomas M. Schriber, the former Betty Brooks, still prefers Chicago summers to winters even tho she now lives in Bedford Hills, N. Y. She and Mr. Schriber are spending a fortnight with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps, in Lake Forest, and will return east next Saturday.

Mrs. Ffoulke Dewey of New York and Washington will have a taste of August weather here. She arrives today to spend a week with her old friends, the Philip Mahers, in Lake Bluff. Mrs. Dewey is on her way west.

Having spent the first half of the summer in their home at Marion, Mass., the John M. Butler family has returned to Winnetka for the last half. Miss Betty Butler is a debutante of this season. She will have a tea-dance at the Indian Hill club on Sept. 14.

Chicagoans Bound for East, West, North.

Outward bound: Mr. and Mrs. William S. Miller, who have gone to California to see their daughter, Mrs. Charles N. Proctor, and her husband and their little girl, Nancy. The Proctors live in Yosemite National Park. The Millers will return to Winnetka for Labor day.

Dr. and Mrs. Francis Horan, who will spend August at the Seigniory club in Montebello, Quebec.

Mrs. John J. Cummings and her daughter, Miss Jane Cummings, who have gone to Colorado for two months. They will spend four weeks in Estes Park and the remaining time at the Walter P. Paepcke ranch.

James C. Hutchins, who has gone to Camden, Me., to join his wife and daughter, Miss Margaret Hutchins. The Hutchins family will return late in September.

Mrs. Edward A. Leight, who leaves today for Mackinac Island. She will spend a month there.

The Daniel Leonards and their children, who are leaving by motor tomorrow for the Adirondacks to spend five weeks at the summer home of Mr. Leonard's father, John R. Leonard. Mrs. William Turpin [Harriet Leonard] and her son already are there.

Mrs. Walter Schuttler, who has gone to her summer home in Saratoga, N. Y.

Jeanette Schreiner Weds New Yorker.

The marriage of Miss Jeanette Schreiner to Dawson Larrimore Newton of New York was announced yesterday by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Oswald Schreiner of North State street. The ceremony was performed Saturday by the Rev. James Channon Montgomery in the rectory of the Presbyterian church at Good Morning!

The "Dead End Kids" are getting to be great big boys! And in this film they desert the sidewalks of New York for a spot of vagrancy that lands them on the ranch of one Mama Posito, where, OR ELSE! they labor for their daily bread and play up to their leader, Tommy [Billy Halop], who conceives a plan that really works out just fine!

You see, Mama Posito had lost a little son some years before. She and the now deceased Papa Posito had gone to a picnic. Their wee Tomaso had wandered away and never been found by them. Mama has always been on the lookout for him to return and in Tommy, the fast thinking waif, she believes she has discovered her loved one.

Tommy, with an eye to a soft future, works fast and believes he's getting away with it until the sheriff—a great friend of Mama's—strolls in one day to tell the handsome lad that he, the sheriff, PERSONAL, had found the Posito baby, drowned, but had not told the broken-hearted mother, fearful of the results from shock. . . . Year after year he had tried to do so but—well—just BUT. Anyhow, he knows Tommy isn't Tomaso—and so—NO FUNNY BUSINESS.

But Mama Posito, gentle, generous, wistful, is her own best protector. Her faith is completely disarming. Tho left to believe that Tommy IS Tomaso, she finds in this husky young fellow just the sort of man she'd needed about the place. A kid who has learned shrewdness thru tough breaks and rubbing up against odds and who comes thru for her grandly when occasion demands.

Scenes where Tomaso foils the meanmen who would prevent Mama from marketing her produce because she will not agree to come in with them on starvation wages to her employés are punchful and amusing.

Rosina Galli as Mama Posito gets to the heart. Her technique is reminiscent of Maria Ouspenskaya's. Smooth. The kids all run true to form and Nan Grey as the girl in Tommy's life is nice. Capable men in the cast.

Scenery is interesting and the fair little story is deftly directed.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, July 28.—Few are the veterans who can count 32 years in the motion picture business, and Erich Pommer, now producing the Carole Lombard-Charles Laughton "They Knew What They Wanted" for R.-K.-O., is one of these.

Pommer, a middleweight, ruddy, gentle, and timid man who looks like a picture of somebody's kind 51 year old uncle in a children's book, has created and helped to create an amazing number of memorable films, notable picture companies, and important players. One of his old stars, Emil Jannings, now runs the German cinema industry under the dictatorship. Jannings, part Jewish, was officially decreed an Aryan. Pommer, who has taken out his first papers, will be happy to step before some federal judge and be decreed an American.

Pommer has never had a job outside the movies. Son of a fruit canner, he was born in Hildesheim, Germany. When he was 18 he went to Berlin to study medicine. At a party he met the German representative of the Gaumont-France Film company, became excited as he listened to tales of the movies, asked for a job and got it. He became a Gaumont-France salesman, selling pictures and projectors in Germany.

In 1909 Pommer organized the Gaumont newsreel in Germany, filmed some of the first shots ever made in Berlin. A notable newsreel scoop was Bleriot's flight cross the English channel.

After three years as central European manager in Vienna, Pommer quit Gaumont, took a similar job with French Eclair, made a 5,000 foot airplane drama called "Mystery of the Air." This sold so well he made another long film, "Death Rides on a Ferris Wheel." The world war broke up his French contacts and he organized the Decla company.

Pommer's "discoveries" are more numerous than those of a chatter columnist. One of his first was Fritz Lang, the director. After the war Pommer became head of production of a merged firm, Decla-Bioscop, and his career came into full bloom. "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari," "Dr. Mabuse," and "The Nibelungen" appeared. In "Caligari" necessity was the mother of invention. Postwar restrictions on electrical power forced studios to save juice, so far the modernist film lights and shadows were painted on cardboard sets which, thus, were the forerunners of modern elaborate backgrounds.

Seventeen years ago Pommer became production head of U. F. A., and then began the great vogue for German movies. "The Last Laugh," "Variety," "Waltz Dream," "Metropolis," "Cinderella," "Faust"—these and others added to film history made many stars and much money. Jannings soared to the top. Hollywood panted for Pommer, and Paramount and Metro got him in 1926-'27. For Metro and Pola Negri he did "Barbed Wire" and "Hotel Imperial." Back, then, to Berlin and U. F. A., where Pommer stars became international stars—Lilian Harvey, Anna Sten, Elisabeth Bergner, Marlene Dietrich. Pommer saw Dietrich in a revue, gave her a rôle, engaged Joseph von Sternberg as director, and produced "The Blue Angel."

When Hitler came to power, Pommer quit U. F. A., signed with Fox in Paris, where he produced "Liliom" with one of his discoveries, Charles Boyer. Another session in Hollywood was spent mostly in a hospital, and the next to current chapter in his life began in London, where he joined Alexander Korda, made "Fire Over England" with Vivien Leigh, Laurence Olivier, and Flora Robinson. Next he and Charles Laughton formed their own company, did "The Beachcomber," "Sidewalks of London," and "Jamaica Inn." The Laughton association is still very much in force. After "They Knew What They Wanted" Pommer will produce "Mr. Pinkie," a Louis Bromfield story, for Laughton, Elsa Lanchester and Lucille Ball. Also on his program are Elmer Rice's "Two on an Island," for Ginger Rogers, and "The Water Gypsies," for Maureen O'Hara, Louis Hayward, and possibly Joel McCrea.

Pommer has been married 27 years to the same wife, named Gertrude. Their son, John, is an assistant director at R.-K.-O., but does not work with his father.

Haste Is Urged by Sally to Get in Next Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Just wait 'till you boys and girls see how Judy Canova goes about scrubbing a floor! She doesn't get down on her hands and knees as most people do. . . . indeed not, she has a much better idea. A scrubbing brush strapped to each foot, she just throws a pail of soapy water on the floor, then skates around on it, singing at the top of her lungs.

That's just one of the funny things the lucky boys and girls who are invited to my next party will see in "Scatterbrain." It's a brand new movie that'll make you laugh out loud.

Thru a mistake, Judy, who is just a farm girl, goes to Hollywood to be a movie star. She leaves the cows and chickens and she and her "pappy" head for the west coast.

I won't tell you any more about the picture today, but I'm sure that you'll all want to see it with me on Aug. 8 at the Studio theater. The management has invited me to bring 50 boys and girls for this treat, so if you want to come to this party, get busy and write a letter telling me why you think you'd have a good time if you were one of my guests.

Just write it in your own way, and be sure to do it all by yourself. Tell me your full name, address, and age, and take care to mail your letter in plenty of time. Next Thursday morning is the deadline—if it comes any later, your request won't be considered. So don't waste too much time, but send that letter to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Urges Endowments Financing Research in Diseases of Teeth

Endowment of the nation's 39 dental schools to make possible research into dental health was urged yesterday by Dr. Harlan H. Horner. Dr. Horner, who was associate commissioner of education in New York state for ten years, has just arrived in Chicago to become secretary of the American Dental association's council on dental education. "Despite American progress in dentistry," Dr. Horner said, "the basic causes of dental diseases have not been determined." He predicted great strides in dentistry if funds are made available for research.

Murder Is Not Mute

By Audrey Newell

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

Detective Patrick Doyle of New York City is vacationing in a small resort town when, while walking in the woods on the estate of Adolph Wunsch, wealthy ex-brewer, he stumbles upon a skeleton. He tells Truman Briault, Wunsch's brother-in-law, of his discovery, and Briault tries to bribe him to keep the matter quiet, instead Doyle reports it to police headquarters, and when Officer Madden and Judge Blain accompany him back to the spot where the skeleton was, they find it gone. Trailing fresh footprints they discover the skeleton has been buried a short distance away. Dr. Blake, the coroner, says it is the skeleton of a girl in her late teens who has been murdered. Madden asks Doyle to help him solve the mystery. In the mean time, Judge Blain finds bits of blue wool on twigs near where the skeleton was buried. When the party reach the golf course on the estate, Blain sees two caddies, one with a blue sweater pulled thru the handle of the golf bag he is carrying. They encounter Wunsch and Briault playing golf. They question Wunsch, and Briault goes back to the house. They tell Wunsch they will have to question his household.

INSALMENT VII.

PRISONERS.

Paula Wunsch glanced at the diamond encrusted wrist watch which Adolph had given her for a wedding present. Luncheon was overdue.

She rose listlessly from her dressing table and went out into the upper hall, to the great window at its forward and which looked over the broad expanse of lawn merging into the eighteenth green.

But her husband was nowhere in sight. Paula thought his tardiness strange. It was unlike him to break his routine for the sake of a game which he took like a dose of medicine. Perhaps something had happened. An accident.

Paula shook her lovely head impatiently. Here she was again conjuring up silly alarms—yielding to fear. For she was often afraid these days. Which was odd, because she was by nature courageous. And even more ridiculous—she couldn't say what it was she feared. But for the last year she had been troubled by this constant sense of foreboding.

The truth was, her inactive monotonous life was making her neurotic. And yesterday's violent storm had completely unnerved her. Last night she had wakened, fancying again that she heard some one prowl thru the house. Later she thought she heard the crash of shattered glass. It had frightened her so that she had left her bed and gone to sit at her boudoir windows to watch for the sunrise. Only when the world was bathed reassuringly in daylight, and the butler had testified that no glass was broken anywhere in the house, did her nerves quiet.

If only she could see people. Go places.

But travel was one of the things Adolph would not permit her. And they did almost no entertaining. His friends were anathema to her. And his rudeness to her friends amounted to a taboo. In short, marriage had just about imprisoned her.

Paula began to twist her wedding ring round and round her slender finger, remembering the day when she had brought Adolph Wunsch to the cramped Briault apartment, to sit for an uncomfortable half hour scorched by the horror in Maman's eyes and the supercilious mockery in Truman's.

When Wunsch had gone, Paula had faced her family spiritedly. "There's no use looking like that," she said in her clipped tones. "He's impossible. But he has millions. It's obvious I must marry him."

"Has he asked you?" Maman inquired, a shade eagerly.

"Not yet," Paula admitted. "But he will."

"One should not be too certain in such matters," Maman warned with a shiver of memory for the times her hopes of ending impoverished widowhood had been ill-founded.

But Paula was not like her romantic American Maman. Paula was like her deeply mourned French papa. Things didn't slip thru Paula's fingers. And of course the Briaults had no intention of dissuading her noble purpose. After all, a rich marriage for Paula was their goal, their only solution.

For Truman could not be counted on for anything. He was handsome and charming. But he had neither brains nor initiative. He was like his mother—well meaning, but totally unequipped for the business of living.

Naturally they looked to Paula who was so clear thinking, so resourceful and self-reliant.

None of which stalwart qualities, Paula mused, had been any match for Adolph. The Briaults had despised him for the thick body and slow mental processes. And he had outwitted them all. He'd known from the start that it was his money Paula wanted. But he took her, knowing that, because after all, it was his money, and he knew he could make the rules.

Directly after the wedding ceremony he had taken his young bride to his Beachville estate. At the end of the first week she knew exactly what to expect. By the simple expediency of not letting any of the Briaults have any cash, Adolph Wunsch made them all, virtually, his prisoners. The completeness and efficacy of his scheme dawned upon them gradually—after they were trapped—when there was nothing they could do.

He dealt with all of them thru Paula. She was to have carte blanche as to her expenditures, he told her. Charge accounts had been arranged for every type of purchase except jewels and travel. For tips and other incidentals, she would receive a small cash allowance monthly. Upon Wunsch's death, she would receive ample income from a trust fund he had set up, the principal of which she could never touch and which, at her death, would go to Wunsch's daughter by his first marriage.

If Paula's mother and brother were in need of financial help, let them use what money they had to pay off their debts. They were then free to live under Wunsch's roof, and his wife was free to provide for all their material wants while they lived there. But she must never give them money, or ask her husband to do so.

Paula had tried to show her husband, by action rather than by argument, that it was not necessary to make her his prisoner—that she recognized her obligation to settled down to honest domesticity. To honor her husband before all the world. To run his home efficiently. To bear his children. She had been trained from childhood in the French manner for precisely that sort of program.

But Adolph balked her. There was no reason for her to interfere with the running of the house, he said. He had a housekeeper who suited him admirably. And he wasn't keen about all this redecorating.

Neither did he want children. Texie—his daughter by his first marriage—absorbed all his paternal feeling.

He was, indeed, slavishly devoted to the willful young girl. Since she had gone abroad he had been even more difficult to live with. And he had taken to going into town night after night. He belonged to some stupid fraternal organization, and he told Paula his nocturnal absences had to do with that. But she was beginning to doubt. Was he assauging his loneliness for Texie with an amorous adventure?

Paula shrugged. It didn't matter to her what he did. Except that she dreaded being left alone in the huge, hideous house with only Truman for protection.

And as if her thought of him had conjured his presence, she perceived her brother crossing the lawn followed by two caddies.

How unbelievable, Paula thought, that Truman should have been playing golf all this time! For at dawn, sitting at her boudoir window, Paula had seen her brother go down the driveway carrying his golf clubs. The game was getting to be an obsession with him. And no wonder, when his activities were so limited, and a free, normal life denied him.

Now Paula saw that Truman was dismissing the caddies. She turned back to the stairs and hurried down to meet her brother. He looked up as she spoke his name.

"Hello," he said dispiritedly.

She took his arm affectionately. "Where's Adolph?"

Truman pulled away from her. "I don't know."

Paula stared at him. "But—but you brought his clubs back. And his caddy," she said, confused and wondering.

"Because he went off with Judge Blain," Truman snapped.

"Judge Bain? What for?"

"My God, Paula! Will you stop asking questions?"

She peered up into his face, startled. It was not like Truman to be disagreeable with her, and she said sharply, "What's wrong?"

"Just leave me alone," he said. "Will you?"

She drew back, hurt. Then she thought, it's just this awful unnatural life he's leading. And she said quietly, "Come into the library. Let me mix you a drink."

As she turned she saw Follins driving the limousine under the porte cochere and over to the road that cut out across the golf course.

Truman sank down on the library divan and watched her dully as she went to the portable bar. He looked exhausted. She brought him an old-fashioned, and automatically he took the cherry out and gave it to her. As he used to remove it from his dessert when they were children. Her little brother. She stood looking down at him, her heart warm toward him, wanting to help him.

And Truman needed her help. He told her so, after a while, speaking tensely, utterly unlike his usual debonair self.

"I've got to have money, Paula," he said. "Every cent you can get for me. I'm leaving here."

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: A Counter-Puncher

Leesburg, Va. Miss Lura Schreiner attended her sister, and Wendell Buck of New York City was Mr. Newton's best man.

The bride has been living in New York for two years. Mr. Newton is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Emery Marquis Newton of San Marino, Cal., and Long Island, N. Y.

Nancy Wolcott Touring with New Stock Company.

Take a group of 12 dramatically ambitious young people, give them an old farm house near Poughkeepsie, N. Y., set them to work making stage properties, and you have a summer stock company. Miss Nancy Wolcott, who with several Vassar classmates and boys from eastern colleges, organized such a troup, is touring up and down the Hudson river, giving plays in the schools and libraries of small towns. She is expected at home late in August after two months of hard work making costumes and acting.

Her younger sister, Miss Jeanne Wolcott, a junior at the Stuart school in Boston, is visiting Miss Betty Keator in Minneapolis, Minn. Katrina, the youngest of Mrs. Ryland A. Wolcott's daughters, is spending the summer at home in Winnetka. She is a sophomore at the North Shore Country Day school.

Miss Roxane McKenzie and Alfred Marsden Price, son of the Benjamin Marsden Prices of Hubbard Woods, will be married at 5 o'clock in the afternoon on Sept. 7. The wedding will be a small one at the home of the bride's father, William Dexter McKenzie, also of Hubbard Woods. Miss Jehanne Price, the bridegroom's sister, and Miss Alice Blair will be the bride's only attendants, and Douglas Loper will be best man. After a two weeks' trip east Mr. Price and his bride will be at home in Evanston.

Mrs. Philip D. Armour Returns in Two Weeks.

Mrs. Philip D. Armour and her son, David, will return in about two weeks from a vacation on a ranch in Wyoming.

Mrs. Louis C. Seaverns and her sons, Jim and Winston, will return to Lake Forest late this week from a vacation at Land o' Lakes, Wis. At that time Mr. and Mrs. George A. Seaverns Jr. will leave for Wisconsin to be away until after Labor day.

The Hughston M. McBains and their children, Jimmy, Peggy, and Grace, will be motoring to Wisconsin on Aug. 10. They will spend the rest of the summer in a cabin they just have built at Big lake, Boulder junction.

Many Pickles and Relishes Easy to Make

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The vinegar and spice smells which emanate from a kitchen where pickles and relishes are in the process of transformation from the original raw vegetables are as appetizing and stimulating as any cooking odors.

Cabbage and Pepper Relish.

1 quart finely chopped cabbage
2 cups chopped sweet red peppers
2 cups chopped green peppers
2 chopped hot red peppers
2 cups chopped onions
5 tablespoons salt
¼ cup mustard seed
2 tablespoons celery seed.
½ cup sugar
1 quart cider vinegar

Mix vegetables together, cover with the salt, and let stand overnight in a crock or enameled pan. Drain and add spices, sugar, and vinegar. Pack into jars, seal, and process in a water bath at simmering temperature for 15 minutes.

Celery Relish.

1 quart celery, chopped finely
1 cup chopped white onions
2 large red peppers, chopped
2 large green peppers, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups vinegar
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard.

Cook celery and onion separately in salted water [2 teaspoons salt to each quart of water, and don't use more than enough water to cover] until tender. Drain and add chopped peppers, salt, vinegar, sugar, and mustard. Cook until peppers are tender. Seal at once in clean, hot jars.

Pennsylvania Relish.

[About 8 pints.]

3 sweet red peppers, ground
2 large stalks celery, ground
1½ quarts finely chopped ripe tomatoes
1½ quarts finely chopped green tomatoes
1½ quarts shredded cabbage
1½ quarts chopped onions
½ cup salt
3 cups sugar
3 pints vinegar
½ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup mustard seed
¼ cup prepared horseradish

Combine vegetables and salt, mix thoroly, and let drain in a cloth bag overnight. Make a sirup by boiling sugar, vinegar, and spices together for 10 minutes. Add vegetables and horseradish and cook gently for half an hour. Pour into clean hot jars and seal at once.

Pepper relish, corn relish, beet relish, catsup, and chili sauce recipes are to be found in new mimeographed booklet, "Favorite Pickles and Relishes," 5 cents by mail. Address requests for the booklet to Mary Meade in care of THE TRIBUNE and enclose 5 cents in stamps.

Today's Chicago Radio Broadcasts

Today's Features

ON W-G-N.

[Central Daylight Saving Time.]

Yesterdays, W-G-N's audience studio program of musical reveries, will revive memories of old time hayride parties when a dramatized sequence of "Louisiana Hayride" and "Bugle Call Rag" will be presented at 9:30 p. m. Featured in addition to the hayride dramatization will be the presentation of "I'm Falling in Love with Someone," by Kathryn Witwer and Ralph Nylund. Curt Massey, tenor, also will sing "Melancholy Baby," and the final number will be Miss Witwer's solo, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes." The soloists will be supported by the Grenadiers and The Three Graces and by the music of Harold Stokes and his W-G-N dance orchestra. Yesterdays is produced by Lou Jackobsen, with DeWitt McBride as dramatic narrator.

Your Music I. Q., a musical quiz show presented by the Ravinia Festival association, will become a 30 minute program this evening and will be heard from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Participating in tonight's quiz will be four music luminaries who will attempt to answer questions on popular music as well as on symphonic, opera, and other classical forms. Bob Elson will be the announcer and those who will appear are Mark Love, bass baritone of the Chicago Opera company and W-G-N; Ebba Sundstrom, former conductor of the Woman's Symphony of Chicago and noted violinist; Scott Goldthwaite of the University of Chicago music department, and Griff Williams, orchestra leader.

Play Broadcast, also a quiz show, is scheduled at 7 p. m. The program, originating in the main audience studio, features Bill Anson, master of ceremonies, and Bob Elson, a dramatic cast, and Harold Stokes and the dance orchestra.

Raymond Gram Swing, foreign news analyst, will be heard at 9 p. m.

Other programs:

10 a. m.—Tom, Dick, and Harry.

The Girlish Jumper Style

MISS' JUMPER COSTUME.

The girlish jumper style is becoming only to slim figures, and that is why this pattern is designed for misses' sizes only. But all the young things will love it, we know. It may be worn now, fashioned of cottons or other washable materials, or created in silks and woolen for the first days of campus or school life. The pattern provides for both long and short sleeved shirtmaker blouses.

Style No. 3410 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 1¾ yards of 39 inch material for short sleeved blouse; 2 yards of 54 inch or 3 yards of 39 inch for jumper; 2½ yards of 39 inch for long sleeved blouse.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the summer Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

Numerology — By Evelyn Holmes

July 29, 1940.

Universal Day—A speculative day. Take chances if you have the vision to look ahead.

Month Ahead—For those celebrating birthdays today, and all those in a five-year [your personal chart will tell you what year you are in] the month of August is not vacation time. It is a period for working hard to establish order and system in your year. Next month may give you freedom to get away from routine, but this month it is imperative that you get things in order and fulfill your duties and obligations.

Year Ahead—Your personal year is the same as the universal year so maybe you will feel the uprooting and swift changes taking place in the world much more than the average person. Changes—more personal freedom, erratic and unexpected events—are all to be expected this year.

Would you like to know what kind of a year 1940 will be for you? Send for your personal yearly, monthly, and daily guide.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

In most situations a player can well afford to take his time and think out the best solution. His "huddle" gives no worthwhile information to the enemy. Some plays, however, depend entirely on rapidity for their success. This applies specifically to plays of a psychological nature: To ruses, traps, and other coups which would automatically fail if there were any evidence of planning back of them. The neat little gambit used in the following deal well illustrates this point.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 spades	Pass	2 no tramp	Pass
3 spades	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's slam-urging five spade bid may appear a little on the optimistic side, but the fact is that North was somewhat on the spot. A four spade bid would almost surely be passed by South, since North would have given no sign whatever of assisting ability. And since North actually did have potential strength in his club suit, his singleton diamond and his three trumps, it would have been cowardly to suppress that information.

Unfortunately, however, the hands fit badly, a fact which became apparent to the declarer when West opened the diamond king and the dummy was spread. A lightning glance disclosed that two heart tricks would have to be lost unless the defenders could be enlisted on the declarer's own team. Much more quickly than the description requires, South saw that he might steal a club trick for a heart discard if, on a low club lead from dummy, East were unwise enough to put up the ace [in fear of a singleton queen in declarer's hand]. But this fortuitous happening would require three separate conditions: [1] East, not West, would have to hold the club ace; [2] East would have to hold the ace without the queen; [3] East would have to make a bad play, or at least a bad guess. In less time than it took North to finish laying out his cards declarer decided that he did not care for his chances to establish a club trick. That decision made, another one became automatic. Without the flicker of an eyelash, and with no perceptible hesitation, declarer played the diamond deuce on West's king.

West was neither a beginner nor an expert. What is more, he gave reasonable thought to the low card, the four spot, that East had played on the first trick. But he finally concluded that a continuation of diamonds was as safe as any shift. Declarer, he thought, might well have the ace of clubs singleton, and in that case the only way of preventing the establishment of dummy's club suit might be to shorten dummy's trumps, via a forced ruff, and thereby rob it of an entry. I am not entirely justifying West's reasoning, but the fact is that he continued with a low diamond. To his horror, declarer did not ruff in dummy. He discarded a heart from that hand, won with his own jack of diamonds, then after cashing the spade ace, laid down his heart and diamond aces. After that it was a simple matter to ruff two hearts in dummy.

Tomorrow's Hand.

W. D. M'Adams Is Engaged to Cleveland Girl

The engagement of Miss Josephine Blossom Alcott of Cleveland, O., and Blue Hill, Me., to William Douglas McAdams Jr. of Winnetka was announced Saturday by Miss Alcott's mother, Mrs. Blossom C. Alcott. The announcement was made at a cocktail party after the boat races at Blue Hill. The wedding will take place there on August 31. Mr. McAdams is the son of Mrs. Marguerite McAdams of Winnetka and William D. McAdams of New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Read of Barrington announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Felicia, to F. Stewart Davidson Jr. Miss Read attended the Girls Latin school and was graduated from Lake Forest college. Mr. Davidson is the son of Dr. and Mrs. F. S. Davidson of Chicago and is a graduate of Northwestern university. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Ross, 2809 Garrison avenue, Evanston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Virginia Ann, to Robert E. Beckwith of Evanston, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Beckwith of Neligh, Neb. Miss Ross and her parents were at home to friends and relatives yesterday, when the engagement was made known. Miss Ross attended Rockford college and was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority at Northwestern university. Mr. Beckwith attended the University of Michigan and the University of Nebraska.

At a family party yesterday afternoon at their home in Hinsdale Mr. and Mrs. William Brown Burr announced the engagement of their daughter, Phoebe Ann, to George A. McKeon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McKeon of East Orange, N. J. Mr. McKeon and his parents came from East Orange for the tea.

Miss Burr is a graduate of Wells college and of the Katherine Gibbs school in New York. Her fiancé prepared at Mercersburg academy and was graduated from Princeton university. The wedding will take place next year.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

We find a few women these days who are actually getting their hair cut shorter. The best hairdressers these days are concentrating on a cut that is practical.

We've seen a couple of medium length cuts that were wonderful. Had one ourselves, as a matter of fact. It's entirely a matter of good shaping and, if the hair is straight, of having the right kind of a permanent for the style and the shaping. The hair is almost always of practically uniform length all over the head, and the whole aim of the good shaping job is to make it possible for a woman to comb her hair easily into the fashion she wants. In other words, the hair is cut to a fashion, not just waved and set into it. It makes all the difference.

There is a slight trend, too, toward putting hair up. The hot weather did it—and lots of women have found it wonderfully becoming.

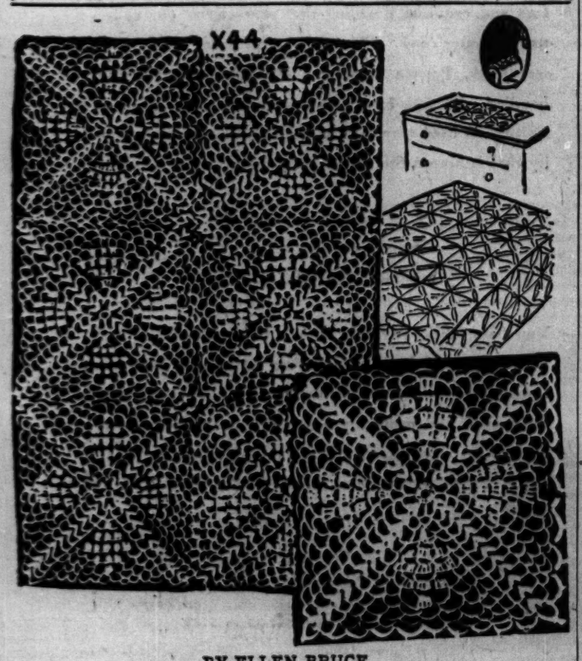
Blocks for a Bedspread



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Bedspreads crocheted in quick and easy to make squares are a boon to those needleworkers who like to have something on hand to do. These blocks, set together, form a most interesting allover design. Tablecloths, antimacassars, runners, or luncheon doilies may be made from this same design, with only a change of thread. Mercerized crochet cotton was used for the bedspread and fine thread may be used for the tablecloth.

For instructions in crocheting the bedspread, No. X-44, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

ANNUAL SALE of QUALITY FURS

ALL PRICED SUBSTANTIALLY BELOW USUAL FOR THIS SALE ONLY

Few purchases require more careful consideration than an investment in furs. For when you buy furs you expect enduring, as well as initial, beauty. And you can have this expectation only when you have complete confidence in your furrier. In his integrity. In his ability to buy fine furs and price them reasonably. Just such qualities, reaffirmed over a period of more than fifty years, have established an unvarying standard of excellence in Carson's furs. There is no sounder investment than selecting them while our August sale prices are in effect. Prices will automatically rise in September. So see, and choose from, one of the finest and most breathtakingly beautiful collections of precious furs that we've ever assembled!

Furs, Fourth Floor, North State.

WASHINGTON PARK OPENS 31 DAY MEETING TODAY

$5,000 CHICAGO HANIDCAP TOPS 1ST WEEK'S CARD

Schedule $3,500 Four Mile Event.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Washington Park race track today opens a meeting which will be marked by events of national significance in the struggle for leadership among horses of the juvenile, 3 year old, and handicap divisions. In the course of the 31 days of racing, the historic American Derby will be renewed with an added money value of $40,000. There will be a $20,000 Futurity and a $25,000 handicap.

Walter Gregory.

Eligibles for the Derby include every 3 year old, with the exception of Corydon, which has distinguished itself in any way. Most of the horses which ran in the Kentucky Derby and all of those which competed in the recent Arlington Classic are among the nominees. The handicap has drawn the stars among the older horses, including Challedon, Eight Thirty, and Kayak II.

Chicago Handicap Saturday.

Today's program will be headed by the Englewood purse, an allowance event of a mile which will bring out ten 3 years olds, including the winner of the Arkansas Derby, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Super Chief. The main event of the week will be next Saturday's $3,000 Chicago handicap, a six furlong dash for 3 year olds and up.

Under the direction of President Walter Gregory, Ben Lindheimer, chairman of the board, and John D. Jackson, general manager, Washington Park has scheduled an ambitious program. In addition to the big stakes, there will be a high daily purse distribution, special prizes for distance races, and a Patrons' handicapping contest.

Basing their expectations on the Arlington Park meeting, which was the most successful enjoyed by that track since 1929, Washington Park officials are looking forward to the biggest 31 days in the history of their track. Washington Park coördinated its program with Arlington Park to provide a summer program more attractive than offered over a comparable period of time in any racing center in the country.

Trainers Ask Long Races.

In recent years many advocates of the development of distance racing have arisen among breeders and others interested in the improvement of the sport, but hitherto few tracks have shown much inclination to take up the movement. Washington Park, however, is pioneering in this field by arranging a series of events graduated in distance from a mile and a quarter to four miles. A purse of $3,500 has been put up for the four mile run.

Breeders argue that many horses which are considered cheap platers at distances of a mile and an eighth would become high class performers if racing schedules were drawn up on a nation-wide scale calling for events at two and a half miles or so. Horses whose capabilities are along these lines appear at a disadvantage under the present system, just as a college athlete, whose specialty is the mile run, appears if he is asked to go up against sprinters in the 100 yard dash.

Many of the horses which competed at Arlington have moved over to Washington Park. In addition, quite a few other stables have shipped in for the meeting. The Denemark and the Le Mar strings came in from New England and Hirsch Jacobs brought quite a few members of his stable from New York.

Kayak II. in Handicap.

The handicap colony will include stars of the winter circuit. Leo J. Marks' Le Mar color bearer, Many Stings, winner of the Widener cup, Hialeah's big handicap, is expected to meet Charles S. Howard's Kayak II., winner of the Santa Anita handicap in 1939 and runner-up to Seabiscuit in the 1940 event. Both are among the eligibles for the Washington Park handicap, which is to be run on Labor day.

PLEDGE 160,000 ANDERSON VOTES IN TRI-CITIES

Iowa Coach Backed 100 Per Cent in Poll.

64 Are Ready

TWO full backs, Frank Emmons of Oregon and Dominic Principe of Fordham, who were elected to the All-Star football squad by the fans of the nation, last night wired their acceptances to The Chicago Tribune. This brought the total to 64. Erwin Prasse, Iowa end, who at present is a member of the Springfield, Mo., baseball team of the Western Association, expects to learn tonight whether he will be able to join the All-Stars in practice at Northwestern university Aug. 11.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Davenport, Ia., July 28.—One hundred sixty thousand persons live in the Mississippi valley's famed Tri-Cities — Moline, Rock Island, and Davenport. That number of first place votes will be delivered for Eddie Anderson of the University of Iowa in the campaign to choose the head coach of the All-Stars, Sports Editor Leo Kautz of the Davenport Times estimates.

The national poll ends at midnight Sunday. From the election will come five college football coaches to prepare the All-American squad for the game with the Green Bay Packers in Soldiers' field, Chicago, on Aug. 29.

Voting Straight Ticket.

"Davenport and the Illinois cities will do their share in this campaign," Kautz said emphatically today. "When I predict Dr. Anderson's vote will equal our population I am not assuming that we will vote infants and grandparents to gain that goal. Families are voting a straight ticket, however," Kautz continued. "Look at this," and he flipped a postcard across his desk.

On the postcard was written, "We vote for Iowa and Anderson." It was signed, "Blair A. Phillips, Clara Phillips, Jeanne Phillips, G. Allan Phillips, Richard Phillips."

Kautz grinned and then said, "How's that? The Phillips family wants Anderson. So do the Joneses and the Browns. All Iowa wants Anderson. Seriously, tho, part of our 160,000 votes will come from adjacent cities—East Moline, Bettendorf, and others. Hundreds of votes will be turned in by manufacturing companies in this area. The Davenport district of the Standard Oil company, which helped in the All-Star players' poll, will do even better for Anderson.

Hotels Poll Vote.

"Our hotels will poll a vote which will come from outside this territory. And then there's Tony Sacco, St. Ambrose quarter back, who was elected

Three Tough Young Men from Manhattan

These three Yankees combined to make it unpleasant for Ted Lyons and Bill Dietrich of the White Sox in the opening game of yesterday's double header in Comiskey park. Babe Dahlgren, Joe DiMaggio, and Charley Keller (left to right) hit six homers off the two Sox pitchers, Lyons yielding four and Dietrich two. Dahlgren hit one off Lyons, DiMaggio two, dividing his attention, and Keller three, two off Lyons and one at Dietrich's expense. The White Sox lost this battle, 10 to 9, but won the second 8 to 4. DE CORREVONT, N. U. GRID STAR, HAS OPERATION

Bill De Correvont, Northwestern university's nationally publicized football star, was believed to be recovering last night in the Northern Minnesota hospital in International Falls, Minn., where he underwent an appendicitis operation yesterday afternoon.

De Correvont was taken to the hospital from a nearby boys' camp called Koochiching, where he is a counselor, and arrived at 12:45 p. m. He was operated on at 2 p. m. The operation, performed by Dr. James Mason of International Falls and Dr. Harry Lysne of Minneapolis, was accomplished with a local anesthetic and required about an hour.

Operation Emergency One.

Dr. Mason said the operation was an emergency one, and that De Correvont's condition was about average, considering the severity of the attack.

Northwestern university spokesmen said that De Correvont had returned to the camp Saturday from a week's canoe trip with other counselors and campers, and had said he did not feel well. When he was stricken yesterday he was taken from the camp, which is on an island in Rainy Lake, to the mainland, and then driven into town, a distance of about 10 miles. Miss Pearl Pearson, his nurse, said he walked into the hospital.

De Correvont's mother, Mrs. Harriet De Correvont, was notified last night in her home at 10 North Lavergne avenue.

Undecided About Trip.

Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern football coach, and Attorney Samuel Golan, a friend and adviser of De Correvont, were undecided last night about driving to International Falls. They had been unable to make plane connections.

De Correvont, who is 21 years old, rose to national prominence in 1937 after leading Austin High school to a national championship.

Playing as a half back in one game that season, he scored nine touchdowns and kicked three extra points for a total of 57 points. His first year as a varsity man at Northwestern last season was successful but not spectacular.

Giants Win from Cubs, 8-4, on Gumbert's Pitching and Hitting

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 28.—Polo Grounds attendance this afternoon soared to 6,576 as contrasted with the turnout of 3,988 yesterday and 3,415 Friday, and the outpouring was rewarded not only by an 8 to 4 Giant victory over the Cubs, but was treated to five homers ranging in length from approximately 225 feet to 365 feet.

The crowd which witnessed today's affair was made up largely of young men whose old gents wouldn't let them take the car. They seemed happy enough at the homers, except those by Stan Hack and Bill Nicholson, but after the whole business was over and the weather was as hot as ever many of the youths said they still were sore at their male parents.

Harry Gumbert was the winning pitcher and deserved the verdict on his batting as much as his eight hit pitching. He knocked a triple with one on in the second inning, scored after singling in the fourth, and slammed a homer with one on in the fifth.

Homers Knock Out Mooty.

Jake Mooty was the Cub starter and the loser. Jake was knocked out in the fifth, in which Frank Demaree and Gumbert homered. Vance Page took over with one out and held the Giants away from the plate. The Giant made ten hits, seven off Mooty.

The outcome gave the Giants the series, two victories to one, and put them ahead in the season series, eight to seven. The New Yorkers also increased their third place margin over the fourth place Cubs to four games. This made it mathematically impossible for the Cubs to go into third place while the Cincinnati Reds are playing the Giants and the Cubs are meeting the Phillies the first half of the week.

Error Helps Giants.

The scoring started in the second inning, during which the Giants made three runs. Danning walked and Young singled to center. Demaree filed to Leiber, scoring Danning. Cucinello also filed to Leiber, then Herman muffed Witek's pop-up, Young scoring. Gumbert tripled over Nicholson's head, Witek scoring. Seeds filed to Leiber.

In view of the Cubs' fame for not making runs for Mooty, the happenings in the Chicago third were amazing. Warstler walked and Mooty beat out an infield single, after which Hack hit a homer into the upper deck of the stand that overhangs first base, producing the tying runs.

The Giants rarely allow a trick homer here without matching it, so, with two out in the third, Danning tapped one which traveled 270 feet into the stand under the one in which Hack had dropped his homer.

Cubs Generous Again.

The Cubs' third error gave the Giants a run in the fourth. Gumbert's single and two walks had the bases full when Danning grounded to Warstler. Warstler threw to Herman, who muffed the ball, and Gumbert scored. The official scorer gave the error to Warstler, who had thrown the ball right into Herman's hands.

Another cheap homer and a fairly legitimate one drove Mooty to cover in the fifth. Demaree, in seeking to dodge a wide pitch, left his bat in

KELLER CLOUTS 3 IN OPENER BEFORE 39,537

Lee Stops Champs on Five Hits.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The title holding Yankees said it with home runs yesterday in the front portion of a double header, but before the afternoon's chores were finished the White Sox found an answer. Six nonstop drives were sailed out of the park by the New Yorkers for a 10 to 9 success in the first game, whereupon the Sox called upon Thornton [Lefty] Lee, who subdued the enemy on five hits, 8 to 4, before 39,537.

The Yanks' power in the first battle was mainly a matter of concern for the venerable Ted Lyons, who employed the home run ball so extensively that four souvenirs went into the hands of pavilion spectators. Joe DiMaggio nailed him for one. Charley Keller frisked him for a pair and Babe Dahlgren for one. When Bill Dietrich appeared as a finisher in the ninth, DiMaggio hit another for his twentieth and Keller his third to raise his total to the same figure. The six homers accounted for nine of the Yanks' ten runs.

Webb Has Busy Day.

Altho their home run demonstration was limited to one by Jim Webb, who came thru with four other hits as well as a pair in the second struggle, the Sox weren't easily quieted in the first battle. Once they shaved down a four run handicap by driving Mario Russo to cover. They chased Oral Hildebrand with a pair of runs in the eighth, putting themselves one short of a tie. Then they went on the march again in the ninth to collect another pair off Johnny Murphy, but finally surrendered with the tying run on base.

The second game was simplified considerably for the Sox by Yankee antics afield. While Irving [Bump] Hadley was trying to get over an attack of wildness in the second inning, Red Rolfe cut loose a crazy throw. With subsequent hits by Lee, Webb and Kreevich, the session netted four runs. The Yanks did it again in the fourth, but in a bigger way. Crosetti crowded two errors into one play and this, with hits by Kuhel, Wright, and Appling, caused another four run accumulation. Just so as not to appear too greedy the Sox erred to give two runs back to the Yanks in the seventh.

FIRST GAME

The White Sox had a lead in the first game, but they didn't hold it long. They registered in the first inning on Webb's double to right center and Solters' looping single over short. The Yankees took it back on Dickey's single and Gordon's triple after two were out in the second.

Lyons courted disaster by walking Pitcher Russo to start the third. He dispatched Crosetti and Rolfe on fly balls and then walked Henrich. After slipping two strikes past DiMaggio, Ted threw what he thought was another. Umpire Summers thought otherwise and, while still in the throes of a big peeve, Lyons made another pitch to DiMaggio. The Frisco restaurant proprietor knocked it into the left center field seats for his 19th homer and three runs. A moment later Keller deposited No. 18 in the right center field section to make the score 5 to 1.

Homers Ruin Rally.

The multitude didn't get at all excited when Kennedy opened the fifth with a single, but a few minutes later there was whooping and howling. Kennedy stole second before Lyons was thrown out by Gordon. Webb touched off some dynamite with his first home run of the season into the left field stand. Kreevich singled to deep short and scored when Kuhel tripled to left center. Solters fouled out, but Wright singled to score Kuhel with the tying run, so Russo

58 MORE EARN WAY TO FINALS IN TRIBUNE SWIM

117 Seek Titles Sunday in Lincoln Park.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Fifty-eight boys and girls swam their way into the finals of the 11th annual 100 yard free style Chicagoland championships yesterday. These, with the 59 who qualified in Saturday's trials, will compete for 10 titles in Sunday's finals in Lincoln Park lagoon.

Thirty qualified for the championship brackets in Whealan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avenues, while in California park pool, 3901 North California avenue, an additional 28 assured places for themselves in the finals. Thousands of spectators, lined behind the wire enclosures, cheered on the lads and lassies, of all sizes and descriptions. There were lank ones, chubby ones, blondes, brunettes, and redheads. But all had the same idea—to get to the finish line first.

Jaretz Wins in Senior Class.

Those who watched and competed in Whealan pool had the added thrill of seeing one of the world's great swimmers in action, Otto Jaretz. The 18 year old former Lane Tech star used long, lazy strokes to win his heat in class E, the senior division. He was timed in 56.7 seconds. Jaretz, 6 feet 2 inches tall, his 185 pounds giving him a statuesque appearance, thus made certain a race in Sunday's finals that would do credit to a national meet. One of his opponents will be Adolph Kiefer, who qualified Saturday at Cermak pool in :55.5.

If sporting fans in Iowa can take their attention from the All-Star College Coaches poll long enough they may want to know that Jaretz will enroll at the University of Iowa next fall and that he predicts the Hawkeyes will show Michigan something about swimming come 1942.

Seeks Fourth Title.

Jaretz will be seeking his fourth championship in the event sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. He has won in class B, C and D. Kiefer is competing for the first time in this meet and it may be one of his last, as he plans to seek his fortune in the movies.

Another lad who attracted attention at Whealan pool was Al Stanley, a lanky 14 year old youngster from Clinton, Ia. Stanley won his first heat race in class B by fully 30 yards, then apologized for failing to win more decisively. He confessed he wasn't in top condition. The Iowan also won his second heat, tho his time in his first appearance, 1:05.1, was the faster.

Ginny Fitzgerald, 12 years old, of 1941 Touhy avenue, won class A honors at Whealan pool. Third was Joan Fitzgerald, 11, of the same address. They are sisters. Joan won in class A in the 1938 trials. Yesterday she made a slow start and couldn't make up the distance.

Three Sisters Reach Finals.

Three sisters splashed their way to the finals in California pool. Rosemarie Voelker, 1028 Roscoe street, was first in class A. Anna Voelker was third in class E, and Marie Voelker won in class D. The Beilfuss natatorium had a field day in California pool, 12 of the 28 qualifiers being from that club.

Of the finalists 62 are boys and 55 are girls. The number of contestants in each of the 10 divisions follow:

Boys—Class A [11-12 years], 12; class B [13-14], 12; class C [15-16 years], 13; class D [17-18 years], 12; class E [19 years and over], 13.

Girls—Class A [11-12 years], 13; class B [13-14 years], 13; class C [15-16 years], 13; class D [17-18 years], 9; class E [19 years and over], 7.

Earn Gold Medals.

Those who qualified during the two day trials were presented with gold medals. All others who swam the 100 yards were given bronze souvenir buttons. In Sunday's finals, the 10 winners will get gold medals, runners-up will be given silver medals, and third place finishers will receive bronze medals.

The qualifying meets were sanctioned by the Central association of the Amateur Athletic union. Yesterday's qualifiers follow:

We Have With Us Still.

We used to think the little boy
Who pulled the long, brown curl
Of the girl who sat in front of him
Was a pesky little churl;
We used to think the boy who liked
To stick a pin in us,
Then up and flee with fiendish glee
Was an onery little cuss.
But don't some grownups like to do
That very self same thing,
Sticking little barbs of words
In folks to hurt and sting?
Pricking people's tender spots
With malice and ill will,
I sometimes think those bad little boys
Are very much with us still!

to the All-Star squad. Tony received 122,000 votes in the Times' poll, nearly 30,000 more than the Iowa players. Tony himself was responsible for most of this exceptional vote. Tony now is campaigning for Eddie Anderson. That's one excellent reason to believe Anderson will sweep this territory."

Sacco has been a one man census taker who didn't drop a trick during the recent poll. His Davenport ballot booth, at 2d street and Main, was busy thruout each day. Then Tony's friends from St. Ambrose moved it to the Orpheum theater, where it served the evening trade. Sacco's efforts supplemented the vote he received in Chicago and from friends thruout the country. One day after the players' poll ended, illustrating Sacco's thoroness, another 1,000 votes were received by Kauts from Butte, Mont.

Seeks Master's Degree.

Now graduated from St. Ambrose, Sacco expects to seek a master's degree in chemistry this next year. He may matriculate at St. Louis university, where his former coach, Dukes Duford, will be this fall. Failing to obtain a freshman coaching position there, Sacco may enter the University of Iowa

Moon Mullins, full back on Notre Dame's championship elevens of 1929 and 1930 and now St. Ambrose coach, also has cast his vote for Eddie Anderson. This summer Mullins is working with Erling Larson, Davenport insurance executive, and there isn't a stronger Anderson backer in the country than Larson. Larson not only printed the Anderson ballots for All-Star coach, but helped distribute them as well.

Along with Dr. A. L. Syvrud, president of the Iowa Alumni association in Davenport, and Charley Sessions of the New York Life Insurance company, Larson has inaugurated a campaign which promises to be 100 per cent efficient. Larson was graduated from the University of Iowa in 1921. He recalls the glory of the Hawkeye football teams a score of years ago and now is overjoyed that Iowa, under Anderson, again has come to the front.

MONARCHS WIN FIRST, 12-7; LOSE TO GIANTS, 3 TO 1

The American Giants and the Kansas City Monarchs divided a Negro American league double header in the Giants' park yesterday. Kansas City took the first game, 12 to 7, making 17 hits. The Monarchs came back in the nightcap, winning, 3 to 1. The two teams meet this afternoon in the final game of the series. Scores:

ED OLIVER'S 276 WINS ST. PAUL OPEN TOURNEY

Metz and Goggin Tie for 2d with 277.

St. Paul, Minn., July 28 (AP).—Ed [Porky] Oliver, rolled down the home stretch with all the drive of an express locomotive today to capture the $7,500 St. Paul open championship on the Keller course.

Putting on one of the greatest finishes in the tournament's history, the 23 year old professional from Hornell, N. Y., scored a brilliant three under par 69 on his last round to edge out the defending champion, Dick Metz of Oak Park, Ill., and Willie Goggin of Chicago.

Oliver Shoots 276.

Oliver's winning 72 hole total was 276, one under those of Metz and Goggin. Working on opening rounds of 66—71, Oliver had a third round of 70 for a 54 hole aggregate of 207 as Metz negotiated that distance in 205 strokes. Starting the final 18 holes—and playing together—each went out in 35. Then Oliver, disqualified in this year's National Open for starting too early, decided he'd waited long enough this time.

He won the 10th and 12th to even accounts and then went a stroke ahead by taking the 15th as Metz drew a bogy. Metz squared the battle at the 16th, but Oliver rammed down a 30 foot putt for a birdie to go one stroke up as they headed for the final hole. On the par five 18th, Metz was on the edge in two and Oliver in a bunker. Metz approached to within three feet and Oliver, not a bit daunted, chipped inside his opponent and then matched Metz's birdie four to take first money of $1,600.

Seventy-two hole score:

PHILS BEAT REDS, WALTERS, 4 TO 1; GAIN EVEN BREAK

Cincinnati Wins the First Game, 7 to 2.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 28 (AP).—The Phillies climbed out of the National league cellar today by splitting a double header with the first place Cincinnati Reds before 10,160, while the Bees lost twice to Pittsburgh.

The Reds took the opener, 7 to 2, as Jim Turner chalked up his sixth straight victory and his eighth of the season. The Phils ended Bucky Walters' six game winning streak in the second game, winning, 4 to 1, behind Cy Blanton's seven hit pitching.

Shortstop Bobbie Bragan homered for the Phils in the first game and also pulled the hidden ball trick on Bill Werber in the third inning. Werber was tagged when he stepped off second base.

DODGERS, 3-7; CARDINALS, 0-4.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 28 (AP).—A six game losing streak of the Dodgers and a four game winning streak for the St. Louis Cardinals were snapped today as Brooklyn swept a double header, 3 to 0 and 7 to 4, with two superlative pitching performances. Whitlow Wyatt yielded only three hits in the shutout and Fred Fitzsimmons kept nine scattered in the second game for his 10th triumph against one defeat this season. Fitzsimmons' victory was in the nature of a celebration of his 39th birthday and was the 202d of his 16 year National league career. Scores:

Indians Beat Senators, 6-3; Then Lose, 9-1

Cleveland, O., July 28 (AP).—The Indians pounced on Washington for a 6 to 3 victory in the first game of today's double header, then booted another chance to gain in their pennant tussle with Detroit by bowing, 9 to 1, before Sid Hudson's six hit pitching in the second game.

The Indians picked up half a game on the Tigers. Scores:

Pirates Take 2 from Bees; Get 5th Place

Boston, Mass., July 28 (AP).—Pittsburgh's Pirates won both games today, 5 to 2 and 7 to 3, to sweep a four game series with the Boston Bees and climb into fifth place as the St. Louis Cardinals dropped a double header to Brooklyn. The double defeat shoved the Bees into the National league cellar, one-half game behind the Philadelphia Phillies.

Frank Gustine, brilliant Pirate rookie second baseman, was injured in a collision with Bob Elliott in the eighth inning of the opener and stayed out of action in the second. He will be ready to play tomorrow as he suffered nothing more serious than a shaking up in the crash. Scores:

LEWIS PUTS C. I. O WEIGHT AGAINST ARMY DRAFT BILL

Joins Senator Wheeler in Fight on Conscription.

Washington, D. C., July 28 (AP).—John L. Lewis today threw the influence of the C. I. O. against enactment of the administration's compulsory military training legislation, declaring that his organization is opposed to peacetime conscription.

The C. I. O. leader, who had a lengthy conference with Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], yesterday, announced his "full agreement with Senator Wheeler on this thing."

Wheeler, outspoken opponent of peacetime conscription, predicted congressional defeat of the proposal "when the people of the country actually understand what this will mean."

The Montana senator said he had received more than 2,000 letters and telegrams from church, labor, peace, and farm groups opposing compulsory training.

Sheppard Expects Approval.

Unperturbed by this and other criticism, Chairman Morris Sheppard [D., Tex.] of the senate military committee, said he was confident that congress will approve the conscription bill.

There appeared to be a disposition on the part of some supporters of the legislation, however, to seek a compromise. Some talked of substituting for the military committee's bill a measure limiting training to men between 21 and 25 years of age.

The bill approved by the senate committee calls for registration of men between 18 and 64 years, altho active service in the armed forces would be restricted at first to men from 21 to 30 years, inclusive.

Some opponents of the conscription bill, including Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], have urged trial of a voluntary enlistment for one year's training instead of the present three year enlistment period.

Wheeler Opposes Any Draft.

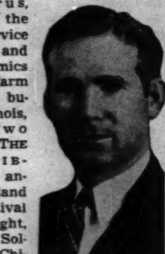
Wheeler said he would oppose all and any compulsory training proposals.

"I see no necessity for peacetime conscription," the senator said. "It's contrary to every principle of our American form of government. Under this bill we would give power to the President of the United States to conscript approximately 42,000,000 men.

"You could take them out of various occupations and put them to work at anything the war department wants, including peeling potatoes or raking leaves. If this power is given, there will be a hue and cry to conscript capital. Already a bill has been introduced to give the President this power.

"This means, of course, a totalitarian nation, just as Hitler's, Mussolini's, or Stalin's nations. There is no emergency to warrant such a step."

ILLINOIS CHORUS TO BE HEARD AT MUSIC FESTIVAL



Dr. David E. Lindstrom

Urbana, Ill., July 28 [Special].—Four hundred members of the Illinois Rural chorus, sponsored by the extension service in agriculture and home economics and county farm and home bureaus in Illinois, will sing two numbers at THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S 11th annual Chicagoland Music Festival Saturday night, Aug. 17, in Soldiers' field, Chicago.

The chorus will be directed by Lanson F. Deming of the University of Illinois school of music. Assisting will be Forrest H. Heeren, also of the faculty. The men and women will sing "Come to the Fair," by Martin, and "Dear Land of Home," by Sibelius.

This will be the chorus' third appearance at the Chicago festival.

The chorus is under the supervision of Dr. David E. Lindstrom, head of the Rural Sociology extension department of the university. Earl H. Regnier is his assistant. Dr. Lindstrom also will present 125 members of the group at the New York World's fair.

MUSIC FESTIVAL BAND REHEARSAL DATES ARE FIXED

Dr. Helen Howe, director of music in the Chicago public schools announced yesterday rehearsal dates for sections of the 1,000 piece high school band which will play at the Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field the evening of Aug. 17.

The rehearsals will be held in the Lyon and Healy building recital hall at 8 o'clock on the following evenings: clarinets, flutes, and oboes, tonight and Aug. 5; cornets, July 31 and Aug. 7; saxophones, baritones, trombones, and bassoons, Aug. 1 and 8, and French horns, basses, and drums, Aug. 2 and 9.

A full rehearsal of the south side section of the band will be held in Tilden high school at 10 a. m. Aug. 12, for the north side section in Lane Technical high school at 10 a. m. Aug. 13, and for the west side section in Austin high at 10 a. m. Aug. 14. A rehearsal of the entire band will be held at 5:30 p. m. Aug. 16 in Soldiers' field. Oscar W. Anderson will be in charge of rehearsals.

The high school musicians will make up one of four massed bands to appear at the festival. The others will be the massed competitive bands, a 750 piece fretted instrument band, and 750 piece accordion band.

NURSES REPORT PROWLER; NEGRO WITH CLUB HELD

Nurses of the Chicago Osteopathic hospital telephoned Hyde Park police last night that there was a prowler on the back porch of the nurses' home at 5231 Ingleside avenue. In the alley between the home and the hospital detectives found a Negro armed with a club about the size of a baseball bat, fashioned from the branch of a tree. He said he was William Evans, 29 years old, recently released from a Louisiana prison after serving seven years for robbery. He had a razor blade in his pocket. Evans denied he had attempted to get into the nurses' home. He said he had been in Chicago two days and gave his address as 58 East 43d street. He was held for questioning.

ADMIRAL TAYLOR, BUILDER OF WAR TIME NAVY, DIES

Washington, D. C., July 28 (AP).—Rear Admiral David Watson Taylor, naval constructor, who had a prominent part in the creation of the modern American navy, died today at the age of 76 after a long illness. Admiral Taylor was the navy's chief constructor during the World war. The new testing basin at nearby Carderock, Md., bears his name.

Admiral Taylor.

Retired in 1923, Admiral Taylor was a patient at the naval hospital when he died. A native of Louisa county, Virginia, he was graduated from the naval academy in 1885 after establishing the highest scholastic record made there to that time.

As chief constructor from 1914 to 1922, Admiral Taylor was responsible for the design and construction of 893 vessels of all classes.

HUNT 2 ROBBERS AFTER $16,000 HIGHWAY HOLDUP

Lake county authorities yesterday sought for two bandits who took $200 cash and jewelry valued at $16,000 Saturday night from Paul Vincent Galvin, president of the Galvin Manufacturing corporation, makers of Motorola auto radios, and his wife, Lillian. The holdup occurred on route 22, a mile west of Half Day, in Lake county.

The bandits, who apparently had followed the Galvins from the Arlington Park race track, forced the Galvin car off the road. One of the robbers then approached the car and ordered Mrs. Galvin to give him her jewels. She surrendered a $10,000 diamond ring, a $3,000 diamond bracelet, and a $3,000 sapphire bracelet.

The Galvins, who live at 3038 Normandy place, Evanston, had returned there after the races and were on their way to the home of Milton J. Holloway on route 54, about two miles from the holdup scene. They reported the robbery to Evanston police before notifying Sheriff Thomas E. Kennedy of Lake county.

DANCING WIFE OF PAT ROONEY DIES AT AGE OF 60

New York, July 28 [Special].—Mrs. Marion Bent Rooney, veteran vaudeville performer and wife of Pat Rooney, the dancer, died today. She was 60 years old.

Mrs. Rooney danced to fame with her husband in the vaudeville team of Rooney and Bent, waltz clogging to the strains of "She's the Daughter of Rosie O'Grady."

They toured together in the Variety circuit for 27 years until she was compelled by arthritis to retire in 1932. She emerged from retirement after 3 years to celebrate her 32d wedding anniversary on April 10, 1935, when she joined Rooney and their son, Pat III, on the Capitol theater's stage, and smiled as her husband informed the audience, "I'm still with my old sweetheart."

OLD DOC, THE YAK, IS DEAD, A VICTIM OF HEAT AT ZOO

Old Doc, the wild Tibetan yak, is dead. Sightseers at the Lincoln park zoo who missed the cantankerous old animal yesterday were informed that Doc was a victim of Friday's heat. He was buried Saturday in the zoo grounds.

Old Doc, according to Director Floyd S. Young, was one of the biggest yaks in the country. He was nearly 40 years old, or 15 years older than any other yak of Director Young's acquaintance. His shaggy black coat had turned gray with age in recent years.

Old Doc was the Lincoln park zoo's only yak.

Swimmer Drowns in Lake; Find Body After 20 Minutes

Edward Kulovitz, 25 years old, 1836 Rice street, a baker, drowned yesterday while swimming in the lake near a breakwater off the foot of Walton street. Police said swimming in that vicinity is prohibited. Three life guards from the Oak street beach recovered the body after 20 minutes.

FORMER GERMAN CITIZENS HEAR PATRIOTIC PLEA

Twenty thousand persons attended a picnic sponsored by the Germania Broadcast yesterday in the picnic grove at Riverview park and heard Werner Schroeder, national Republican committeeman for Illinois, and William Klein, Broadcast chairman, praise America as the land of freedom.

Schroeder said that the forefathers of most of those present had come here to be free from "monarchy or dictatorships" and that they had found that freedom. Schroeder's speech was given as part of the ceremonies honoring 150 former German citizens who recently became Americans.

Klein, in his talk, said:

"It is very hard for a broad-minded person to remain neutral these days. German-Americans are between two fires—those fanatics who think that any one who speaks German is a Nazi, on the one hand, and on the other a certain organization I don't want to mention, which is working against us."

There were no flags but the American flag.

RADIO MONITOR POST WILL MOVE ACROSS THE LAKE

The Great Lakes monitoring station, one of seven in the country which ascertain that radio stations adhere to their allotted wave lengths, soon will be moved across Lake Michigan to an isolated location in Allegan county, Michigan, it was learned yesterday.

Irving Weston, inspector for the Federal Communications commission, said the change is necessary to escape from man made electrical interference in the Great Lakes area. The listening post was moved from Chicago to the naval training station six years ago for a similar reason.

The station not only acts as watch dog of wave lengths, but helps protect shipping on the Great Lakes by keeping ears tuned to boat radios.

Weston said the new station will cost about $25,000. Before it is ready, however, equipment will be set up within a few weeks about eight miles from the town of Allegan.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

QUARTER PROFIT OF GEN. MOTORS IS 46½ MILLION

Huge Reserve Set Aside for Taxes.

New York, July 28 (AP).—General Motors corporation, for the quarter ended June 30, today reported consolidated net income of $46,546,919 after normal charges and deduction of $26,700,000 as a special contingency reserve for possibly higher taxes and other "unusual" items.

This was equal after provision for preferred dividends to $1.02 a share on common stock. In the corresponding 1939 quarter the company reported net income of $47,814,603, equal to $1.06 a common share.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman, said the contingency reserve deductions included:

1. $15,000,000 "to cover possible additional taxes applicable to earnings in 1940, as well as possible future losses in view of the continuation of disturbed conditions abroad."

Provide Vacation Reserve.

2. $6,200,000 "on account of the allowance for a vacation with pay to all hourly workers."

3. $5,500,000 for increased corporate income taxes under the 1940 revenue act for the first half of the year.

For the first six months of this year, General Motors reported net income of $113,575,460, equal to $2.52 a common share, compared with $100,992,531, or $2.24 a common share, in the like 1939 period.

Commenting on the nation's projected 14 billion dollar defense spending, Sloan said in his report to stockholders:

"All are concerned with the problem of national defense. Likewise, all are involved in the huge cost necessitated by a program of this magnitude—few can escape. Superimposed upon billions of dollars of deficits incurred during the last few years, this additional expense to the nation will necessitate billions in additional deficits.

Warns of Final Accounting.

"Many will be lulled into a sense of security by the stimulation of business resulting from these expenditures. They will think good times have arrived in fact, but when the inevitable accounting is made, unfortunately the picture will look quite different."

Sloan mentioned that recently he had stated that the defense program "sooner or later" would have an important influence on industrial production.

"Currently, all the indices commonly used to determine the trend of business have improved," he said.

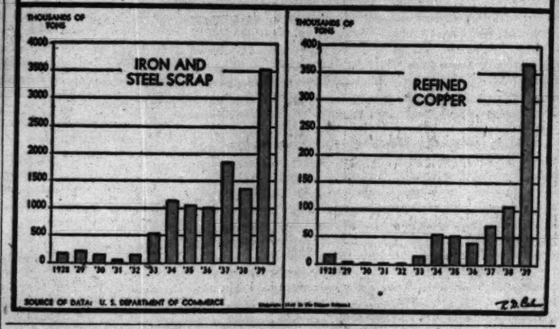
"It will be recalled that, even before the defense program was announced, there was an indication that the downward pause of general business, which had prevailed since the beginning of the year, had been arrested, with indications that an advance was about to take place.

"Undoubtedly sufficient time has elapsed since the placing of war orders from overseas to justify the belief that they now are having an appreciable effect in adding to the volume of production.

"On the other hand, it is not reasonable to assume that any important direct stimulation has resulted as yet from orders placed for defense purposes. As a matter of fact, the influence of such business cannot be appreciable for several months.

"It is likely that production will continue at a relatively high level at least for some months to come—the uncertain factor, which might involve a setback, being a possible early termination of the war."

Exports to Japan of Two Important Armament Materials



OUTPUT OF PACKING PLANTS MAINTAINED FAR ABOVE 1939 LEVEL

Activities of slaughtering establishments in the United States continued thru June and the first half of July at a level well above both a year earlier and the 1930-'39 average for the month, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. Tonnage produced rose 9.8 per cent above June, 1939, and 14.9 per cent above the ten-year average, and tonnage sold increased 6.7 and 11.3 per cent, respectively.

Last month's production was 0.8 per cent below the May level and tonnage sales were 4.2 per cent less. Total export shipments showed little change from May's restricted tonnage in spite of larger shipments to Latin America, the bank said.

Inventories of lard and pork continued to rise despite government purchases, increasing 2.1 per cent over May and 37.7 per cent over June, 1939. Dollar sales of packing house products were 9.1 per cent above the ten-year average.

Steel Makers Cut Backlogs as Buying Dips

Steelmakers made some progress in reducing backlogs last week as buying orders slackened, the magazine Steel reported yesterday. However, backlogs are sufficient to maintain present high production rates thru the normally dull midsummer period, the magazine said. Production last week was estimated at 89½ per cent of theoretical ingot capacity, up 1½ points over the rate of the preceding week.

Pressure for rapid delivery of semi-finished steel continued heavy on export orders for England and Canada. Recent British orders involved two lots of 70,000 tons and 40,000 tons.

"Practically all available blast furnace capacity is active," Steel said, "and repair work is being expedited on furnaces down for relining."

Placement of private construction orders for structural and reinforcing steel have increased and defense material buying is holding to the high levels of recent weeks, the magazine said.

The magazine said that the licensing system placed on steel scrap last week creates a virtual embargo that will halt shipments for the present and will throw tonnages collected for export back onto the domestic market.

Most producing areas increased their rates last week, with Chicago advancing 1½ points to 96½ per cent of capacity. The Pittsburgh area advanced 5½ points to 86.5 per cent. A gain of 4 points placed Detroit ahead of all other areas, with production at 99 per cent of capacity.

Railway Tax Bill Reaches Highest Level Since 1929

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that class 1 railroads paid $358,445,076 in taxes in 1939, or 8.9 cents of each dollar of operating revenue. The tax bill was the highest since 1929, when it totaled $398,384,711 and represented 6.3 cents of each dollar of operating revenue.

Postpone Strike Action at Aluminum Co. Plant

Massena, N. Y., July 28 (AP).—The Massena aluminum workers union [A. F. of L.] has postponed strike action at the Aluminum Company of America plant here on its demands for a 5 cent an hour raise. The union last Friday rejected the company's proposal for a 2 cent increase and called a strike for 2:30 p. m. today. Edward McDonald, federal labor department conciliator, said negotiations would be resumed tomorrow.

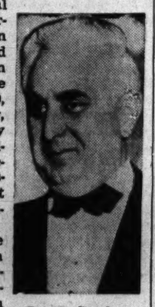
CUT IN FEDERAL BANK INSURANCE RATE STUDIED

Forecasts Big Gain in FDIC Surplus.

Washington, D. C., July 28 [Special].—Reporting capital and surplus of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation will have reached about 500 million dollars by the close of 1940, Leo T. Crowley, chairman, today recommended that a reduction in assessments against banks be considered.



Leo T. Crowley

"It might be appropriate soon to give consideration to a reasonable reduction in the rate," now 1-12th of 1 per cent of deposits, Crowley said in his report for the fiscal year ended June 30.

He recommended that bank owners invest more capital, particularly in weak or inadequately capitalized banks, and asserted this would help prevent losses and minimize the need for governmental assistance.

Expect Stronger System.

"We believe, the banking systems will become increasingly stronger with the existence of federal deposit insurance to stabilize the demands of banks and to serve as an instrumentality for the development and maintenance of an adequate and uniform bank supervision," he said.

The corporation's income for the last fiscal year amounted to $52,821,658, including $43,271,826 of assessments paid by insured banks and $9,549,832 representing interest earned, less provision for amortization of premium and profits on securities sold.

Losses and expenses for the year amounted to $14,343,570, represented by deposit insurance losses and expenses of $10,863,369 and administrative expenses and other charges of $3,480,200.

Surplus 180 Millions.

The corporation's surplus as of June 30 was $180,264,574.

During the year 42 insured banks closed or received aid from the corporation. The 268,351 depositors in these banks had total deposits of $148,179,000 and were protected to the extent of 99.8 per cent. There were only 82 depositors not fully protected, Crowley reported.

Since the beginning of banking insurance, the corporation reported that 345 banks had been closed and 3 had reopened. These banks had deposits of $431,098,000, of which 97.8 per cent was paid promptly by the corporation.

On June 30, membership in the corporation was 13,534.

Rap 'Inequitable' Tax Burden on Capital Goods Industries

The capital goods industries—key to the nation's rearmament—are being penalized unfairly by the federal income tax laws, the Machinery and Allied Products institute charged yesterday in a message to congress.

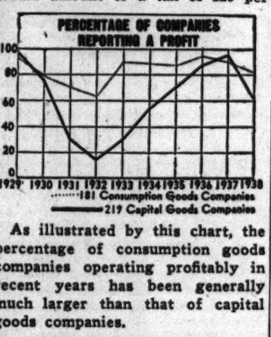
The institute urged that over a six year period capital goods manufacturers be permitted to offset one year's heavy losses against another year's profits. Such a carryover of losses would lighten the tax burden which has retarded the recovery of some of these companies, the institute said.

The basis of its proposal is that manufacturers of capital goods [machinery, building, and equipment] as a whole are subject to periodic swings in activity several times as acute as those of the consumers' goods [food, clothing, etc.] industries.

Takes Larger Share.

While manufacturers of consumers' goods as a group suffer few severe slumps, the institute asserted, the capital goods companies have a history of sharply fluctuating earnings and long stretches of losses.

If, for example, a machinery manufacturer had losses of a million dollars in each of five years and then had net profit of 6 million dollars in the sixth he would pay about $1,200,000 in federal income taxes. This would amount to a tax of 120 per cent on the net profit of $1,000,000 for the six years, after deducting the five years' losses of 5 million dollars.

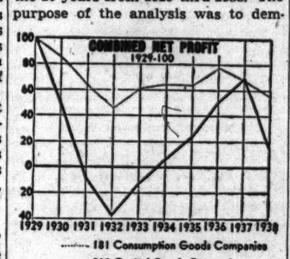


As illustrated by this chart, the percentage of consumption goods companies operating profitably in recent years has been generally much larger than that of capital goods companies.

The erratic behavior of the capital goods industries under the influence of business cycles is explained by the institute as follows: The demand for consumption goods, such as food and clothing, is fairly stable from year to year.

The purchase of such durable goods as automobiles or machinery, however, can be deferred or suspended indefinitely in times of depression or uncertainty. This "postponability of demand" for durable goods results in sharply fluctuating earnings or successive years of losses.

To support its appeal for tax revision, the institute prepared an analysis of the profit and loss histories of 400 leading American companies of which 219 made capital goods and 181 consumers' goods. The study covered the 10 years from 1929 thru 1938. The purpose of the analysis was to demonstrate how the present federal income tax laws fall more heavily on the makers of durable goods than on manufacturers of consumption goods.



Based on 100 as representing 1929 income, this chart traces the fluctuations in earnings of capital and consumers' goods companies.

Of the consumption goods companies studied, 47.5 per cent had no net losses in the decade, while only 8 per cent of the capital goods companies completed the decade without losses. Of the consumption group only 11 per cent had losses for five or more years, compared with 39 per cent in the capital goods category.

More than two-thirds of the consumption goods companies had no consecutive yearly losses, compared with only 19 per cent of the capital goods enterprises.

Proportion Much Smaller.

The proportion of companies in the former group with three or more consecutive years of losses was 18 per cent and in the latter 65 per cent.

"It is obvious that this marked contrast in the gravity and duration of the deficits experienced by the two groups of corporations must have been reflected in extreme differences in their relative tax burdens," the report said. "In the absence of provision for the carryover of losses, taxes must be paid on all the net income of all the profitable years in any period."

The institute, of which William J. Kelly is president, sent its report and a transmittal letter to every congressman and senator. The institute is the research and educational vehicle for 30 trade associations representing the nation's heavy industries. Headquarters are maintained in Chicago.

Corn Futures Take Lead in Grain Market

Corn assumed leadership in the grain markets last week. Speculators bought futures, fearing that dry weather and temperatures of 100 degrees and more would damage the crop now coming into the tasseling period.

At no time were prices below the finish of the preceding week, altho a setback occurred Saturday following heavy rains in parts of the corn belt.

The tasseling period is the critical stage in the growth of corn, and moisture and moderate temperatures are essential. Chicago statisticians said that, even if rains from now on are adequate, the yield per acre will fall short of the record return in 1939.

While rainfall in the corn belt in April was above normal, precipitation since then has been generally scanty. Ohio is the only state that received normal rainfall between May 1 and July 23, according to the weather bureau.

All deliveries of wheat and September oats sold at new seasonal low prices during the week. Shortage of storage space in the southwest, a decline in premiums paid for cash grain, and liquidation by holders of July contracts more than offset the effect of possible damage to the spring wheat crop by hot and dry weather.

Following is the range of prices last week on the Chicago Board of Trade:

	High.	Low.	July 27.	July 20.
Wheat.
September	$ .75½	$ .72⅝	$ .74⅛	$ .74½

CHICAGO CONVENTION GUESTS OUTNUMBER LAST YEAR BY 53,000

Chicago by the end of summer will have played host to at least 53,000 more convention delegates than it did last year. This was announced yesterday by William J. Hennessy, manager of the Chicago Association of Commerce convention bureau, and Thomas B. Hogan, association vice president in charge of promoting the city as a convention place.

During June, July and August, the city will have entertained 158 fraternal, commercial and political gatherings, with a combined registered delegate attendance of 130,915. During the corresponding period last year there were 136 conventions and 77,895 delegates.

Large business conventions to be held here next month include those of the Automobile Accessories association, Interstate Merchants council, National Association of Petroleum Retailers, and National Food Distributors association.

New York, July 28 [Special].—Offering will be made tomorrow by A. M. Kidder & Co. of 79,999 shares of common stock of the Vinco corporation, Detroit, at $3 a share. The corporation manufactures tools.

UNION CARBIDE'S JUNE QUARTER EARNINGS SOAR

Exceed Last Year's by 4 Millions.

Union Carbide and Carbon corporation, manufacturer of industrial gases, welding equipment, batteries, alloys, and chemicals, yesterday reported a pronounced increase in its earnings.

The report, covering the three months ended June 30, showed net income of $9,503,469, equal to $1.02 a share. In the second quarter of last year profit was $5,457,519, or 60 cents a share.

Union Carbide operates 170 plants in 104 cities located in 33 states in this country and three provinces of Canada.

Electrolux Income Rises.

Electrolux corporation, maker of vacuum cleaners, announced its net income in the June quarter was $376,136, equal to 30 cents a share, compared with $374,697, also equal to 30 cents a share, in the second 1939 quarter.

Six month profit rose to $897,560, or 72 cents a share, from $818,611, or 66 cents a share, in the first half of 1939.

Petroleum Corporation of America, an investment and holding organization specializing in oil company securities, had profit of $683,000, or 35 cents a share, for the six months ended June 29, against $639,000, or 32 cents a share a year ago.

United Gas Net Falls.

United Gas Improvement company reported consolidated net earnings of $12,554,451 for the six months ended June 30, equal to 54 cents a common share, compared with $12,642,610, or 54 cents a share in the 1939 period.

Corporation net incomes reported yesterday included the following:

Conditions in Indiana.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 28 [Special].—Thundershowers and cooling breezes from the northwest have brought some relief from a heat wave that scorched Indiana for more than two weeks, but crops and pastures are badly in need of more rain. Farmers fear heavy crop losses unless the drouth breaks soon. Some sections have had only light showers since the middle of June.

A trip thru much of the northern and central parts of the state to as far south as Indianapolis and Terre Haute has revealed dried up pastures and gardens all the way. Corn on the lighter soils is suffering badly in most localities and that on the better lands and in the river valleys is beginning to need rain.

Soy Beans Need Moisture.

Soy beans, fast becoming an important crop in Indiana, are making poor growth because of the lack of moisture. Hoosier farmers planted 1,460,000 acres of soy beans this year, a record.

Condition of the corn crop varies greatly because what rains have fallen within the last month have been spotty. Corn in some communities looks fine, while in others it shows little promise. This is in sharp contrast with the uniformly good crop of corn thruout the state last year.

Some farmers predict a virtual corn failure unless rains come soon. For example—Evert F. Wilson of Lafayette has 145 acres of corn that he thinks will not make more than half a crop regardless of the weather from now until harvest time. He doubts if it will make any if the drouth continues much longer. Last year his corn yielded 50 to 75 bushels per acre.

Thomas Harvey of Bainbridge in Putnam county thinks his corn will be as good as the bumper crop last year if the weather continues favorable. There has been no serious lack of rain in his community all summer, altho it is getting dry enough now to hurt pastures and check growth of soy beans.

Most small grains have been cut, even in the northern counties. Yields of wheat are considered about average and the oats crop is average or better except for late oats that were damaged by the drouth. Farmers in Porter county think the oats there the best they have grown for five or six years. Fields that have been threshed have yielded 50 to 60 bushels per acre.

Concerned About Seedlings.

Farmers everywhere expressed concern over new seedlings of grasses and legumes growing in fields of oats and wheat. They fear that stands may be thinned or destroyed unless there are adequate rains soon. Fine crops of first cutting alfalfa were reported in all the areas visited. In Marshall county, where 15,000 acres of alfalfa are grown each year, chiefly to provide feed for dairy cattle, the second crop is expected to be as good as the first. Farther south, around Rochester and Logansport, the weather has been too dry for alfalfa to grow well since the first crop of hay was harvested.

Short pastures have caused a drop in milk production and forced farmers to feed hay and other stored feeds to dairy cows. Many dairymen around Plymouth are pasturing their herds on alfalfa and Sudan grass.

Otto McMahan of Rochester, who buys feeder cattle on the ranges in the west and sells them to farmers all over Indiana, says sales virtually have stopped because cattle feeders are reluctant to add to their herds until rains revive pastures.

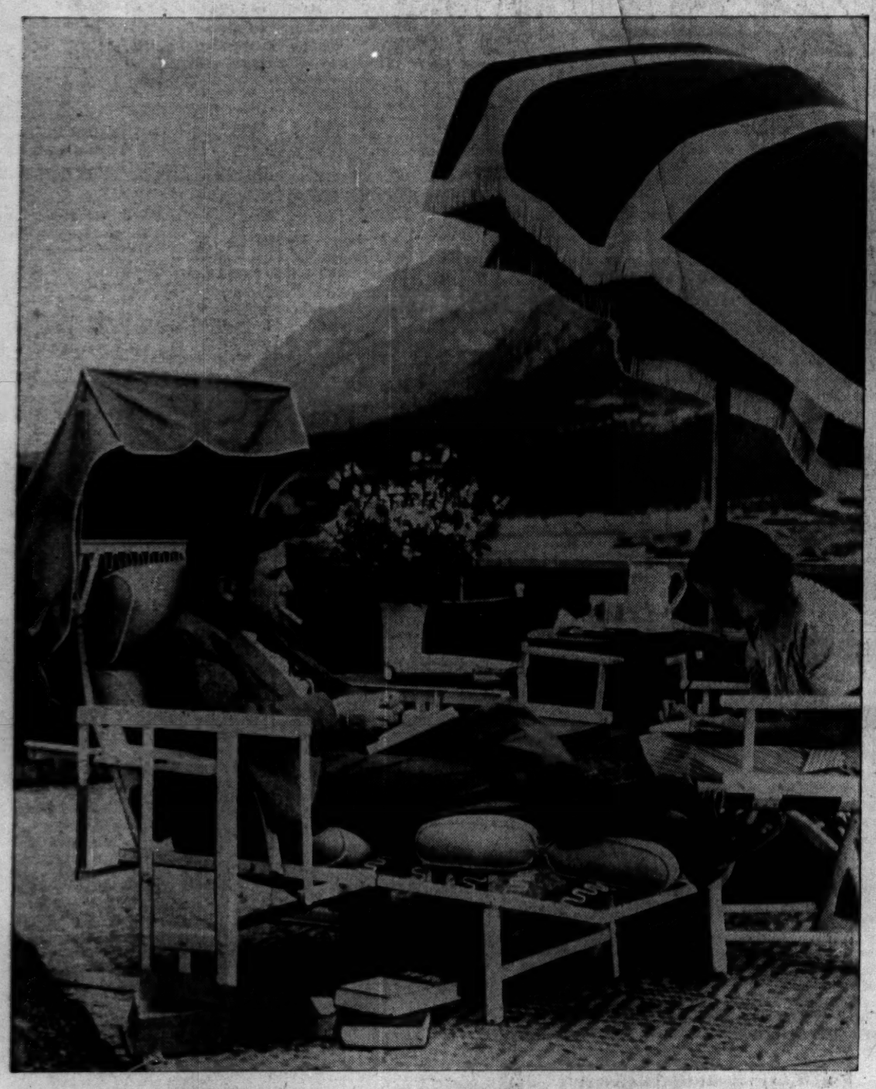
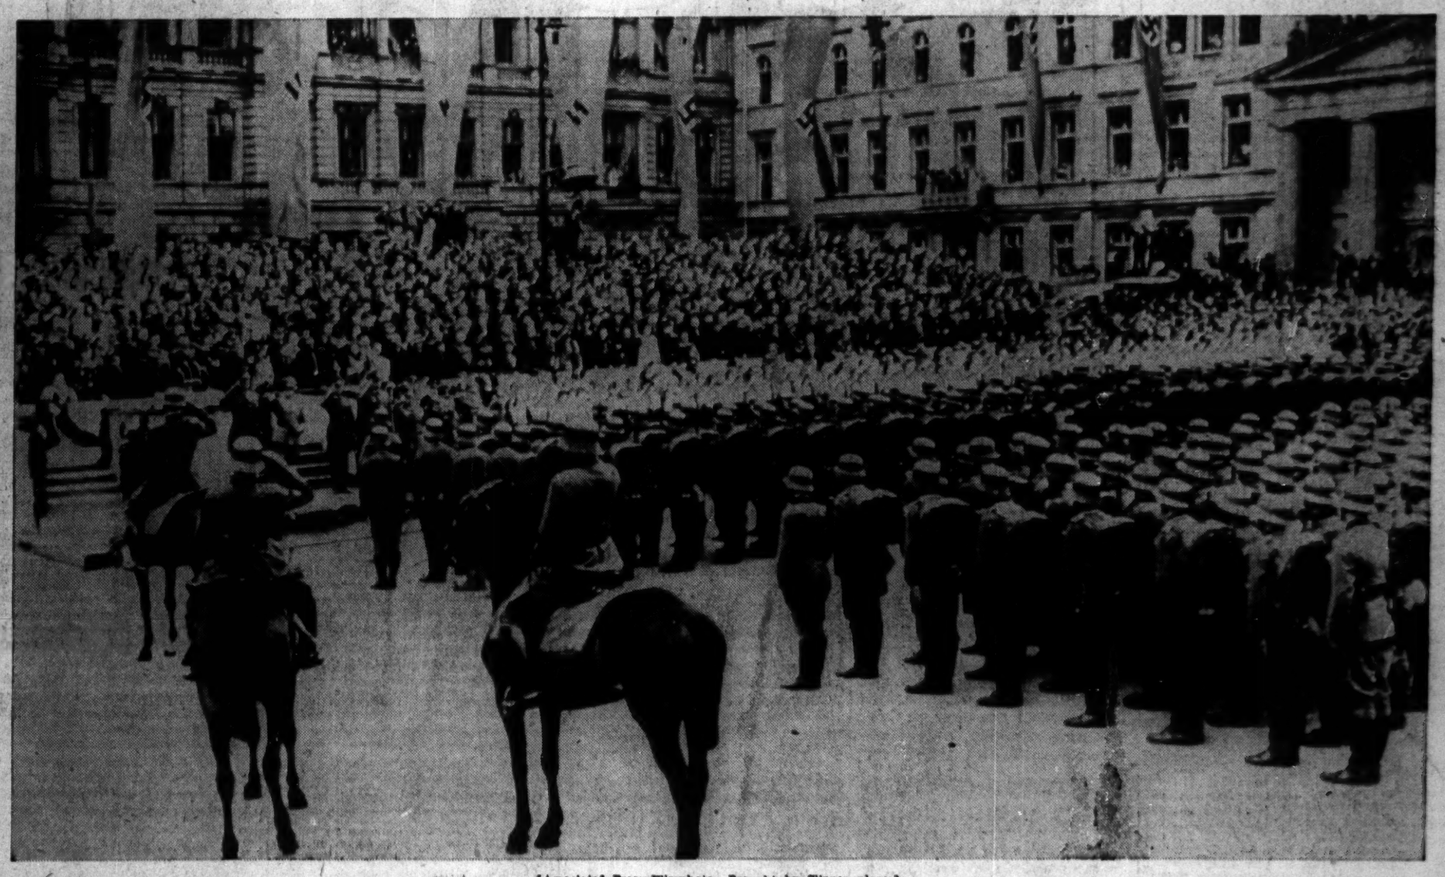
Willkie Drafts G. O. P. Acceptance Speech in Colorado—Chicago Druggist Traps Burglar in Phone Booth



Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for President, dictating acceptance speech to Secretary Grace A. Graham yesterday on rooftop of Colorado Springs, Colo., hotel. It will be delivered Aug. 17 at Elwood, Ind. [Associated Press Wirephoto.] (Story on page 2.)



[Associated Press Wirephoto: Brought by Clipper plane.]

German troops lined up before American embassy in Berlin July 19 after victorious return from western front. Nazi approved caption says embassy windows were "filled with eager onlookers." The United States has not had an ambassador there since Nov. 16, 1938. Alexander Kirk is charge d'affaires.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Bill De Correvont, Northwestern U. football star, who was operated on for appendicitis yesterday at International Falls, Minn. (Story on page 15.)
